"This man must win!"

"He's the man who, from the beginning of time, has proved to the world that it can be done. You can check him but he'll come back and come back until you wreck him. His will is made of whalebone. It has snap but won't snap. Bend it as much as you please but watch out for the rebound! He'll thrive so long as he's alive. The length of his fight is the limit of his faith. It takes more than one hit to make him quit!"

Others have money in the bank. Are you going to say "you can't save?"

You can if you will.

From My Narrow Little Window

By THE HOOSIER OBSERVER

From the Funny Corner of Our Eye

If poetic license cost as much as marriage license or a junk dealer's license, there would be fewer hard working, "manuscript-piled-under" magazine editors. Why don't some of them boom a bill to that effect?

Barnes—What did old Moneybags do when he hear a Duke was court-ing his daughter?

Jones—He gave the Duke a decided check.

Barnes—Good for him!

Jones—Yes, the check called for a million dollars.

Funny—Miss Jones is getting very jealous nowadays.

Jim—How's that?

Funny—Why, she read in the paper about her fiancé being "squeezed for money" and she almost went into a fit over it.

Von Countinburg (drawing himself up proudly)—Do you know that in the old country I would be a count?

Pat—Be jabbers and you might be a count in th' ould country, but ye're no 'count 't all in this country.

"How long," queried the doctor of the consumptive-looking individual, "have you been in this stage?"

"O," replied that cheerful invalid, "I've been in this stage long enough to learn how to drive a hack." And his voice trailed off into a series of hollow coughs.

"I am going to change my boarding place," growled the cow.

"What's the matter now? Doesn't your grub suit you? Why, I'm stuck on mine," said the mule, as he choked down a thistle with his hay.

Just then the farmer came along, tossed some hay mixed with burdocks to the cow and passed on, leaving her to her bitter ruminations.

Little Harold was learning his letters. Coming to "T" he halted. "What was it we had for supper?" his father asked, suggestively.

"Mush!" shouted the little fellow.

Pete—These Anti-Saloon Leaguers had best be careful, else they might get arrested fer cruelty to animals.

Sam—How's that?

Pete—Why, fer deprivin' "blind tigers" of "eye-openers."

Darwin—Even monkeys were known to drink "high balls."

Adam—What!

Darwin—Yes, when they got thirsty they ran up a cocoanut tree, grabbed off a nut, broke it open, and drank the water!

The society reporter was never a dressmaker, who wrote: "The bride was dressed in a flowing gown of white mohair."

A village slouch, with more motherly love than tidiness and cleanliness once said:

"I'd go through fire for my children."

"Huh!" remarked a pessimistic old neighbor. "They better drag her through the river once or twice."
