After all the interests get a good whack at the new tariff law, it will come about as near representing reform as John Dee might wish. After all, John Dee is not the only selfish American who feels disposed to help himself when the plate is passed around. And we would like to know if there is not a whole lot of bumble about protection for the sake of the infants, and tariff for revenue for the sake of the "dear people." After all is said and done every one, no matter about his color or politics, wants to help himself.

Congressman Adair has submitted to his first interview since the special tariff session. In that interview he makes it plain where he stands on several important features in the pending tariff bill. For instance he would lower the duties on many of the necessities of life and elevate them on the luxuries. He would eliminate the famous "drawback" which enables the Standard Oil company to buy tinplate in Wales and bring it into this country without the cost of a cent in duty, thereby competing against the American laborer, who by the way is a great stock in trade of the Republicans during campaign. Congressman Adair is right in wanting to protect the workmen of this country against the pauper labor of Wales.

The ladies are butting in on this tariff making, and have notified the tariff builders that they will never stand for any increase in the duties on gloves or hosiery! Well, what do you think of that? It has been the impression, for lo, these many years, that the bill for gloves and hosiery is usually squared by "dad." But if the women folks are proposing to usurp that function from the male portion of the race and pay for their own gloves and hose, they have a right, of course, right now to begin the battle for cheaper gloves and hose. But the chances are they will never touch bottom. Brigadier General Aldrich will never listen to them and Brother Payne will be too busy trying to please the men folks to give any attention to the female tariff reformer. So the only thing in sight at the present time for the ladies is to let "dad" continue to foot the bills or cut a yard off the hosiery and a foot or two off the length of the fashionable glove, and thus reduce the price to within reach.—Columbia City Post.

HE WILL RETIRE

(Continued from Page One) has been neglected, yet Dr. Wilcox has been especially successful in organizing and directing the young life of the church. The Epworth League has grown from a small organization to nearly two hundred, and the order of the Grail, a brotherhood for young men, are powerful organizations whose influence is felt throughout our city. Dr. Wilcox has the reputation of being very much interested in church politics, and has much to do with the recent elections to high positions in the church, and we predict that with his great ability as a politician, and with a powerful newspaper back of him, that he will soon represent his Michigan district in congress. While regretting to have him leave us, we wish him unbounded success in his new field of labor.

BERT COX DIED AT SEATTLE

Bert Cox, a brother of Mrs. George Patterson of this city, and who for many years was a resident of this city, died at his late home in Seattle, Washington, on the 16th of this month. He died from hemorrhages of the lungs, it being owing to this affliction that he left here and went to the western country several years ago.

At the time of his death he was a traveling representative for a big Seattle land company, with whom he held a responsible position. He was a man of great influence, and was well liked by all who knew him. The news of his death came but yesterday.

OIL PUMPER WAS BADLY HURT

Frank Bussle Hurt in Working With a Gas Engine.

Frank Bussle, aged about 25, married and with a family, is confined to his home near Domestic with injuries that will leave him crippled for several weeks, caused by a balky gas engine. Mr. Bussle is employed as a pumper on a lease near Domestic and was trying to start the engine when it took what is called a "back shot" that is, instead of starting as it should the big fly wheel whirled backward two or three revolutions and Bussle was caught in it. He was whipped around violently and it was fortunate for him that the wheel stopped as quickly as it did or he might have been beaten to death. It was found by a physician who was called that the bone of one leg was shattered badly and the flesh bruised and lacerated. The injuries are not thought to be dangerous but, Bussle cannot work for weeks.—Bluffton News.

AMERICAN PLAY "MONTANA" FRIDAY.

An event that is creating a great deal of interest is the engagement of Henry D. Carr's splendid American play "Montana" at the opera house on Friday, March 26. The phenomenal success of "Montana" the past four seasons attests not only to its popularity but its merit as a play. It is conceded by eminent critics to be one of the few great western plays and is classed with "Arizona," "The Girl of the Golden West," "The Squaw Man," etc. After witnessing a performance the reason is very evident. Mr. Carr has displayed rare knowledge of the west and its ways and given us a play redolent of the range, as broad as its prairies and as strong and rugged as its mountains. The characters are all human beings, not the swash buckling, pistol flourishing fire eaters of the conventional western melodrama.

Although "Montana" does not depend for its success upon masses of painted canvas or startling mechanical effects, yet the carload of scenery and properties carried by this production is a triumph of scene painters art. This is especially true of the settling of the third act. As the curtain rises a gulch in the Rocky Mountains is disclosed, in all its imposing grandeur, bathed in the deep blue rays of a fall moon. So wonderfully realistic and imposing is the effect produced that one almost forgets that somewhere in this silent place Little Flo has been carried by her abductors and that somewhere in the rocky vastness to the westward, Jim is struggling desperately wounded to her rescue.

The Gallmeyer case closed at 11:10 this morning, so far as the testimony is concerned and Judge Macy fixed April 6th as the day when he will hear the arguments of the attorneys. Both sides withdrew their requests for special findings, thus simplifying matters considerably. The cause required eight days to complete the offering of evidence.

Dellilah J. Butler vs. Margaret and Henry Mayer, trespass, before special Judge J. C. Sutton, cause continued by agreement, reset for trial on April 15th.

ADAMS CO. BOYS LOOK HERE

The superintendent of farmers' institutes, Mr. Latta, wants the boys of Adams county to organize some corn clubs. Can we have one or two boys clubs? As many boys from 12 to 20 years old who want to be better farmers than their fathers are, who are willing to undertake to raise a little patch of corn all alone by yourselves, and who will report at our institute next winter. Drop me a postal card this week. The membership fee will be 15 cents and a number of good prizes will be given. If we get ten boys we will start a club. If I hear from that many I will let you know what next.

These clubs are being organized all over the state, and Adams county boys ought not to be behind. Come on.
