Entered at the postoffice in Decatur, Indiana, as second class matter.

An old school republican in an article in the Chicago Record-Herald sizes up the political situation in the following manner:

"Nationally speaking," he said, "there is nothing to it but Woodrow Wilson. I've been a republican all my life and have been in politics ever since I began to vote, but take it from me there are many like me, who see what the Wilson administration is doing and say: 'Good boy! Keep it up.' Believe me, if the president keeps on going as he has so far, there will be no use for the republicans to put up a candidate next time, for the reason that you'll find republicans whooping it up for Wilson—not as a democrat or as the nominee of a political party, but as the man who has taken hold of the vexatious problems that confront this country and is applying his solution."

The name of Congressman Barnhart of the Thirteenth district is frequently mentioned in connection with the democratic nomination for governor of Indiana in 1916. Another congressman who is receiving favorable mention for the honor is John A. M. Adair of Portland. The party will make no mistake by honoring either of these energetic and progressive democrats. They are men of pronounced convictions and courage, and they have the necessary experience in public life to fill the office of governor ably and well.—Columbia City Post.

The Daily Democrat is observing this month the celebration of its eleventh anniversary. The Weekly Democrat was established more than fifty a century ago and lived a long and useful life. The daily paper came as a result of modern progressiveness on the part of the people of Adams county and it has come to stay. Our readers would not go back to a weekly newspaper. They have helped us to make the Daily Democrat a sound business proposition and we take delight each year in celebrating our birthday.

It is now Mayor Christen. He assumed his new official position at noon today. Four years of opportunity to serve the people of his home city are before him. Associated with him are men whom we believe well qualified and we feel confident that the citizens of this fair city have not misplaced their trust. He will serve you faithfully at all times and much progress should be made during the next few years.

Somebody has had the temerity to call the republican county chairman of the Eighth district to a meeting at Muncie to elect a district chairman. Usually delegates are selected for this purpose and the call is issued in a formal way so all can know but maybe there are those who claim to be republicans that the leaders of the Eighth district no longer trust.—Portland Sun.

At last there has been produced an undisputedly American opera, "The Sun Dance," written by Zitkala Sa, a full-blooded Sioux Indian, the wife of Mr. R. T. Bonnin, an employee of the government on the Uintah Indian reservation at Vernal, Utah, collaborating with Professor W. Hanson. The opera, which was recently given at the academy on the reservation, tells the story of the return of the sun from its death during the winter, of the kindness of its light and warmth as it falls on the earth, of the plants and the trees that spring forth and grow under its rays, and of the whole world rejoicing in the sunshine. For years Professor Hansen had witnessed the annual sun dance of the Indians, had watched the rhythmic shuffling of their feet, the posturing of their bodies, in the historic pantomime that had come down to them from their forefathers, who danced the dance in the same fashion long before the white man appeared.
