Isn't it just a little too democratic the way these insurgents talk about the protective fed interests, and their outrageous assaults against the dear people? No wonder the average standpatter feels just a little sick at the stomach, and resents the motives of their former associates. We do not blame them for harboring this resentment and along with it the feeling that a real democrat has a better record than a near-democrat or insurgent could possibly have.

Henry O. Havemeyer, former head of the sugar trust, is dead. It is comparatively safe, therefore, for the other officers of the trust to lay responsibility for the weighing frauds, by which the trusts made millions, at his door. The "live ones," however, should be attended to and also the party that gave the sugar trust its power for evil. Says the Louisville Courier-Journal: "Very probably Henry O. Havemeyer knew of and approved the weighing methods of the sugar trust. Was he guiltier, if this is true, than distinguished leaders of the republican party who know of, and approve, the party's method of filling the sugar trust's orders for legislation?"

Hardly. And while the republican party is not dead, as Havemeyer is, it seems to be bordering on dissolution.

The republican standpatters were free with their hot air predictions that the present democratic delegation of eleven in congress would be the means of Indiana losing prestige and standing with the powers that be in congress. The omnibus building bill, which is now prepared, does not indicate much loss in the pork barrel. Twelve appropriations for public buildings in Indiana were allowed them, the total of such appropriations being in excess of six hundred thousand dollars. Congressman Adair gets sixty thousand for a site and building at Portland. The more these hot air republican partisans talk, the deeper they get both feet in the mire.

Speaking of the result of its recent vote wherein 1,500 Indiana people gave their opinions upon men and measures, the Cincinnati Enquirer, says:

"Of the success of the administration of Governor Thomas Marshall the plebiscite indicates popular approval. There are 1,110 who say that it is giving satisfaction, which forms 80 per cent of the whole number of votes. There are 174, or 13 per cent, who insist that it is a failure, and 132, or about 9 1/2 per cent, who say that success or failure is a matter of doubt. * * * Saving these exceptions, there is no gainsaying that the vote indicates more than the usual popularity achieved by a chief executive elected under the unusual circumstances which attended Governor Marshall's victory over such a strong man as Congressman James Watson."

As the vote upon other questions indicated that at least half, and perhaps many more than half, of those whose views were sought are republicans, the indorsement of Governor Marshall's administration is practically unanimous. Which merely goes to show that the people know and appreciate a good thing when they see it.

Miss Marie Allison Will Give Masked Ball This Evening For Visiting

COLLEGE FRIENDS

Strawberry Dinner Given at W. A. Fonner Home—The Club Notes.

THE ANTIS.

She was an Anti-Suffragist, from somewhere up the state, Who thought it was her duty to offset the coming fate. So, although she was a spinster, she went lecturing here and there On "Wife and Mother, Home and Child, the Nursery and Prayer."

Another of the Antis—a mother of thirteen—

Saw votes for Women coming and stepped boldly on the scene; She packed up her little carpet bag and went from Troy to Rome. Just preaching to creation that "A Woman's Place is HOME."

And there was still another—with a husband meek at hand— She used to tell the neighbors "she could train him with one hand." She said "he didn't know as much as their old Texas mule." But the text of all her lectures was, "Wives, Let Your Husbands Rule."

The next one was a widow who would gladly wed again; To her the weighty question was not altogether plain; But throughout her lengthy lecture all the subject matter ran That she wouldn't vote for women, but she would vote for a MAN.

The last had done the housework and the farmwork all her life. Although there was a farmer and she was this farmer's wife. She'd churned and hayed and garden-ed, paid the taxes, saved the farm. But she lectured on "The Comfort of a Man's Protecting Arm." —Lurinda W. Sheldon in New York Times.

One of the most pleasant social gatherings was that at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Berning near Williams. The guests spent the afternoon with conversation, games and music, and were in the best spirits for enjoying the delicious supper served by the hostess, consisting of all things good to the palate. These present were Charles, William and Gust Bultemeier, Charles Berning, Henry Korde, Gus Horstmeier, Henoch, Lawrence and Martin Heckman, Fred Jaebker, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Buuck, Mr. and Mrs. William Berning, Clara Bultemeier of Root township, Clara Bultemeier of Decatur, Emma and Pauline Heckman, Anna and Christena Berning, Tillie Holle, and the Misses Beckman and Bandt.

A most enjoyable reunion of the Hower family was that yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Nichols on Tenth street. Dinner and supper were served and the hours in the meantime spent in a general social way in keeping with the Sabbath. The party included Mrs. Sarah Hower, the mother; the Rev. D. I. Hower of Bradyville, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Hower of Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. James Harkless and daughter, Naomi, of Paulding, Ohio; Dal Hower, Alva Nichols, John D. Meyer, D. W. Beery, Jesse Dailey, J. O. Sellemeyer, with their families, and Charles Harkless.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Fonner of Root township gave a most delightful strawberry dinner yesterday, guests being Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Lewton and daughter, Eloise, and Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Peoples and John Way. Strawberries, fresh from the vines, were served in many delightful ways.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Reynolds entertained at 12 o'clock dinner Sunday in honor of their daughter, Bereneta's tenth birthday anniversary. Miss Eva Aughenbaugh and Bereneta delighted the company with several nice piano selections during the after-
