Entered at the postoffice in Decatur, Indiana, as second-class matter.

A hundred and fifty men gathered yesterday afternoon in a local church and discussed how they could make Decatur a better city in which to live. They were earnest, God fearing, splendid citizens and whether or not you agree with their opinions, you must admit that such meetings are sure to result in improved conditions. Results will come from these gatherings of the men and they will be real results that will help the boys and girls and the young men and women of this community more than you have any idea.

Three heatless Mondays are better than eight any way and we should be thankful that the department found it possible to shorten the order more than half. It is estimated that the three Mondays and the five days which preceded them cost a billion dollars in loss of wages and manufactured goods. But it did the work and that's the big thing. Three and a half million tons of coal were saved in the eight days and every ship in Atlantic harbors was moved out to sea. Besides this, the suffering of the people in their homes was reduced to a minimum and the people now realize that it was most necessary that this drastic step be taken.

When the call comes for the Third Liberty Loan drive, every man and woman should help put it over in this splendid county. This is not any one man's war. It is your war and upon its result hinges much for you and yours for the future. Picture if you can this nation controlled by an European power, the paying of a great indemnity in addition to the cost of the war, regulation of the commerce on the high seas, to say nothing of the great loss of life and the ruin of every value in this nation before a German victory comes and then you will realize that it is necessary that every one does everything he can do to win the war and win it quickly. Let's settle our differences of opinion some other time—not now.

The jury which tried Joseph Bell, former Indianapolis mayor and twenty-nine others in federal court, failed to agree and were discharged Sunday after twenty-two hours. It is said the jury stood six for acquittal and six for conviction and the result while not the vindication that the former mayor and his friends deserved, shows at least a very serious doubt as to his

The sixty-ninth birthday anniversary of Mrs. Jesteene Hocker, of Monroe, was celebrated in a very happy way Sunday with a reunion of her children and grandchildren. A fine dinner was served at noon and the remaining hours of the day spent in a very delightful social way. Twenty-four were present. These were Mr. and Mrs. John Hocker, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hocker, of this city; Mrs. R. B. McKeeman, of Fort Wayne; Otis Hocker, these being her children and their husbands and wives. Grandchildren present were Thetus and Jesteene Hocker, Mabel Hocker, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Kessler and daughter, Evelyn; Walter, Gregg, Webster, John, Electa, Francile and Lucile Oliver; Miss Pearl Strickler.

STRIKERS GO BACK TO WORK

(United Press Service) New York, Feb. 18—(Special to Daily Democrat)—Striking carpenters in the shipyards in New York and vicinity to the number of 6,000 will be back in their places by noon today, according to John Stuart, in charge of the local offices of the marine wood workers union.

"The president, having requested the return to work of members of our union, the members of the local board are getting in touch with them at their different meetings and advising them to return to work," said Stuart. "We are telling them that it is their patriotic duty as American citizens to return. There are about 6,000 members of our union on strike in Greater New York."
