

Why does a painter dip his cut hand in turpentine?

Simply because he knows that Turpentine sterilizes the wound, leaving it in the right condition for rapid healing. Grandmother used Turpentine to allay infection, to relieve colds, headaches, pains and many other troubles. She knew what a fine home remedy it was.

is the modern form of Turpentine. It will do just the same things only better, because it also contains Menthol and Camphor, two other old-time remedies. Turpo hasn't a bite, nor a sting. It is a pure, golden, delightful-smelling salve that is perfectly safe to use. It is the only Turpentine Ointment.

Turpo is a fine remedy for: cuts, burns, wounds, chapped skin, colds, catarrh, hay fever, headaches, earaches—for all sorts of pains and aches.

You can get Turpo from your druggist for 25c, 50c and $1 a jar. If he can't supply you, send us his name and address and we'll send you a sample free.

Makes Retail Price of Groceries High—Cut Out in Some Places.

INDIANA MERCHANTS

Not Living Up to Rules of Food Administration May Lose Business.

Indianapolis, Nov. 22—Indiana retail grocers who are failing to live up to the recommendations of the Merchant Economy committee of the Indiana State Council of Defense, whose responsibilities in effecting commercial savings in matters of delivery, cash payment and eliminating "approval orders" are now a part of the food administration, may find their path persistently growing more difficult. Inspectors representing the food administration of Indiana have instructions to report all such violations, to the end that the attitude of the offender may be known and registered at headquarters. It is the position of the food administrator, H. E. Barnard, that merchants unwilling to enter into the voluntary saving arrangements will be unable and unlikely to pass on to the consumers of food stuffs the benefit as represented in a reduced average price for commodities.

The Indiana State Council of Defense has requested county councils to co-operate with the county food administrators in pointing out failures or refusals to abide by these emergency measures, to the end that all moral pressure possible be applied before the stern hand of the law as directed by the federal food control bill lays so heavily upon the delinquents as to put them completely out of business.

A large majority of Indiana retail grocers have membership in one or more of the associations which through authorized delegates met at Washington recently to confer with food administration officials relative to the conduct of their business. The conference went on record unanimously in favor of the following policy: "We will, whether licensed or not, co-operate with the U. S. Food Administration in every way possible to insure the enforcement of its rules and regulations and the success of its conservation plans, and deliver to the consumers of the United States the necessities of life as cheaply as it lies within our power to do."

An important recommendation developing from the conference was the limitation of deliveries to one a day to any one family or one any one route. The cost of delivery has long been recognized as an important factor in the retail price of groceries and consumers can help reduce the cost of living by planning their orders so that one delivery will satisfy a day's needs. The grocery trade favors fewer deliveries as an economy measure and the support of the housewife is earnestly enlisted to make that economy possible.

HERMAN MILLER

At Kellyfield Writes Interesting Letter of Camp Life—Lots of Work.

AEROPLANE DIVISION

Safest Says French Soldier—Many Aeroplanes and Balloons in Camp.

The following letter from Herman Miller was written to his sister, Miss Emma Miller:

San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 12, '17.

Hello, Everybody:

Well, I just happened to come over to the Y. M. C. A. (just as if it was something unusual. Ha! Ha!), but I came over pretty early and I found a place at one of the desks desolated, so I took advantage of it and now I am trying to typewrite you some of my famous shorthand, with a pencil that writes with black water. Well, in fact, all that a person has to do here to get some ink, and black ink, too, is to set a basin of water out in the open and wait for Texas. What they call Texas here is a whirlwind or small cyclone of black dirt and dust. This is Monday night and a beautiful night it is. Well, it is not exactly night; it is just evening, 6:06.

Yesterday, Sunday, I was ordered or detailed to leave here for some unknown destination, but was rejected because I had not received my O. D. suits. O. D. are woolen suits, "Olive Drab." We are liable to leave here now any day or hour under sealed orders, but our destination will not be revealed to us until we are there or about there. Believe me, Uncle Sam is doing things up brown, and I sure do hope that I will get a chance to help toast old Kaiser Bill's neck.

This is a nice warm place but, of course, like any other place, it has its faults. Such dust and mosquitoes. But these things don't bother me. There is plenty of good water here to keep clean with.

We moved this afternoon from the 6th provisional to another provisional. But I am sorry to say I don't know what the number of our new one is, but that doesn't matter, because I haven't received a "single" letter since I have been here. Have been here just one week today. When you write, send my mail to the 6th until I send you further notice of my change in address.

The victrola is playing about sixty miles per hour. Say, if you would like to do one a favor, just stop using the Daily Democrat for a tablecloth and send them to me once a week. About all the fellows get papers from home. So you can see why I want the Democrat.

I wish that all of you folks could see the aeroplanes here. It sure is a sight. As seven o'clock this morning I counted fourteen machines up at one time, besides two large observation balloons. Yes, you bet, this is a busy place, just a whirl and buzz of motors from morning until night. Do you ever hear anything of Harry and of Battery B?

