The censure of General Miles by the Board of Inquiry will have very little effect on public opinion. That has long since rendered judgment in Miles' favor. It is true that Miles did some talking, but at the same time it is equally evident that his words were true. The people whose armor is not pierced by some barbed shaft of truth are not much inclined to censure the man who shoots it.

JONES, of Toledo, is a very uncertain quantity in Ohio Republican politics. He won't run on the Republican ticket for Governor without he is allowed to make his own platform. He can do very well without a platform. He had none when he ran for Mayor of Toledo, and the ring is still in doubt as to what happened to it. He can probably do as well as a candidate for Governor. No, Jones needs no platform.

The guerilla method of warfare employed by the Filipinos has compelled the American troops to resort to the tactics used in campaigns against Indians. That is simply the method of "wiping out" the natives. It is extremely distasteful to an American who has correct notions of the ethics of warfare, and yet when it comes to a question of necessity sentiment must be abandoned. There is nothing new left to the troops in the Philippines except to win. There is no time for quibbling about methods.

INDIANA has a so-called anti-trust law. It was passed as a piece of political buncombe, and has proved itself so to be. The state officers have held a conference to discover if there is any way by which they can use the law on the trusts in the state and thus make a grand play to the galleries in time for the election of 1900. So far they have found no way to do it. The law is even weaker than its projectors thought. It is a farce in every particular, yet the Republican legislature made no effort to strengthen it. They say, however, that the trusts must be put down.

The daughter of Fred Grant will marry a Russian Prince. It seems that a plain American is not good enough for her. The experience of Nellie Grant with the delectable Lord Sartoris, evidently has not brought a very large assortment of the article called wisdom to the Grant family. Another member must try it for herself. The average sound-minded sound-hearted American girl would prefer a respectable hod carrier to some sniveling fortune hunting princeling from Europe who has nothing to distinguish him beyond the possession of a name worn by some ancestor who perhaps distinguished it in anything but an honorable way. This Prince Michel Cantazene may be all right but the fact that he is a foreigner and a prince is terribly against him. He comes before a prejudiced jury when he subjects himself to the criticism of Americans as the suitor for the hand of an American girl.

The peace convention to be held at The Hague is likely to contrast sadly with its name. Already France is excited over the report that Russia will advocate the prohibition of the use of submarine boats which the former regards as her most valuable means of defense. The conference will probably result in nothing more than a learned diplomatic dissertation on the beauties of peace, and they will separate "with renewed assurances of the most distinguished consideration," leaving the old world to wag on in the same old rut as before. If it bears fruit it will not reach a ripened stage for many a long year to come.

An experimental well bored at Kokomo for the purpose of testing the theory as to the revivification of wells in territory once worked, demonstrated the fact that once exhausted the condition is permanent. The well in this particular spot had been abandoned for eight years, and this is looked upon as a test sufficient to explode the theory of revivification. The continual waste of gas for years is beyond remedy, and this great natural wealth is nearing the point of absolute exhaustion. Legislation came too late to be effectual, and there is no remedy. It is a shameful thing that this should be true, but such it is.

The police board looked after its job a little closer last Sunday than usual. The saloons had their blinds arranged according to law. But there were several very drunk men seen at various times on the street. They probably got drunk on "boozes" saved over from last New Years festivities or from smelling the broken bottles of ginger ale in the old drug store cellar. It might be well for the police board to go just a little further and look after a few back doors and rooms upstairs. Of course we are aware that the police board labors under disabilities, but a councilman's promise should be held no more sacred than his promises to other people. But we will see later on how things are.

There seems to be a wave of criminality sweeping over the country. The past four weeks have chronicled more murders than any corresponding week of the past. Crime of all sorts seems to be running rampant. There is a cause for every effect. What is the cause of this? For too long a time it has been the custom to wink at the violation of law. The first step toward the reign of crime is the desecration of Sunday. This winked at as it is, and practiced by even church people, opens the way for a flock of other violations of law. This is followed by the opening of places of business and engaging in traffic, then follows the open saloon, and with that comes the flood of drunkenness, gambling, prostitution and debauchery which flood every town. These are only steps which lead to theft, burglary and murder. Stop the little leaks one at a time, and we will have no large ones.

