INTERNATIONAL Harvester manure spreaders have a score of good features in their construction. Each one is the result of careful field experiment. An IHC spreader is low enough for easy loading, yet it has plenty of clearance underneath. The rear axle is well under the load, rear wheels have wide rims and Z-shaped tugs, insuring good traction under all conditions. Frame, wheels, and all driving parts are of steel. Apron tension is adjusted by a simple device. Winding of the beater is prevented and chisel-pointed. International manure spreaders are built in several styles and sizes, low or high, endless or return apron, for small farms or large. Examination will show sturdiness of construction in every detail. Repairs, if ever needed, may always be had of the local dealer. Examine International spreaders at the dealer's. We will tell you who sells them, and we will send you interesting catalogues.

Decorative Stains.
The affection of ornamented open shelves in dining rooms with "stains" is a decadent imitation of a custom in high favor in Germany when the silversmiths of Augsburg and Nuremberg, in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries devoted a large amount of invention to the production of drinking cups of various grotesque designs. In Germany today the cups that have this ancient origin are greatly prized by their lucky owners, and when occasionally sold bring high prices. Among the songs of Burns is one upon a whistle used by a Dane of the retinue of Anne of Denmark, when she came to England. This whistle was laid upon a table at the beginning of a drinking bout, and was won by the last drinker who was able to blow it. The Dane conquered all comers until Sir Robert Lovrie of Maxwellton—"Maxwellton banks are bonnie"—after three days and nights of a hard contest put the Dane under the table.

Sight-Seeing in New York.
A few days ago District Attorney Whitman got a letter from a woman in Connecticut saying that she would be in New York for a few days, naming the days, and was very anxious to see the district attorney. Would Mr. Whitman write and let her know when she could see him. The district attorney answered by letter, naming the day and hour, says the New York Sun. The visitor, a well-dressed, middle aged woman, appeared at the time set, and was shown at once into Mr. Whitman's office. "So you are District Attorney Whitman," said the woman. "I've always wondered how you looked. Now I'm going to see the Brooklyn bridge." And she left before the district attorney could reply.

Actors and Canes.
Does the use of a walking stick really spoil the actor's stage balance? questions a correspondent. In a stick shop in the Western Road, Brighton, I have noticed a quotation from a medical writer saying that the use of a properly made walking stick "improved the carriage and tended to uprightness of body." The fault of most walking sticks is that they are too short and tend to make one stoop. Our ancestors used sticks several inches taller than we do. I have one formerly used by a famous London physician that is nearly as long as a pilgrim's staff. And a few years ago the feminine parasol had a stick some four feet high.—London Chronicle.

Vast Armies of Commuters.
San Francisco has more commuters by far than any other city in the country, and the Southern Pacific, on its Oakland, Alameda, and Berkeley service, carries more commuters than any other railroad in the United States. The greatest commuter's road in the vicinity of New York is the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, which serves the New Jersey district commonly known as "The Oranges." In June this road handled 1,450,000 commuters; the Southern Pacific in June handled, on its two across-the-day ferries and electric systems, a total of 1,733,191.

Out of Doors.
To be out of doors is to have the nerves keyed to the proper pitch. If fresh air is not tonic to the nerves, why do moodiness and depression fall away, why do we become saner and more serene as we walk or ride or lie under the trees? Everybody, particularly if leading a sedentary life, should know that it is economy of time to be out of doors. Needed both for work and for health, out-door exercise, with its bath of fresh air and the bath of fresh air-cleansed blood it gives within, is as essential as the morning tub.

Satchel Thought Thief-Proof.
Hold-ups in New York city have inspired an inventor to devise a thief-proof satchel for bank messengers. In the satchel is a mechanism controlled by a combination lock that operates bells and a revolver loaded with blank cartridges. As long as the messenger holds the satchel in his hand the bells and revolver are inactive, but should he drop it, or any one try to take it away from him, the alarm would be instantaneous.

Found Plenty to Inspect.
A politician gave his cousin fresh from the "ould sod" a job as smoke inspector. He was not instructed as to his duties, but told to go out and inspect. At the end of his first month he made this report: "This is to certify that I have inspected the smoke of this city for the past 30 days. I have to report that I have found plenty of smoke and that the smoke is of good quality."—Saturday Evening Post.

Whited Sepulchres.
George Ade in the smoking room of the Emperor praised Brieux's play of "Les Avariés" or "Damaged Goods." "There is a good deal of truth in what Brieux says," declared Mr. Ade, "about most men being tarred with the same brush." He smiled and added: "The world holds a great many men in high esteem because they know how to take the bait off the hook without getting caught."

Teaching American Ways.
Miss Agga Andrup, a Danish journalist who has passed many years in America, is conducting a campaign in Denmark to encourage people to furnish and equip their homes in the American fashion. She is lecturing on the subject throughout the country, advising householders to do away with their many curtains and draperies which prevent light and air from getting into the houses.
