Annual clean-up day in Decatur is Wednesday, May 26. Don't forget the date and don't forget to be ready for the teams when they arrive in your alley.

Clean up the yard, and clean it before next Wednesday. That's the day the city teams will cart the dirt out of the alleys. Be sure to place the cans and rubbish in barrels, baskets or boxes so it can be handled the easier. Don't wait. Do it at once. Clean up.

Mayor Bell of Indianapolis has placed his veto on the efforts of sporting men who wished to turn the capital city into a tournament of prize fighting and gambling. He has written an open letter to every one concerned in which he says the police have been instructed to prevent any such events being conducted.

The proposed trip of farmers and Decatur business men next Thursday, when Mr. Martindale will lecture to the farmers on the good results of raising alfalfa is a good thing for every one concerned. Any farmer can and should take the time to listen to new ideas by men who know. Mr. Martindale is a farm expert and will tell the Adams county farmers how they can make more money with less injury to their land than the old way of farming. The business men will enjoy the day with the farmers. It's a good plan and should be encouraged.

Sir Edward Grey says he wishes to clear up a misunderstanding on our part of Great Britain's purposes toward American shipping. What he really wishes is to show us that our commerce has not suffered as much from British depredations as we think, and to persuade us that it is quite the correct and necessary thing for "his majesty's government" to go on as it is doing. This is part of the diplomat's regular job. On the whole, it is about as hard to deal with the slippery diplomat as it is with a brutal man of arms. Great Britain is too wise to blow up a ship with American citizens on board. On the other hand, Germany is helpless to go out on the high seas and grab off our shipping the way the British do. It is a comfort to feel that the administration at Washington is both able and willing to address each of these eager belligerents in the language they can best understand.—Indianapolis Star.

We congratulate the forty-eight young men and women who last evening received diplomas as graduates of the Decatur high school. You have completed the first period of your life and you are now ready to enter a field of usefulness. We sincerely hope and believe that you will prove equal to every task, though you will find some of which you did not learn in the text books. The pathway is open before you and your continued success or your failure depends largely on your own efforts. Jump in now, with your sleeves rolled up and not with any idea that the diploma will insure you the best of it. Your only advantage is that you have learned to study. Now you must learn to use the knowledge obtained. Select the work you like best and then work and smile. But work.

"A joyous time was spent last evening at the M. J. Welker home when they entertained Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Love, the former pastor of the U. P. church in Decatur. Many friends of the country charge and the city charge were very glad to meet the minister and his wife for the purpose of having another old time chat. Wednesday evening they were royally welcomed into the prayer service where they also saw many of their best friends. Although it rained on Thursday the people of the country charge could not be held back. They put up a brave struggle and faced the storm trip into town in order to say "Hello" to the Reverend and his wife. On Thursday at twelve o'clock a sumptuous dinner was served for the party by Mrs. Welker with Miss Ethel Potts as assistant hostess. When they departed for their home, which is at Pleasant Lake, Ind., they were accompanied by the party who bid them a warm and hearty welcome back to Decatur.—Contributed.

THE HEARING IS CONCLUDED

replied Ross. "The estimate is based on actual performance of the road and that shows that a saving of $35,000 would have been made if the terminal had been located at Decatur."

"How far have you progressed with your negotiations with the city of Decatur?" Northrup asked.

"They have simply told me what they would do," Ross replied.

Northrup: "Has it been put in writing?"

Ross: "No."

Northrup: "Have you asked them to put it in writing?"

Ross: "No. I couldn't do that. I was unable to promise them what I could do. I simply have the word of a number of business men and I think I can depend on them."

Northrup: "Are conditions on the Clover Leaf the same as it was thirty years ago, when the terminal was built at Delphos?"

Ross: "No, conditions are continually changing. New problems are coming up each year."

Northrup: "Then it is possible that conditions may so change that by next year you will want to move the terminal back to Delphos?"