The rising up of the people against Quay in Pennsylvania is significant. True Quay is still senator by the act of a venial Governor, but the act is not indorsed, even in that hot bed of political rascality, the Keystone state. The result against Hanna in Ohio is also significant. The people are tired of political bossism, and will have no more of it. The political boss is at all times a fellow who is in office and desires to stay, and who proposes to annihilate all who oppose him. It is the same from state to township. Every burrough has its boss and his heelers, who terrorize by threats the weak-kneed, and to throw out promiscuously in the cold and awful hence every man who defies them. The people when properly appealed to never fail to see when they have been duped, and they respond heroically when called upon to charge on the boss. It is a healthy political sign. It presages the end of the boss and the coming of better days.

There is general rebellion among the press over the attempt of rings and ward politicians to stifle a free expression of opinion. The ring's desire is to censor the press, blue pencil editorial and news matter, striking out all which would bear upon their acts. The principle of "keep it dark" is the ruling one. The press has long since learned the lesson that the professional politician is not true to a single promise he makes, and he is being rapidly and effectually turned down. Occasionally a man gets hold of a few types and operates a so-called newspaper who is willing to sacrifice what little manhood the Almighty has endowed him with on the altar of the Ring, and defend everything bearing its brand, no matter where it leads, and is satisfied with a little sop thrown occasionally after the cream has been raked off by the ring. But these fellows are growing more scarce every year. The press and the ring are in conflict all over the country.

The Indianapolis Sentinel has served notice on the gang that the said censors and blood-suckers have no capital stock in the concern, and that the editor's judgment and conscience will prevent a fall into some swamp, lured by some will o' the wisp manipulated by ward bosses. Other papers over the state are severing ring relations and demanding honest men for office, and the honest conduct of office.

SECRETARY ALGER in discussing the beef question says of the soldiers "supposing they had a little beef spoiled, what of it? If they had no beef at all they would have had more than Gen. Joe Wheeler and I had in that other war." There is this difference, in 1860-65, we had a population of 40,000,000. This was divided, and at war, both sides maintaining in the field armies of a million men each. This lasted for four years. One-half of the country was devastated by invading armies. Half of the producing element of the north were in the army. Hard times among the soldiers was to be expected. The best possible under the circumstances was furnished the men in the field. They knew the conditions and made no complaint. Thirty-five years afterward with a population of 74,000,000, with a united country and our frontiers pushed to the limits of our soil, and maintaining an army of only 150,000 men, we can not feed them, and care for them for one year. They are given spoiled rations, rotten beef. With all the facilities of wealth and civilization at our hand, it is a sad commentary on our institutions that we cannot feed decently an army the size of the American army in the Spanish war. Mr. Alger will have to think again, and deliver himself more consistently if he makes it go down. Jobbery tells the story in one word. Speculation tells it in another.

BRIDAL BLOSSOMS.

Marriage of Miss Bessie Zuck and N. W. Watson at Waynetown—A Brilliant Event.

Sunday evening at Waynetown, at the residence of Newton Zuck, the popular poultry dealer, occurred the marriage of his only daughter, Miss Bessie Zuck, to N. W. Watson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. H. White, pastor of the M. E. church at Waynetown, according to the beautiful and impressive service of that church. The couple stood under an arch of smilax and carnations, the key-stone of which was a beautiful floral horse-shoe. The bride was gown in white satin and the groom in the conventional black evening dress. Miss Lola Firestone, a handsome and estimable young lady, of Fowler, was the usher. There were no attendants. After the ceremony and congratulations of friends, the newly wedded pair led the way to the dining room where a magnificent collation, including ice cream, cake, fruit, etc., was served in abundance to a large number of invited guests and friends of the contracting parties. The bride received a number of fine and useful presents. The occasion was a most enjoyable one in spite of the inclemency of the weather. The bride is one of Waynetown's best and most charming young ladies, and society there will suffer from her loss to it. The groom is a prosperous and intelligent young farmer, residing in Ripley township, between Alamo and Yountsville, and well supplied with this world's goods. The young couple start out on life's uneven journey well equipped with all that pertains to happiness and fortune. There is more joy for them in the future than they ever dreamed of, providing they look for it rightly. It is in daily words and actions; in thoughtful loving care for each other's comfort, and unselfish devotion to mutual interests that contain the germs of true happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Watson will go to house-keeping in the near future. May the skies that bend above their lives be ever violet.
