Bremekamp's Mills Have New Delivery Truck Made by A. D. Pugh.

The Fornax Mills, H. H. Bremekamp, proprietor, have a handsome new delivery wagon on the streets, that is attracting quite a little attention. The wagon, we are proud to say, was built right here at home, and is the equal of any of the high priced rigs purchased at any big factory in the country. The wagon was constructed by A. D. Pugh, the blacksmith and wood worker, who has opened a shop near the Fornax Mills, and who is prepared to do all kinds of work. That he can build wagons will not be disputed by any one who examines this one.

ABOUT THE SICK

D. H. Hunsicker has recovered from an injury to his foot which he received a week ago while making his run as conductor on the interurban. While in Fort Wayne the trolley pole got out of order and he climbed upon the roof of his car to readjust it. ## A BLIND TIGER

Brought to Bay—Dan Straub Arrested—Sold Liquor Without License.

TRIAL WEDNESDAY

Officers Have Been on the Watch For Past Six or Seven Weeks.

Dan Straub was arrested Saturday night at 9 o'clock by Marshal Peterson and Policeman Melchior on a charge of selling liquor without a license. For some time the officials have suspected that a blind tiger was skulking around in that vicinity, but they were unable to drive the tiger to bay until Saturday night, when, by the careful working out of a plan, Marshal Peterson overheard the conversation between the seller and the buyers, and saw the exchange of money and the beer, which took place among the tie piles west of the G. R. & I. railroad, not very far from the Straub home on South Seventh street. The purchasers it is said were Marion Whitright and Sam Diehl, to whom Straub handed each a bottle of beer in exchange for twenty cents apiece. It is said that Straub has been bringing in the suit cases with suspicious frequency and taking them to his headquarters on South Seventh street near the Mann grocery, where he lived during his separation from his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Straub, it is said, made up last week again, and he returned to his home, a few doors south of his batching quarters, taking the liquor there. Marshal Peterson stated that Straub said he had twenty-six more bottles of beer, but as no search warrant has been issued, the home was not searched. Straub was brought to jail where he spent the night and Sunday morning was given a preliminary hearing before Mayor Teeple. Straub was not ready for trial, however, and it was set for Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. In default of bail he was returned to jail until time of the trial.

These horses will be entered in the races at the Great Northern fair in September, and will also go in the show ring. The park will be busy from now on until the fair. The Great Northern fair will be here almost before you know it and from now on those in charge will be busy constantly pushing the work. ## DUCKS WORTH THEIR WEIGHT.

Six Ducks Have Laid 535 Eggs Within the Past Four Months.

Herman T. Miller, son of Louis F. Miller of Washington township is the owner of the champion egg-laying ducks in this or surrounding country. At least we have never heard of such a record as he is willing to swear to concerning six ducks which he owns and which in four months past have been almost equal to the hen that laid the golden eggs. During that period of time by actual count, these six ducks have laid 535 eggs. If any one can beat this we would certainly like to hear of it.

LITERARY NOTES.

Mr. F. Berkeley Smith is temperamentally a gypsy, a rover. The titles of his books bear this out: "The Real Latin Quarter;" "How Paris Amuses Itself;" "Parisians Out of Doors;" "Budapest the City of Magyars;" "In London Town." Now comes "The Village of Vagabonds," to be published in May by Doubleday, Page & Company. The "village" is a little fishing community on the Norman coast near which Mr. Smith owns a farm, and the "vagabonds" are the people who visit him there and are his neighbors. On his farm Mr. Smith grows American corn. His wife is a French woman, who has lectured successfully in this country on French literary subjects.

SOLD OUT HIS ICE CREAM.

J. L. Chronister, the hustling merchant at Bobo, who advertised an ice cream event for last Saturday evening, reports that he had splendid success. A good crowd was present and the entire stock of cream was disposed of. He will continue to give these events during the summer and you are all invited to attend.

DECATUR PLAYERS WON.

