Keep the boys clean, physically and morally, and you won't have to bother about the men. They will be all right.

This bright, snappy spring morning makes one think that it's about time to clean up, paint up, fix up for the spring and summer season. A little paint goes a long way toward the attractive appearances of a city. Let's use a little.

Dr. Wiley, the famous food expert and chemist, says it is safe to kiss a girl on the cheek, but just the same it might make some difference as to whose girl she is. Many a fellow has tried that very thing and came out of it with a bum eye.

Victor Murdock has been chosen as chairman of the progressive national committee, to succeed Joseph M. Dixon. Murdock is one of the most aggressive men connected with the progressive movement. He is a fighter and sincerely devoted to the progressive cause. In his race for senator in Kansas he received 117,000 votes. This is a larger vote than Albert J. Beveridge received for senator in Indiana.—Goshen Democrat.

The South Bend Tribune has it that Congressman Barnhart will not be a candidate for renomination, that many others will, that he will seek the governorship and that he will support Attorney W. A. McInerny of South Bend for representative, in exchange for the lawyer's backing of him for state executive. My! My! how "Grandma Trib" has departed from her usual staid and sober ways. The story reads like one in a Hearst publication—and has about as much foundation as a good many other grapevine tales.—Rochester Sentinel.

Senator Kern, who made a bold and courageous fight for the primary law, will be one of the first beneficiaries—it insures his renomination to the United States senate next year. The Commoner congratulates him and all who contributed to the securing of this very important reform. Right has again triumphed, and the masses have again won another victory. As for the politician of Indiana, they have acted wisely in manifesting a willingness to trust the voters of the state. The rule of the people is spreading.—The Commoner.

Four men came to this office yesterday and told us they wished to contribute to the gymnasium fund, showing the great interest being manifested. We believe the movement will be a success and you are invited to lend your assistance. If you have any suggestions, if you know of any rooms that can be secured, any homes that could be converted into suitable quarters, let the committee know. If you wish to contribute see Mr. Kirsch or Mr. Mylott, or any other members of the committee, or give your subscription to one of the boys interested. It's an important "Doing" and deserving of any boost you can give it.

Memory.
My mind lets go a thousand things, like dates of wars and deaths of Kings.

And yet recalls the very hour—
'Twas noon by yonder village towne,
And on the last blue noon in May—
The wind came briskly up this way,
Crisping the brook beside the road;
Then pausing here, set down its load.

Of pine-scent, and shook lislessly
To petals from that wild rose tree
—Thomas Bailey Aldrich

"Publicity of Modern Advertising," was the subject of Mrs. Mary Congleton's paper for the Historical club last evening at the home of Mrs. S. E. Hite. The club will meet next Tuesday with Mrs. Fannie Peterson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Johnson entertained a company of friends at dinner in honor of Mrs. Johnson's twenty-fifth birthday anniversary. A fine dinner was served and Mrs. Johnson received many pretty gifts. Those present were the families of Charles Grimm, Fort Wayne; C. E. Burr, of Monmouth; G. Kurt, Dan Hill and Miss Lilah Lord, of Monmouth.

The Baptist Ladies' Aid society of Pleasant Mills will give an Easter social at Steele's hall Saturday evening April 3. Everybody is invited to attend.

LOOK FOR WOMAN

At Monroeville—Woman to Whom Attorney Jacobs Transferred Attention.

IS LOCATED THERE

Thought to Have Been the Basis of Jealousy on Part of Murderer.

Miss Lulu Wilson, who shot and killed Levi Jacobs of Van Wert, Ohio, was arraigned before Squire Mansfield yesterday and entered a plea of not guilty. The defendant will claim self-defense. Miss Wilson had been Jacobs' housekeeper since the death of his wife, who gave into her care her children. It is said that Jacobs and Miss Wilson had been engaged at one time, but that lately he had transferred his attentions to an Indiana woman. This woman has been located at Monroeville. The Van Wert Bulletin says:

