Does Pain Interfere?
There is a remedy
Sloan's Liniment

Read this unsolicited grateful testimony—

Not long ago my left knee became lame and sore. It pained me many restless nights. So serious did it become that I was forced to consider giving up my work when I chanced to think of Sloan's Liniment. Let me say—less than one bottle fixed me up.
Chas. C. Campbell, Florence, Tex.

Gums shrinking?
Danger ahead!

Go now to a mirror and examine your mouth? Do your gums look "rinsed out," shrunken? Do you see a jagged appearance in the gum-line?

If so, see your dentist. He will tell you that you have pyorrhea, and that to save your teeth you will have to fight this dread disease at once.

From pyorrhea come by far the greater part of all tooth troubles. Unless treated and checked, it will result not only in the shrinking and malformation of your gums and of the bony structure into which your teeth are set, but in the loss of the teeth themselves.

A specific for pyorrhea has been discovered recently by dental science, and is now offered for daily treatment in Senreco Tooth Paste. Senreco combats the germ of the disease. Its regular use insures your teeth against the attack or further progress of pyorrhea.

But Senreco does more. It cleanses the teeth delightfully. It gives them a whiteness distinctive of Senreco alone. Its flavor is entirely pleasing, and it leaves in the mouth a wonderful sense of coolness and wholesomeness.

Start the Senreco treatment before pyorrhea grips you for good. Details in folder with every tube. A two-ounce tube for 25c is sufficient for 6 weeks' daily treatment. Get Senreco of your druggist today; or send 4c in stamps or coin for sample tube and folder. Address The Senreco Remedies Company 503 Union Central Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET.
A Famous Song and Its Composer.

Samuel Woodworth, the son of a modest Massachusetts farmer, was born in Scituate, that state, January 19, 1785. While the family were poor and had no luxuries, their lot was no worse than that of the ordinary New England family, and they lived in comparative comfort.

While his life was a succession of ambitions, attempts and failures, his fame rests secure on his faithful portrayal of the old fashioned well and weather-beaten well-sweep, universally to be found on the farms of that day.

While living in New York City, on Duane street, he came home one July day, nearly overcome with the heat, and with nothing to drink but the tepid water of the city—ice being unknown in those days in the summer months—he exclaimed to his wife: "What would I not give this moment for a long draught from the old oaken bucket hanging in my father's well!"

"Samuel!" replied his wife, "wouldn't that be a good subject for a poem?"

Forthwith he sat down—the thronging recollections of his childhood crowded thick upon him—and that charming idyll of time bucolic New England sprang into shape, less life and fame. The music is said to have been adapted from an ancient Scottish melody by Frederick Smith. Woodworth died in 1852.

This song, like so many of the heart lyrics of an elder day, is found in the famous song collection called "Heart Songs"—which this paper is offering nearly free of cost to its readers.

We recommend them to look for the Heart Songs coupon, to be found elsewhere in this paper today—and learn the terms upon which this remarkable book can be had.

POETRY IN THE TRENCHES

War Seems to Have Stimulated the Muse of the Men Who Are Doing the Fighting.

After all the unpleasant talk about night clubs it is refreshing to know that the sign of the Flambeau and Stars in Devonshire street, Bloomsbury, is favored by soldiers who have run home from the trenches for a few hours. For that is the poetry book shop—and poetry now is supposed to be mere dunnage.

But that is by no means the case. There is a demand for neat little books to fit the tunic pocket. It cannot be said any poet is in more demand than another. What is wanted is a portable volume of the authentic voice, explains Mr. Harold Munroe. To see several soldiers in their Sam Brownes, standing in a dim light before the crowded shelves in the shop where not a single popular novel can be found, even by accident, choosing their wartime poetry, is proof enough that this is no ordinary war.

But the poets themselves show that. Not a few of those whose volumes appear on the shelves are in the army or navy, and some already have died on service. War seems to be even a cause of poetry, for there is a colored broadside, "Ballad of the Gloster and the Goeben," by Maurice Hewlett, "Singsongs of the War," by the same author, "The King's Highway" (another broad sheet), by Henry Newbolt, "Antwerp," by Ford Madox Hueffer, one of the finest tributes to Belgium yet written, "Soliloquies of a Subaltern" (war poems written in the trenches), and "Battle Songs for the Irish," in fact poetry does not seem to be at all hit by the war, but rather to be "doing its bit."—London Daily Mail.

LAND IS TO BE RECLAIMED

System of Irrigation Will Restore Fertility to the Valley of the Euphrates.

For several years before the war began the Turkish government was building irrigation dams across the Euphrates, reopening the old Babylonian canals which had long been filled with sand, and building new canals to reclaim the country. When the war broke out work upon this great irrigation project ceased. After the war it will doubtless be resumed, and one may easily imagine the changes which will then take place. All of that wonderfully fertile valley will be reclaimed. The wide plains, where now the herds of the Bedouin find scant pasturage, will be dotted with date groves and grain fields, and millions of people will find homes where now but few can gain a livelihood. Again Baghdad, the city of the caliphs, will be as glorious as when the famous Haroun-al-Raschid used to wander in disguise about the streets, and when Sinbad the Sailor made it his home. The buried cities will be uncovered, revealing the treasures long hidden among the ruins. The history of modern Egypt will be repeated in Babylonia. The desert and the swamps will again become a veritable Garden of Eden as in the ancient days.—Christian Herald.

Heroism at Home.

The foreign war absorbs public attention—absorbs it so fully that brave deeds of personal heroism here at home pass by and get almost no notice at all. However, once in a while something turns up so heroic that there is no ignoring it. Read the following from the Palm Beach special dispatch in Monday's New York papers:

"Mr. — was sitting down to a dinner, of which he was host, at the Beach club last night, when he got a telegram, announcing his father's death. He arose without a word, sent back an explanation he was ill, and the dinner continued."

Wasn't that splendid? Just suppose the reporter had missed it and that such display of nerve, of courtesy, of inheritance, had missed the public eye, or even that the guests had been told to disperse and buy their own dinners. Perish the base thought.—Hartford Courant.

Team Went On With Driver Dead.

The story of how a couple of horses, drawing a load of timber, traveled from Blackfriars Wharf to Mile End with the dead driver sitting in his seat holding the reins, was told at the Poplar (Eng.) coroner's court recently, when an inquest was held on the driver. The dead man's companion said that deceased was all right when they left the wharf. Witness was in front with another pair-horse van, and the horses which were in charge of the deceased followed through the city without mishap. The medical evidence showed that deceased's heart was of the remarkable weight of 36 ounces, and in it there was a rupture one and a half inches long. "Death from natural causes" was the verdict returned.

Breaks Cork Leg, He Sues.

The fracture of an artificial leg is made the basis for a $200 claim, of which notice was filed with the city council by Frank L. Davison, who says his manufactured limb was broken when he fell on an icy sidewalk in East Seventh street near John street.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Many Japanese Toys.

The Japanese are now manufacturing yearly about $50,000,000 worth of toys of which 40 per cent are for exportation.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle.

Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective.

They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.
