Prof. Campbell Gives Late Figures Regarding the Comet.

San Juan, Cal., May 17—Director

Campbell of the Lick observatory yesterday gave out a statement concerning Halley's comet in part as follows: long at daybreak this morning, both as photographed and as observed by the naked eye. This corresponds to a length of 24,000,000 miles. The nearest point of the comet was eleven million miles from the earth. Tuesday morning it was nearly seven million miles away; Wednesday morning a little over two million miles, and Wednesday evening the earth will be passing through its tail. The present diameter of the tail at the point through which the earth will pass is a little over 1,000,000 miles. The two bodies will have a relative velocity of forty-three miles per second and the time required for the passage, if the present dimensions remain unchanged, will be six or seven hours.

"The earth's atmosphere will form a perfect protecting blanket against all possible constituents of the tail. There is absolutely no cause for anxiety as to injurious effects upon terrestrial life, animal or vegetable."