Well, you can just bet that WE are going to make German Bill take out civilization papers.

I haven't been over to San Antonio yet, and I'll tell you why. Because we haven't had a pay day, and besides I am a typical soldier—broke. Ha! Ha!

Says, Sis, I don't see why you didn't write me. You need not wait to get a letter from me before you can get an inspiration to drop me a few lines. You can write just as often as you please, and it won't make me a bit mad; now, that's the fact, too. You see I am just as bad as ever. When I get started to writing, I just can't stop, it seems.

I hope I will get a chance to go to France before long, because that would be some trip, and worth several years of college education to me. You see I am in the highest branch of service in the U. S. army. We will always be stationed several miles back of the firing line or range. I got this straight from a fellow that fought thirteen months in France. He was in the infantry, but was wounded and discharged. Now he is in Kellyfield. He speaks at the "Y" now and then. He was in a regiment of 1,200 men. After thirty-six hours of fighting only thirty-eight came out sound. He says that the aviation (see) is the safest branch of service, by far, than any other branch of service in any army, and I guess that is why he is here.

I thought that we would get our job for which we signed up for here, but I was mistaken. Here is the way it is. Port Thomas is a recruiting station for all branches of service. Kellyfield is a training camp, and school, and supply station (for men). From here we are all split up and sent to different places, where needed, according to our trade. I hope I get to go to school to study aeroplane engines. These fellows are picked. If I am lucky enough to get this, then I can demand a good job from the government when the war is over. If I am lucky enough to stay here long enough I will, no doubt, get that chance. But I really expect to be out of here by the 15th of this month, and that isn't long—about the day you get this letter.

Was working in the kitchen this morning, up until noon, but I had a good job, and that was to fire the stoves, only two; pretty soft, eh? Ha! Ha!

Oh, this army is just what you make it and you can take it from me I make it pretty easy. We drill less than any other branch in the army. The drilling that we do get is just to keep us in good physical and maybe mental condition. And we don't get any too much of it.

Some fellow is playing on the organ (we have a piano, too), and it just sounded like a dog howling for his dead master. I wish that he would use a soft pedal, or that some one would choke him. I mean his musical abilities. But no joking about it he really can play. You see I am writing "just to pass the time away." Well, I haven't passed much time away since I began this letter. Ha! Ha! And I expect that you realize that by this time. Can you cipher it out, or do you have to take it to someone to translate it. Well, if you don't, I will say right here and now that you can decipher shorthand. I'll bet you think that I have struck a gas well, but you see it costs just as much for me to send you a short letter as it does to send you a long one. This paper is free.

When I was at Fort Thomas all a person could hear sung was "Indiana" and now when I get down here the first thing they sing at the Y. M. C. A. is "Indiana." And then the man in charge asks all those from Indiana to raise their hands, and from all corners of the large tent, one could see the hands—brave and noble hands—of the red-blooded Indians. Believe me, a soldier from Indiana is always welcome, no matter where he should go—down here and at Fort Thomas.

If you put this little bundle of natural gas in the Democrat, I wish that everybody would excuse my mistakes because there are many a mother's son here waiting for his chance to write home, or maybe to "someone" else. You can see that by putting this in the paper would save me a great many three-cent stamps, which look large to a soldier before pay-day. Besides, it will give my friends a chance to know where and how I am.

Oh, yes, I forgot to tell you that the mosquitoes are so large here that an aviator, the other day, mistook one for his machine and was flying around for about an hour before he discovered his mistake. Well it just saved Uncle Sam a little gas and oil bill. Of course you may believe as much of this as you please and forget the rest.

Believe me, we sure do eat here at Kellyfield. If we don't get enough the first time to satisfy our wolfish appetites why we just trot back and get the second hand-out. Well, you can feel assured that I get my share and maybe then some. But you must stand up and fight for your hungry appetite in the army.

Well, Sis, I guess it's about time for me to give some one else a chance to write home. When you write, try to outdo me when it comes to a long letter or a bag full of Texas gas.

With love to one and all at my "Home, Sweet Home," I am your Soldier brother,

HERMAN.

VINOL CREATES STRENGTH

Positive—Convincing Proof

It is all very well to make claims, but can they be proven? We publish the formula of Vinol to prove the statements we make about it.

It contains: Cod Liver and Beef Peptones, Iron and Manganese Peptones, Iron and Manganese Citrate, Lime and Soda Glycero-phosphates, Casein.

Any doctor will tell you that the ingredients of Vinol as published above, combine the very elements needed to make strength.

All weak, run-down, overworked nervous men and women may prove this at our expense.

There is nothing like Vinol to restore strength and vitality to feeble old people, delicate children and all persons who need more strength.

Try it. We will return your money without question; that proves our fairness and your protection.
