A STRAIGHT ARM THRUST.

WHO invented the steamboat? Robert Fulton. But that was a long time ago and since then it has been improved and is now modern in every way. So it is with Chiropractic. Dr. Ross of Fort Wayne College has taken Chiropractic and from its crude way built it up until it stands forth as a Science all by itself. He is not the originator, for Chiropractic originated in the Old Country a long time before it was ever heard of in the United States. But he (Dr. Ross) is the founder of the Ross Straight Arm Thrust, the one Scientific thrust of the day.

"Some Day"

That's the time behind which those people who are always "going to" do things manage to hide.

The person that waits for "some day" before starting a savings account, will probably never start one AT ALL.

Make a resolve—make it NOW—to make a move in the direction of owning a bank account.

Don't merely INTEND to do it. DO IT.

We are ready to talk business with you.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK DECATUR, INDIANA

Members Federal Reserve Association.

TO ELIMINATE OVERDRAFTS

Dale J. Crittenger, who, as auditor of state, has control over the state banking department, has issued an appeal to Indiana bankers to eliminate the practice on the part of depositors of overdrawing their accounts. Letters giving the details have been received by the Decatur banks. Mr. Crittenger proposes a state-wide effort to reduce overdrafts. He urges that bankers in different counties meet to discuss the subject and take concerted action. Mr. Crittenger's appeal, addressed to the several hundred banks under state control, follows in part:

"The matter of overdrafts calls for a firm stand. One defense of the practice is that competitive conditions with the banks are such that it is hard to cope with the evil. I often hear that the bank's customer does not know how much money he will need, hence the bank allows him the overdraft privilege. I have also noted that the accounts most defended are the chronic ones. In this way the customer becomes his own loan committee without your permission.

HOW EDITOR WAS JAILED

Indianapolis, March 31.—(Special to Daily Democrat)—The story of how the editor of a fearless newspaper was jailed in quick time in Terre Haute because he attacked the organization now in trial was brought out piecemeal today from the judge who jailed the editor. Under cross examination by Attorney Daily, Judge Eli Redman, one of the principal defendants was forced to tell how he jailed Charles Clogston of the Terre Haute Post for contempt after Clogston in an article entitled "The Gang Picked Grand Jury" had attacked the methods of the court. Clogston was later freed from jail by Judge Anderson. Redman said he did not remember that Clogston was given only sixty minutes to the contempt citation or that Clogston was in jail without opportunity to offer bond.

ANOTHER SHIP TORPEDOED

London, March 31.—(Special to the Daily Democrat)—A second British liner has fallen victim to German submarine attacks. The Ellerman liner Flaminian, Glasgow to Cape Town, was torpedoed fifty miles southwest of the Sicily Islands Sunday morning. Her crew is safe. They were landed at Holy Head today by a Danish steamer. There were no passengers. The Flaminian is a 3,500 ton liner. She was a slow vessel with a speed of less than 12 knots an hour. The crew took to the boats before the vessel was torpedoed. She carried no wireless and first news of the torpedoing was received when the crew was landed today.

Fashion Puts On Her Spring Coat

It is a charming affair of Putty colored Bayadere Coating cut on full and easy lines. The collar is very distinctive with touches of black velvet and the belt and pocket flaps are a bit suggestive of the military. It is appropriately called the Daughter of the Regiment, and may be had in Labrador, Navy, Black, Military Grey Army Brown or Tan.

But Fashion has plenty of other coats, too.

There's one called the "Carmoor" which partakes of the looseness of the swagger English top coat. All styles and prices from $5.00 up.