Ross: "Certainly, anything may happen in the next year. I know that based on all good railroad practice an don the opinion of good railroad experts, the terminal should be at Decatur, or at some other place near the half-way point between Toledo and Frankfort. The change should be made in the interests of the bondholders."

Ross testified that from a safety standpoint, it was important to shorten the Delphos-Frankfort division.

"The longer you work the men, the more liable they are to make mistakes," Ross said.

HERE COMES THE BRIDE

To the people who think the bride-description is over done in the average wedding write-up we refer the following flowery description taken from the Farmington, Mo. Times.

"The bride is a young lady of wondrous fascination and remarkable attractiveness, for with manners as enchanting as the wand of a siren and a disposition as sweet as the odors of flowers and spirits as joyous as the caroling of birds and mind as brilliant as the trees that blithely adorn the brow of winter and with heart as pure as dew drops trembling in violets, she will make the home of her husband a paradise of enchantment like the lovely home of her girlhood, where the heaven-toned harp of marriage with its harp of love striking of devotion and fond endearments, sent forth the sweetest strains that ever thrilled senses with the rhythmic plusing of ecstatic rapture.

WOULD NOT ADMIT POLICY.

Washington, D. C., May 22—(Special to Daily Democrat)—Chairman Walsh of the industrial relations commission tried for hours today to make J. D. Rockefeller, jr., admit that it was his business policy to avoid direct touch with anything disagreeable; that the witness made no suggestion concerning the Colorado strike except indirectly and that his methods were the same when he took a hand in the affairs of any concern his family was interested in. Rockefeller would not admit this.

HOW TO BE A OPTIMIST

The scene was then transferred to the Knights of Pythias home, where forty-eight seniors received their several hundred guests. A double receiving line of the graduates circling from the door through the reception room and parlor back to the stairway, was formed. The guests after congratulating the graduates, went to the large assembly room upstairs where they mingled. The orchestra played and there was dancing. At booths, presided over by the seniors, cooling drinks of punch were served with waiters. The hall was prettily decorated in the seniors' colors of green and white.

The seniors were assisted in serving by the Misses Dora Davis, Fannie Heller, Naomi Durkin, Anita Swearingner, Gladys Flanders, David Hensley, Walter Rilling, Edrian Stephenson, Dave Thompson and Ramona Smith.

PTOMAINE POISONING

In F. J. Stults Family From Eating Canned Beans.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Stults and two children, and Lawrence Meyers and Ollie Schnepf two painters working at the Stults home, are just recovering from a severe case of ptomaine poisoning. This resulted from eating canned pork and beans last Monday. Mrs. Stults recovered sufficiently to be up yesterday for the first since the attack. Mr. Schnepf who ate more heartily of the beans than the others was the worst and was said to be very sick indeed. He has not yet fully recovered. Mr. Stults is a son of John Stults of this city and lives northeast of the city.

NOTICE, BIBLE CLASS.

You can't make good cream with a dirty cream separator

CREAMERYMEN AND BUYERS all over the country are demanding better cream, and if you sell cream it is to your advantage to deliver the best possible cream.

IF YOU MAKE BUTTER IT is equally important that your cream be first-class. Good butter can't be made from poor cream.

THE ONE FACTOR THAT most largely determines the quality of cream is the sanitation of the cream separator bowl in which it is separated.

THE EASE WITH WHICH the De Laval can be thoroughly washed and kept in a sanitary condition is one reason why creamerymen prefer cream separated by the De Laval and it is likewise one of the reasons why butter made from De Laval cream has scored highest at the National Dairy Show for over twenty years.

THE CONSTRUCTION OF the De Laval is such that it can be completely taken apart for washing. There are no tubes, crevices, holes or corrugated surfaces such as are found in other machines, and which are very hard to clean.

THE DISCS ARE WASHED AS a single piece, and the whole machine can be thoroughly cleaned in five minutes.
