JOHN E. LAMB

ON OUR NEW TARIFF

Complete disgust describes John E. Lamb's feelings whenever he thinks of the new tariff bill. He considers it a most outrageous affair and he has no hesitation about saying so.

"Never in the history of tariff legislation" said Mr. Lamb Saturday "has any tariff bill met with such unanimous criticism from press and public as the bill which was passed by congress on Thursday last and signed by the president of the United States, and it is my deliberate judgment that the result of the congressional elections to be held next year throughout the country will demonstrate that the authors of this hypocritical and iniquitous measure have been repudiated by the voters at the ballot box.

"Under the pretext, as announced in the republican national platform of last year, that if successful they would revise the tariff downward, Mr. Taft was elected president and a republican majority was elected to the house of representatives. The republican party being already in control of the senate they had the votes and the power to redeem their promise, and yet President Taft, after he had signed this so-called Payne-Aldrich bill, was compelled in his own defense to say in a public statement:

"This is not a perfect tariff bill or a complete compliance with the promise made."

"If not, why not? This is the question the press and the country are now asking and to which the people will demand an answer at the ballot box at the first opportunity.

"In enacting this legislation, due care has been taken to protect every monopoly in the country, whilst upon the necessities of life there have not only been no reductions, but, upon many of them, increases in the rates of taxation, especially in the woolen and cotton goods schedules, which articles compose the great bulk of the clothing worn by the poor. A New York dispatch in the business column of a Cincinnati paper says:

New York, Aug. 5.—An advance in a dry goods commodity which is the direct outgrowth of the new tariff legislation is one of 10 per cent. on foreign hose. Most agents have joined in naming higher figures and others are making ready to announce advances. It is figured out that on a stocking now retailing at 19c in the large department stores the rise will be about 6c a pair. The importers handling these goods have been forced to add 20 cents a dozen to the old prices, so that merchants hitherto bought for $1.85 per dozen will cost the jobber $2.05.

"This is but one illustration of what the people may expect when the new tariff law has full sway. The pretext for raising these schedules as maintained by Aldrich, Cannon, et al, is that there is a deficit in the national treasury and they need the money. When it was suggested by the democratic minority and a few patriotic republican senators that a graduated income tax would supply the deficiency, the gentlemen in charge of affairs at Washington threw up their hands in holy horror and said that this kind of legislation should not be permitted, and when the Bailey-Cummins income tax provision, which would have taken enough money from the millionaires and billionaires of the country to supply the treasury deficit, was voted upon in the senate on the 18th day of June, every republican in the senate voted to postpone action upon it, except Borah, Bourne, Brissow, Clapp, Cummins and Lafollette. In this list of progressive republicans it is to be regretted that the name of the distinguished senator from Indiana Mr. Beveridge, is not found. Upon this roll call he deserted his progressive associates and voted with Aldrich, Smoot, Hale et al, in favor of exempting the wealth of the country from its fair share of taxation. The defeat of the income tax provision furnished those in charge of the tariff measure what they considered a fair argument in favor of the increase of taxes upon the necessities of life to replete the treasury, which was already bankrupted by the extravagant appropriations of congress. While the senator from Indiana—Mr. Beveridge—voted against the bill upon its final passage, thus admitting the iniquity of the legislation of his party, he knew that his vote would cut no figure and that the bill would pass without it; he, however, also knew that the people of Indiana, irrespective of party, would repudiate this measure at the ballot box, and was 'hunting for cover.' I fear that he will discover when it is too late that he will meet the fate of the raw recruit who tried to keep step to the music of two bands at the same time, and not being able to accomplish this difficult task, fell and broke his neck."

—Terre Haute Tribune.

What a boon it is to have a "calm and judicial mind" in the president's chair. What a tremendous advantage the country possesses in having as chief executive a man of legal training, who can scrutinize every line of legislation with the eye of an eagle and guarantee his handiwork free from flaws. The celebrated message to congress in which this president declared there was an income tax on the statute books, when as a matter of fact it had long since expired by limitation, nor his famous appointment to his cabinet of one Philander C. Knox, when Mr. Knox was legally ineligible and had to be especially legislated into the job, must not be allowed to cloud the great issue. Neither should carping critics cavil because the great mind pronounced a tariff schedule of perfect purity and free from jokers which turned out to have a large sized ethiopian concealed therein. These things are but incidents. Notwithstanding them, we repeat it is fine to have a president whose judgment is infallible.

Hart Shaffner & Marx and Clothcraft Clothes are to be the feature of our line the coming season; and we want every man of you to know it early, and keep it in mind for the time when you next think of buying clothes.

We are making a specialty of these goods because we want you to get the greatest possible value for your money. You want value; that's the only real way to economize in clothes; and value means the sort of quality Hart Shaffner & Marx and Clothcraft put into their goods. They're all-wool, in every thread of the fabrics; they represent the products of the best weavers in the world, and they offer a great variety for your selection than you'll find in any half dozen other makes put together.

But all-wool, vitally important as it is to your interest as a wearer, is not the only thing we know about Hart Shaffner & Marx and Clothcraft quality. These clothes are designed right; the whole question of fit depends on that; and it's important to you to know that you can be correctly fitted without trouble here. They're correct in style, of course; and perfectly tailored; these makers know their business well enough not to spoil good all-wool fabrics, fine linings and trimmings by designing and tailoring that are wrong. Hart Shaffner & Marx and Clothcraft are the best clothes makers in the world; and every dollar of value they put into the goods is there for you to get out in the wear.

There's a lot of inferior, cotton-mixed clothing in the market; pretty poor stuff, some of it. It looks pretty good; enough so to enable dealers to charge a good price for it; it isn't as a rule worth what it costs.

THEY WANT THEIR BOOZE

Gary, Ind., August 10.—Many business men of Gary and a large number of other private citizens wish beer if the reform element in the city does not. This morning a petition with over five hundred signatures of prominent business men, and headed by F. N. Deen, was sent to Thomas E. Knotts, president of the town board, but known as "mayor" asking that he should allow beer wagons to deliver beer to private families in Gary with the restrictions that only one case should be allowed each person a week. The following is the petition: "We, the undersigned citizens of Gary, earnestly appeal to you in behalf of our citizens to allow beer wagons to deliver beer to private houses and restrict drivers of said beer wagons to allow but one case to each customer and not to exceed two cases a week. Wagons not to be allowed to deliver beer to places that have the name of running 'blind pigs.'