"The place of the abode of the Indiana woman, said to have received the attentions of the victim and to have been the cause of the estrangement, which resulted in the alleged repudiation of the promise made by Jacobs to marry Miss Wilson, has been located at Monroeville. It is authentically reported that Prosecuting Attorney Good searched for the woman at Ft. Wayne and New Haven, and finally found her in Monroeville, where an interview was held. No statement has been given out concerning the interview, but the attitude of the state touching upon the point makes reasonable the deduction that the state will set up that the Indiana woman was an old friend and acquaintance of the dead man and that his visits to her home, while frequent, were not to be construed, if the truth is to prevail, as an intention of marriage, therefore, the opinions and beliefs of Miss Wilson on this score were mere suspicions, which are the root of the most deadly jealousy. It is known that Jacobs' last visit to the home of the Indiana woman was as late as Friday, the 19th instant, one week preceding the killing. It is known, too, in circles outside of the prosecution, that Jacobs and the Indiana woman were on extremely friendly terms and that they were in Fort Wayne together a number of times. And, it is known that the frequency of Jacobs' visits to the home of the Indiana woman were as often as three times a week."

WEPT FOR BABIES THE COURT NEWS

Mary Burrege, Picturesque Foreign Woman, Drinks Because of Worry

OVER HER CHILDREN THE APRIL TERM

In the War—They May be Dead—On Trial for Illegal Sale of Liquor.

"I would swear by my five babies in the old country that I did not keep whiskey for sale." These were the words of picturesque looking Mary Burrege, the foreigner, who, with her husband, Joe Burrege, were on trial today before Judge Smith, charged with illegal sale of liquor. The statement was made through the interpreter, Miss Rose Swett, of Fort Wayne. "They may be killed now in the war. I don't know." And the woman, speaking at this point in husky tones, took her handkerchief and wiped her tearful eyes. She was a picturesque figure in her red sweater, black head shawl. Her words were helped out by many gestures used in explaining.

"Whenever I think of my babies in the war, and not knowing whether they have been killed or not, it makes me suffer pain. And then I drink." For this reason, the woman explained, that she kept liquor in their car at Bobo. They are foreign laborers, and run a sort of commissary for the foreign workmen on the railroad. While the woman was speaking of her pain, her husband, who was sitting inside the bar rail, began to hold his stomach and to make an outcry as though in great pain, also, and it was necessary for the bailiff to rap for order. But no one gave him a drink to ease the pain. A jug of whiskey, as well as a small bottle, were on the table in court as evidence, and were in plain sight of the man.

The charge against the couple was filed March 8 by Floyd Death, Erie detective, who had gone to the car on Sunday and bought some drinks, also a quantity of whiskey in a bottle, doing this to get evidence against the suspected couple.

On the stand this morning the woman said through her interpreter that the men had come to their car in the morning and asked for a drink of whiskey, stating that they were sick and needed it. She gave them drinks and when they asked how much she would charge them she said she did not know anything about "charging." One thereupon took a dollar from his pocket and tendered it to her, and she says she did not take it, that he thereupon took a nickel and a quarter and laid it on the table in the car, said good-bye and went away. She said they did not take the money and that it was still in the car. She said that in the evening they also came back for whiskey, pleading sickness, and she gave them some in a bottle. She said, in explanation of her act, "If I thought they were sick and needed it I would give them a gallon for nothing."

The couple have five children in the old country—two sons and three daughters. The sons are in the war, she said. The couple was at Huntington about seven months ago and came to Bobo three or four months ago.

At the conclusion of the testimony of the defendants and other witnesses, the couple was found guilty and were each fined $50 and costs and sent to jail for thirty days. They have been in jail since their arrest, March 8. Failure to pay the fine and costs will make their stay in jail three months or more longer.

send, and I want everybody in Paducah to feel at home here. I believe I know what first-class service means and I'm going to furnish it as soon as I get things straightened out here."

"The Palmer's new manager did not come unprepared to improve the service. He brought with him Mr. Louis Gerstle, an experienced hotel man, who will be service man, or assistant manager under Mr. Townsend, who also brought a chef, second chef, baker and fry-man.

"I just want the people to be patient for a few weeks," said Mr. Townsend, "and I believe they will be satisfied. Of course we're going to rush these improvements as rapidly as possible."

"While Mr. Townsend has not made a final settlement with Mr. Stuart Simon, manager of the Palmer for eight years, the Indiana man is now actively in charge of the hotel. However, he will take over the reins Friday."
