SOCIETY DOINGS

Shakespeare Ladies Give a Delightful Closing Social Affair.

FOR THEIR GUESTS

At Dugan Home Last Evening—M. E. Ladies Plan Bazaar Next Week.

Well might the sun in darkness hide,
And shut his glories in,
When God's own Son was crucified
For man the creature's sin.

Thus might I hide my blushing face
While His dear cross appears,
Dissolve my heart in thoughtfulness,
And melt mine eyes to tears.

But drops of grief can ne'er repay
The debt of love I owe:
Here, Lord, I give myself away—
'Tis all that I can do.

Dainty Easter colors in yellow and white carried out in the decoration

scheme, and other delightful Easter suggestions characterizing the entertainment, made the closing annual social function of the Ladies' Shakespeare club for their guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Dugan

Thursday evening, especially delightful. The reception and large living rooms of the spacious and beautiful

Dugan home, which were thrown into one large room, were charming in their banks of ferns and potted plants,

making a living greenery of the broad,

wide pedestals at the foot of the broad open stairway, while many little tables through the rooms, and the mantels above the cheery open fireplace, bloomed with pots of fragrant

white narcissus and golden crocus—

flowers of the Easter tide. As the sixty-five guests entered they were greeted by the reception committee and the scene shifting to the long and spacious dining room, which had hitherto been closed. When the doors were swung open, a brilliant and beautiful sight burst forth. The large chandelier in the center of the room was glowing under a bower of delicate white Easter lilies, and above were four yellow-hooded candles, casting a mellow glow over all. Below the chandelier was the long table, the centerpiece of which was a mass of five pots of yellow narcissus around which were laid fronds of ferns, and the other beautiful decorations of this room were carried out in white and yellow. The two-course luncheon was self-served, buffet style, from this table, and smaller tables, and was very delicious to the palate as well as good to look at. The second course included ice cream, molded in the form of little chickens, and the cake was molded in the shape of eggs. Following this was the closing, Act V, "As you like it," when all mingled and did just "as they liked," and it was far into the wee sma' hours of the morning when the festivities ended. During the entire evening, music by Miss Jean Lutz and the Misses Naomi and Dorothy Dugan, added much to the pleasure of all. The Shakespeare ladies were assisted in entertaining by the Misses Dugan, Winifred Burke and Veda Hensley and others of the young girls. Among the out-of-town

Y. P. A. EASTER PROGRAM.

The Young People's Alliance of the Evangelical church is preparing an Easter program to be given Sunday evening at 7 o'clock at the Evangelical church. The program will consist chiefly of music and will be a very excellent one. The public is cordially invited.

each given a little booklet, decorated with a dainty little yellow bonnet done in water colors, under which was the inscription:

"Take off your Easter bonnet,
And join the Shakespeare bunch.
There'll be pleasure when you've done it,
And then a bit of lunch."

When the bonnets and wraps had been doffed, the guests took a peep at the second page of the booklet, which gave the outline of the evening's entertainment, and was certainly a very unique one, and for which the entertainment committee who prepared the same received many compliments. The subject was "A Comedy in Five Acts" and below this was given the synopsis of each act—just a little hint inciting the curiosity of all. Act I was entitled, "Music has power to soothe the savage breast," and was carried out by Mrs. C. J. Lutz, with a very beautiful piano solo. Act II was prefaced with "O wad some power the giftie gie us, To see oursel's as others see us!"

And this was carried out by an egg-carrying contest in which only the men were participants. "Sides" were chosen by the men, with Earl B. Adams for the "white linens," and D. M. Hensley for the "yellows," as "liners up" and then began the contest. One side was given white eggs and the other yellow ones and the men were required to vie in carrying the greatest number on a knife blade to a table. The women enjoying looking at this very much, but the gentlemen were no doubt glad that they "couldn't see themse's." It is said that the yellow side claims the honors. Act III, "And thereby hangs a tale," brought forth a very agreeable entertainment, which proved to be book charades. The library was given over to the stage, and with the assistance of the young girls, the titles of books were enacted, and guessed by the company. Another feature was the answering of questions with words beginning with "eggs" (ex). Act IV, "Eat, drink and be merry," brought a change of setting in the comedy, the scene shifting to the long and spacious dining room, which had hitherto been closed. When the doors were swung open, a brilliant and beautiful sight burst forth. The large chandelier in the center of the room was glowing under a bower of delicate white Easter lilies, and above were four yellow-hooded candles, casting a mellow glow over all. Below the chandelier was the long table, the centerpiece of which was a mass of five pots of yellow narcissus around which were laid fronds of ferns, and the other beautiful decorations of this room were carried out in white and yellow. gues were Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Wentz of West Berry street, Fort Wayne; Mrs. Jennie Flaman of Marion, Ohio, and Judge O'Rourke of Ft. Wayne.

In the National Democratic Achievement banquet in which 1,000 democrats participated Thursday night in the banquet room of the Murat Temple, Indianapolis, the women received a share of the applause. The Indianapolis Star says: "Several parties of women occupied seats in the balcony around the banquet hall last night. Mrs. John W. Kern, Miss Julia Kern, Mrs. Samuel M. Ralston, Mrs. Lew G. Ellingham and Dr. and Mrs. Lafayette Page were cheered when they entered the banquet room and took seats to the left of the speakers' table. Mrs. Marshall's party consisting of Miss Adelaine Sekamp of Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Walter F. McLallen of Columbia City and Miss Carrie Howland of Indianapolis received a similar greeting."

The Woman's Home Missionary society of the Methodist church wishes to call attention to its tub sale and chicken dinner to be held next Thursday afternoon and evening in the church parlors. The tub sale will consist of new articles of clothing as well as children's outgrown garments, which will be nicely laundered. The stock will consist of all kinds of garments, which ready-made, will aid much in lessening the busy mother's spring sewing. Thursday evening they will also give one of their famous chicken dinners at the same place. Everybody invited.

The Flohrul de Purin club girls were royally entertained Thursday evening by Miss Désse Mann, two new members, Emma Conrad and Mary Stultz being received into the ranks of the club. Sewing and conversation, with delicious refreshments later, provided a good time. Miss Inez Coverdale will entertain in two weeks.

Mrs. Godfrey Kurt of Monmouth was a royal entertainer today at a quilting party, guests being Mesdames John Wolford, Jack Kemp, S. S. and Henry Magley.

The Evangelical Ladies' Aid society to the number of twenty-five spent Thursday afternoon in a pleasant social way at the home of Mrs. S. C. Cramer, some busying themselves with fancy work, others chatting, there being no definite order of work for the society. The hostess served very delicious refreshments

On account of the absence of several members from the city, the Menu-ates postponed their meeting from this week until next, when Miss Edna Huff will be the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Smith and daughter, Midge, went to Richmond yesterday to attend a celebration of the birthday anniversary of Mr. Smith's brother, P. W. Smith.

The Red Men initiated a candidate with appropriate ceremony, a very good social time following the initiation work.
