Alex Michaels of three and one-half miles west of Geneva had a narrow escape from death last Friday. He was drawing pipe from an abandoned oil well and was working alone when the rope broke and the heavy tongs struck Alex on the head. He was rendered unconscious and laid an hour before he was found. His nose was mashed and he received an ugly gash on the forehead. Dr. Graham dressed the injuries and it is believed he will get along all right.

LIFE IN ALASKA

two or three months yet. Well, my girl deserted me and left Alaska. I got a letter from here yesterday from Seattle, but when she was in Alaska she was at Juneau, and that is 1200 miles from here.

I guess I have told you all the news I know for this time. Leo just came home. I guess I will have to close and go to bed. About one-half the people in Alaska have bum stomachs from eating this canned stuff one gets up here. FRANK BARTHEL.

By using the Campbell Varnish Stain Graining process you can produce a fine effect over any old discolored floor. First apply the ground color, then the surfacer, going over it with the graining roller; finish with Campbell's Varnish Stain, light oak or any desired shade. It wears like iron. Ask Schaub, Gottmoller & Co. about it.

Misses Letta Lang, Jessie McLean, Louise Hobrock, Edna Crawford and Eleanor Forbing of the Boston store enjoyed a drive to the home of Charles Fuelling northeast of the city Sunday afternoon, where they joined a party of the neighbors and friends there in spending a delightful afternoon and evening at the Fuelling home. The Fuelling home is one of the most splendid in Adams county, rivaling the most up-to-date city homes in beauty and conveniences, and hospitality was never dispensed with a more free hand than Sunday. The company was shown over the broad acres of the farm, which is most lovely at this time of the year, and because of the out-door trip the appetites were rendered the more keen for the enjoyment of the dinner spread at 6 o'clock, which consisted of all the tempting substantial and dainties yielded from the broad acres and prepared by the skilled hands of the hostess and her daughters. During the evening music was dispensed by the Misses Amelia and Clara Fuelling, and closed a very delightful day.

ON THE WITNESS STAND.

The Right of a Witness to Qualify His Answers.

Like Stevenson's child, as a rule, the witness should speak only when he is spoken to. He should not volunteer anything except that when he is asked a question which with apparent innocence could really be answered "Yes" or "No" he has a right to qualify a plain "Yes" or "No." This of course happens most often in the case of experts. The "Yes, but I will explain," and "No, but I will explain," of one of the distinguished expert witnesses for the commonwealth in the case of commonwealth versus Quay, which was tried before Judge Biddle in the court of quarter sessions of Philadelphia county several years ago still linger in the writer's memory.

It is a mistaken notion that a witness is bound to answer "Yes" or "No." It is surprising that such should have ever been the received theory, but then the hunting down of witches and the expounding of the doctrine of witchcraft were regarded as proper judicial functions only a century or two ago. The theory as to categorical reply was completely exploded by the gentleman who propounded the question, "When are you going to stop beating your wife?" and demanded a categorical answer. If the lawyer attempts to tell you that you must answer "Yes" or "No" you have the right to say that the question is one which is not susceptible of a categorical answer. This should floor counsel for the moment.

Mannerly behavior on the part of witnesses includes keeping one's temper under almost all provocations. Cross examination for the purpose of testing your memory is not intended to be and should not be regarded as insulting. It should therefore not be resented. If the cross examination transcends all bounds and your patience is exhausted a sharp retort will not necessarily injure your testimony with the jury. The jury sympathizes with the witness more than with the lawyer, and, while more smartness for the sake of being smart or because of a too expansive personality is to be deplored, you will be sure of a sympathetic audience if you are in the right and counsel in the wrong.—Ira Jewell Williams in Green Bag.

UNDER AN UMBRELLA.

An Expensive Adventure of a Famous Parisian Wit.

Romieu, the famous Parisian wit, was one day caught in a shower and forced to seek refuge in a doorway of the opera house. It was 6 o'clock already, and he had an engagement in the Cafe de Paris for that very hour. The rain fell in torrents. There was no carriage to be had. He had no umbrella. What was to be done? While he was lamenting his bad luck a gentleman with a large umbrella passed by. Romieu was seized with a sudden inspiration. He rushed out and grasped the stranger by the arm and gravely installed himself under the protecting umbrella.

"I am overjoyed to see you," he immediately began. "I have been looking for you for two weeks. I wanted to tell you about Clementine." Without giving the stranger time to express his surprise Romieu rattled away with gossip and anecdote until he had led the unknown companion to the door of the Cafe de Paris. Then he glanced at him with a face of well feigned astonishment.

"Pardon, monsieur!" he cried. "It seems I am mistaken."

"I believe so," said the stranger. "Good gracious!" added Romieu. "Be discreet. Don't repeat what I have told you."

"I promise you."

"A thousand pardons!" Romieu hastened within the cafe and amid great laughter told the adventure to his friends. Suddenly one of them said:

"Your cravat is rumpled." Romieu put his hand to his neck and turned pale. His pin, a valuable sapphire, was gone. On further examination his purse and watch were found to be gone. The man with the umbrella was a pickpocket.—London Tit-Bits.

An Italian Superstition.

There is an Italian superstition that whenever a king belonging to the house of Savoy dies a huge eagle is to be seen crossing the Alps over the valley of Aosta in the direction of Savoy, and the conviction prevails among the inhabitants of Aosta that this eagle guides the soul of the dead sovereign to join those of his ancestors in Savoy. When King Charles-Albert died at Lisbon, King Victor Emmanuel died at Rome and King Humbert was assassinated at Monza in 1900 the eagle was seen winging its way across the Alps. All other eagles crossing the Alps don't seem to count for much.

Ancient Ropes.

Ropes made of various kinds of fiber and leather are of very ancient date. Ropes of palm have been found in Egypt in the tombs of Beni-Hassan (about 3000 B. C.), and on the walls of these tombs is also shown the process of preparing hemp. In a tomb at Thebes of the time of Thothmes III. (about 1600 B. C.) is a group representing the process of twisting thongs of leather and the method of cutting leather into thongs.
