The first love feast of the season will occur on next Friday evening in the city of Muncie, and it will be clearly a democratic affair. They will then and there show their unruly republican brothers how to hold a love feast that is a love feast.

A GOOD SHOW TONIGHT.

The show at the Crystal tonight will be one of the best ever seen in the city. Two Biograph reels, "The Cricket on the Hearth," and "Two Women and a Man" will be shown. These alone are well worth the price of admission, but just to convince you that this is the biggest and best show in town two other subjects will be run, "A Convenient Lamp Post" (fare) and "The Sleeper" are excellent subjects, and will drive away the blues every time. What's the use sitting around the house these long evenings when you can spend an hour in a nice comfortable room and see the best show on earth for only a nickel. Get the habit.

(United Press Service.)

New York, Dec. 28.—(Special to Daily Democrat)—Foot ball is on trial for its life today at the half annual session of the Inter-Collegiate association at the Murray. Bitter feeling prevailed among the western delegates against what they termed "snobishness" of Yale and Princeton who have not joined the conference. Professor Morto of Purdue cut loose with a flashing arraignment of foot ball coaches. He says there are such a few coaches in this country who do not lack the spirit of courtesy and sportsmanship.

(United Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—(Special to Daily Democrat)—The cabinet today in the midst of the Ballinger investigation, the Nicaraguan troubles and other important subjects stopped long enough to consider at the instance of President Taft, "Speculations in agricultural futures." The president is contemplating recommending legislation that will put a stop to this traffic.

DON'T BELITTLE YOURSELF.

Few Chances Come to the Self Depreciatory Man.

"Henry," said Uncle Hiram to his hopeful young nephew, "I would not advise anybody to go around continually blowing his own horn. We tire of men who do that, and we are apt to think of them that that's all they can do, blow."

"On the other hand, Henry, never belittle yourself; never be self depreciatory. Don't have a poor opinion of yourself, but if you do have such an opinion don't express it. The man who blows his own horn may seldom be taken at his own valuation, but the self depreciatory man almost invariably is."

"So never run yourself down or speak doubtfully of your own ability. If the boss is thinking of advancing you and he should say to you some day, 'Henry, we are thinking of trying you on this thing—do you think you could handle this job?' you don't want to say, 'Well, I haven't had much experience yet in that way, and I really don't know whether I could do that or not.'

"You don't want to say anything like that, for if you do he'll be likely to think it over some more and end up by trying somebody else, taking a blower maybe who can't really do the work half as well as you could, but who's got self confidence enough to say he can."

"You don't know what you can do till you try. Some men try and fail, but an astonishing number rise to occasions, developing strength or ability that others might never have thought them to possess."—New York Sun.

SPOILED HER DAY.

Why the Woman Looked Daggers at the Car Conductor.

"Oh, the brute!" exclaimed a stylishly dressed woman who was riding down town on a Tenth street car. She plainly addressed the remark to the conductor, who smiled deprecatingly, raised his hand to his cap and said, "Sure, I didn't think it was any use in the world."

All the way to Market street the aggrieved woman followed the unlucky conductor up and down the car with her eyes, "looking daggers" at him. The poor chap had unwittingly spoiled her day.

As she came into the car she saw lying near the door a woman's belt buckle. It was supposedly oriental in fashion, with a big "stone" set in it. She sat down, with her eye on the buckle; rose, stooped and picked it up. She had opened her bag with the intention of dropping her belt within, but glanced up and saw that the other passengers were watching her. Evidently she thought it might be wiser to ask the conductor if he knew the owner. She held it, therefore, until the conductor passed her, then handed it to him, with the question, "Do you know whether anybody has lost this?" "I suppose some one has, ma'am," he answered. "Let me see it."

Then, after glancing at it a moment, "Aw, that's no good," said he and tossed the object (?) into the street.

"Oh, the brute!" exclaimed the woman. And who can blame her?—Philadelphia Times.

The Purchase of New York.

When the letter announcing the purchase for 60 guilders ($24) of the 11,000 morgens of land constituting Manhattan Island was read in the assembly of the states general on Nov. 7, 1626, it was resolved that "no action is necessary on this information." Had their high mightinesses possessed prevision how strenuous might have been the resolution passed that the newly acquired island should be kept forever under their control! Nor was the West India company, that money making trust which ventured this first speculation in wheat and in lands in the long line of enterprises known to Manhattan, more alive to the excellence of their investment. More than ten times the sum paid over to the Indians for about 22,000 acres, according to their estimate, has since been paid for a single square foot of New York soil. Probably there is no other sale on record where the advance in value has been so great.—Putnam's Magazine.

An Armored Nest.

In the Argentine Republic, says a writer in the Strand Magazine, where the summers are long and hot, it is customary to leave the windows open both day and night during the hottest part of the year. A bird, taking advantage of this, proceeded to build a nest in my room, fixing it firmly to one of the Venetian blinds over the window. The eggs were duly hatched and the young birds fledged. On taking down the empty nest I found it to be practically armored, the outer part being composed almost entirely of old rusty nails woven in among the hay. On counting the nails I found that no fewer than sixty-six had been used, besides some wire and pins taken from my dressing table. The bird was about the size of a robin and very tame.

Not So Bad.

"I asked my class of small boys if any could tell me the meaning of the word 'apprentice,'" said a teacher recently, "and all looked at me blankly until one lad arose."

"Can you tell me what apprentice means?" I repeated.

"Yes, it means practicing work."—Exchange.