The double-header ball game at Maple Grove park Sunday proved to be a good one, and especially so the Decatur players consider it so, as they won both games. The score with the Fort Wayne team stood 3 to 5, and with the Pleasant Mills team 11 to 9 in favor of Decatur. The attendance was quite large.

Invitations to the number of fifty have been issued by Mrs. R. J. Hottel for a progressive pedro party, which is to take place at her home on Tuesday evening. The event will be in honor of Mrs. B. G. Lynch of Jonesboro, Ark., and the gathering promises to be one of much interest as well as pleasure.

Meeting the world-wide protest for the protection of children, the picture show theaters will not be patronized. J. C. Lockland, vice president of the American Vitagraph company, said today: "The pictures will be shown in regular theaters. The films showing the training camps preliminary to the battle will consume two hours and we will make a regular performance of them, charging from one to two dollars admission."

INTERVIEW KERN

That Gentleman Surprised at Beveridge's Ability to Read Future.

TALKS ABOUT TEDDY

Says Effect of His Visit Here Depends on the Date of His Coming.

This morning's Indianapolis Star describing an interview with John W. Kern, said in part: "Whirligiggy" was the word coined by John W. Kern, democratic nominee for United States senator, in explaining how he believes it came about that Theodore Roosevelt is coming to Indiana to speak in behalf of Senator Beveridge. Mr. Kern's opponent. It was the democratic nominee's first breaking of the silence regarding the political situation in Indiana since Colonel Roosevelt appeared as a factor, and there is one big question for which Mr. Kern does not see the solution. It is this: How can Theodore Roosevelt go into Massachusetts and support Senator Lodge, a dyed-in-the wool standpatter, and then come into Indiana and support his insurgent friend, Senator Beveridge?

"Did you observe Senator Beveridge's prediction of 56,000 plurality for his party in Indiana?" Mr. Kern was asked.

"Yes," said he, "I read the prediction with great interest. When I considered the fact that my good friend, the senator, had been in the state only a week I was filled with admiration of his foresight and marveled greatly at his wonderful powers of prognostication. I had admired him for years on account of his many excellencies which he had never attempted to conceal from his friends, but this manifestation of his ability to read the future convinced me that he was possessed of abilities which he had not hitherto cared to admit."

"In fact, I never knew the senator to indulge in prophecy but once before. He visited Russia and Japan shortly before the Russo-Japanese war, spending a few weeks in each of those countries familiarizing himself with the two governments, their institutions and people. I believe he gave the world a book entitled 'The Russian Advance,' as a result of his weeks of study and observation. When the war broke out he predicted with great confidence that the Russians would whip the Japanese to a standstill with in an incredibly short space of time and some of his warmest admirers placed their money accordingly. But it is possible that he may have had his horoscope adjusted since that time. Whether he has or has not, it is altogether to his credit that he carries a horoscope around with him and manifests a willingness to give to the public without charge the result of his readings."

Concerning Mr. Kern's views on the effect of Roosevelt's coming to Indiana, the Star continued: "But you are asking me as to the probable effect of Roosevelt's proposed speech in Indiana. And again I shall venture no prediction. The date of his speech might have much to do with its effect. 'What do I mean by that? Why, my dear sir, Colonel Roosevelt has not only promised to make one speech for Senator Beveridge in Indiana, but he has also promised to make one or more speeches in Massachusetts for his warm personal friend—that prince of standpatters—the Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, who is also a candidate for re-election to the United States senate."

"Lodge is Aldrich's latest lieutenant in the senate. When Roosevelt advocates the re-election of Lodge in Massachusetts he must defend his record, and approve his active efforts in behalf of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill and unfailing subservience to the interests. When he advocates the re-election of Beveridge he must ride the horse the other direction and endorse the performances of Mr. Beveridge in the senate and place the seal of his approval upon his recent diatribe against the 'Powers of Pillage,' as typified by Aldrich, Cannon and Henry Cabot Lodge."

"Now, if I knew whether Roosevelt's Beveridge speech in Indiana would be in answer to Roosevelt's Lodge speech in Massachusetts, or vice versa, I might be the better able to express an intelligent opinion as to (Continued on page 2.)
