Entered at the postoffice in Decatur,

The movement for currency reform is making encouraging headway. It is said that the democrats in congress have practically all been converted to the president's idea that the work should be completed at the present session. And what is quite as important the republicans are beginning to show a disposition to co-operate. On Wednesday night the president conferred with the senate finance committee, the republican members being present. It is said that these latter, with possibly one exception, expressed their willingness to work with the president for banking and currency reform at the present time. The bankers have also been heard, and it is likely that some of their suggestions will be embodied in the bill. Mr. Wilson stands strongly for government control, and it is said that some of the bankers are becoming reconciled to this idea. However, they ask that they have some representation on the central board. It is suggested that this be increased from seven to eleven members and that the four new members be bankers. Many of the democrats favor the creation of a bankers' advisory board of twenty or twenty-five members which shall meet with the central board once a month.

It is thought that something may be done in the line of these two proposals.—Indianapolis News.

meet the boys in grey and talk over the days of half a century ago when steel met steel in the bloodiest war ever known. No doubt the reunion will be a happy one and that much good will come from the occasion.

DOINGS IN SOCIETY

The Misses Winifred Burk, Reba Quinn and Gretel Shoemaker, left this afternoon for Lafayette to be the guests at a house party given by Miss Lena Sutton, a former instructor in the Decatur high school.

Miss Frances Dugan is expected home today from a month's eastern trip. She attended the commencement at Vassar, and then visited at Hamilton, N. Y., at a house party given by a former class mate. She also visited in Washington and other eastern cities.

Miss Natalie Webster of Chicago and Miss Mildred Camp of Garrett will arrive next week to be guests of Miss Naomi Dugan.

Ed Rollins and mother, Mrs. Lenore Rollins, and Mrs. Harvey Patterson of Garrett, who motored through on Thursday to attend the firemen's convention and to visit with Mrs. Nettie Schrock and other relatives and friends, returned home yesterday.

Mrs. E. Neff of Titusville, Pa., also stopped off a while at the Schrock home, enroute to Bluffton, where she will spend the summer.

The Misses Vera and Mabel Hower invite the Queen Esther Circle to meet with them Monday evening.

Several little friends joined with Opal Robinson in celebrating her tenth birthday anniversary yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. The party was given by Miss Opal's mother, Mrs. J. R. Glancy, and the pretty lawn of the Glancy home on West Monroe street was a cool place for the children's games and good time. Light refreshments were served on the lawn. Several of the children were prevented from attending by illness, but those there were Angeline Firkes, Margaret and Dorothea Hesert, Helen Russell, Florence Moyer, Alice Lenhart and Leona Hunsicker. Miss Opal was the recipient of pretty little gifts from each guest.

Dick Gay entertained the members of his Sunday school class of the Methodist church last evening. Their teacher, Clark Spahr, met with them and after the business period, refreshments were in order.

A marriage license was issued to George Sachs, farmer, of Rhea, Texas, born December 27, 1875 son of Adam Sachs to wed Clara Wilhelmina Loretta Louise Bultemeier born January 22, 1888, daughter of Charles Bultemeier. The wedding will be Sunday at the St. John's Church.

Notice of the election of Louis C. Hesert, trustee of the Zion's classis of the synod of the northwest of the Reformed church in the U. S., for a term of three years, was filed with the county recorder today.

"KEEP YOUR BABY HOME."

Dr. Herman G. Morgan of Indianapolis, city sanitarian, appeals to mothers to protect infants during the hot months.

There was a marked decrease in infant mortality in Indianapolis last year and Dr. Morgan attributed it to the fact that mothers are learning how to care for their children. "Keep the baby at home," he advises. "Do not take the child to public places during the summer months. The child's place is in the home during this season, when extreme care should be taken to guard its health. Excessive heat is bad for grownups, but it is worse still for the baby. Dress the baby cool and comfortably. Do not allow it to fret or to eat uncooked fruits. Keep it out of the hot sun and feed it milk that has been kept cold on ice. Warm milk permits bacteria to multiply.

The infant's food should be kept cool to assure the purity of its milk. If these instructions are followed the infant mortality rate will be lower than ever this year." During the last few weeks few cases of infantile diseases have been reported to the health board and its members are expressing hope that the death rate of children will be low this summer.
