J. H. HELLER, Manager.

In the democratic congressional campaign book just issued, the address made in the house by Congressman J. A. M. Adair of this city, on the wood pulp bill occupies a conspicuous place and is a splendid argument against the high protective tariff that fosters and breeds the trusts.—Portland Sun.

Congressman Adair looks like a sure winner in this campaign. His record in the last congress, his sincerity and honesty, his dignity and his utter disregard of petty politics, are adding much to his success at this time. Congressman Adair has been faithful and the voters in the eighth district trust him implicitly.

Governor Hanly has unquestionably added to the gaiety of the campaign, by calling a special legislative session.

Had he confined his proclamation to the financial emergency which exists there would be some method to his madness.

When he includes other pet reforms he opens the floodgates for trouble. The regular legislature will convene the first of the coming year, just four months hence, and so far as heard from, not even the emergency plea would have suffered. The cost of the special session will be two thousand dollars a day, an item of expense in itself.

While Governor Hughes and Senator Beveridge were opening the campaign at Youngstown, Ohio, Saturday, and denouncing the guaranty plank in the democratic platform, a federal bank examiner was closing the doors of the Cosmopolitan National bank of Pittsburgh, and the Mount Washington Savings and Trust company was closed by the Pennsylvania commissioner of banking. No doubt the depositors in these institutions would be very thankful if Bryan's guaranty proposition were the law in Pennsylvania, and it is not at all likely that the criticisms of Hughes and Beveridge of the guaranty plank afforded them much comfort.—Columbia City Post.

Marion, Ind., Sept. 8.—M. F. Elliott, of Pennville, is the new president of the State Rural Letter Carriers' association, which was in session in annual convention in Marion Sunday and Monday. He was elected by a majority of one vote over Elias Frey, of Pendleton, the retiring president, the ballot standing 32 to 31. G. B. W. Robbins, of Rochester, was named secretary over several opponents and after a lively contest. W. J. Ward, of Carmel, was re-elected to succeed himself as vice-president. After a spirited contest, it was voted to take the 1909 convention to New Castle. Fort Wayne, Muncie and South Bend had asked for the meeting. One of the most important things done by the convention yesterday was to increase the state per capita tax from $1 to $1.50. This was made necessary by the raising of the national per capita tax. This change in the constitution provoked a contest.
