September 18th is the date for the Marshall meeting in Decatur. The vice president of the United States is one of the great men of the nation and he will bring you a message worth listening to. Watch for the hour and the detailed plans which will be announced within a day or so.

Phillip Zocher was the principal speaker at a democratic meeting held at St. John's church in Root township last evening and even though it rained hard all the evening the crowd was a large one and they listened attentively. Judge R. K. Erwin and Judge O'Rourke of Fort Wayne also took part in the meeting.

Candidate Hughes continues to shiver over a cold and uncertain route through the south, scolding and "crabbing" and disgusting those who hear him with the exception of an occasional partisan. He has so far declined to answer the questions of how he would have improved conditions by adopting any different plans than those used by the president. The great trouble is that he won't without first conferring with those "big interest" fellows who control him.

"Yet the president has sought to favor neither side in this controversy he has indeed expressed his desire to go to any length possible to preserve industrial peace. He has acted for the larger interests of the public and his course has not met with the unequal approval of the workers or of the railroad managers but it has met with the general approval of the public and the public believes there is nothing unreasonable in the proposal to make an eight-hour day the basis for computing wages."—Binghampton Press.

The republican candidate very wisely refrained from calling our prosperity a "Fool's Paradise" during his trip through the smiling plenteous fields of the Golden West. A few years ago, when the walls of homes were papered with mortgages, when corn was burned for fuel, when interest rates were exorbitant and capital rarely ever left its vaults, when the McKinley and Dingley and Payne tariffs were in effect, when the money of the country could be cornered at the will of a few financial buccanniers, when railroad tracks were covered with rust, when school houses were so few and so on and so on, Republican orators had the people deceived as to the source and cause and whereabouts of prosperity.

Not so today, when all such conditions have changed and the people have become wise to plunderers and shy of deceivers.

The President, he is a lucky man, these days. He has nothing to do. A few trifles take up a few minutes of his time, but the rest is all his own. He merely has to keep watch of legislation; prod Congressmen; read the reports from the Mexican frontier, and give the consequent orders; confer with the members of the Cabinet; try to get competent men to serve on the joint Mexican Commission; make new complaints to Great Britain and Germany; talk for an hour to 640 railway leaders in the East Room; confer with all the railway presidents; keep up with his correspondence; receive delegations; read republican speeches. Time would hang heavy on his hands were it not for the presence of a former judge in the White House grounds who throws stones at the windows and cries out that the man living there is incurably inefficient. But for this diversion, President Wilson might be able to resist a feeling of ennui.—New York Post.

There were several mission contests. One was the recognition of flags of various nations; another the forming of names of missionaries from jumbled letters. Each one present also wrote a letter to each of the three girls to take with them to school to open and read should the spirit of loneliness creep upon them, each one receiving nine or ten letters.

The courtship of the newlyweds began when Mr. Sanders was a student at Purdue university from which institution he graduated in the class of 1914.—Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette. The groom is a son of B. F. Magley of Whitley county, a cousin of the Magleys here.

Davison the round table discussion on the department of foreign missions. Mrs. Jessie Deam will have the October meeting. The spacious lawn of the L. A. Holthouse home on First street, with its pretty shrubbery and blooming plants was an ideal place for the garden party given yesterday afternoon from three to six o'clock by Mrs. Holthouse, Mrs. E. G. Coverdale, Mrs. Dan Niblick and Mrs. May McMahon. Of the seventy guests there were several from out of town, they being Mrs. Charles Merriman of Cardwell, Mo.; Mrs. Charles X. Niblick, Fort Wayne; Miss Martha Schuler of Detroit, Mich., and Miss Elizabeth Stewart of Omaha, Neb. Amusements were appropriate for the garden setting and two contests were unusually good. Leaves of various kinds were pressed and mounted on card board and seeds dried and placed in boxes. These were pinned to trees and shrubs, or set in convenient places, and green cards given, with numbers corresponding thereto, on which the names were written as they were identified. Mrs. J. S. Bowers won the prize in the leaf contest and Mrs. Robert Case in the seed contest. A picnic supper was served.
