the close score of 1 to 0. Bucher and Boese were the batteries for the locals, Bucher holding the Buckeye bunch to three swats, while Decatur got five. The fielding on both sides was almost airtight. An error combined with umpire's close decision gave Willshire their lone tally. In the last inning, Decatur had two on and one out, but failed to score. A week ago Sunday the locals beat the Ohio aggregation 12 to 7.

CLAIMS A REDUCTION

(United Press Service)
New York, Sept. 2.—(Special to Daily Democrat)—The fair price campaign is getting results, declared federal food administrator Arthur Williams today. He claims a reduction in meat prices from reports of women investigators in the community councils. According to Williams, his committees are enforcing the limited prices of profit for retailers.

Williams credited the women of the country with forcing the reduction by their response to government appeals.

A meeting of wholesale dealers will be held tomorrow.

TREATY CANNOT BE AMENDED

That Is Senator Hitchcock's View After Conference With the President.

OPTIMISTIC ABOUT TREATY

Keen Observers at Washington Feel That All Efforts to Amend the Treaty Will Prove Futile.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Senator Hitchcock, who is leading the fight in the senate for the ratification of the peace treaty, has issued a statement to the effect that he and the other friends of the treaty in the senate are so confident of their ability to defeat any amendments on the floor of the senate that they are willing to go to a vote this week.

Senator Hitchcock's statement was given out just after he left the White House where he had conferred with the president about the treaty.

The conference with the president followed a red-letter day in the senate for the friends of the treaty.

The speech of Senator McCumber, one of the veteran Republican leaders, against the Shantung amendment adopted by the majority of the foreign relations committee, was one of the most effective arguments that has been made against the Shantung amendment in particular as well as against amendment or reservation that would necessitate sending the treaty back to the powers.

It is the general opinion among the keenest observers in Washington that Senator McCumber has more than offset any headway that the opponents of the treaty may have made by reason of the fact that they control the foreign relations committee.

"To my mind, Senator McCumber has put the final nail in the Shantung controversy," said Senator Hitchcock in his statement.

Continuing, Senator Hitchcock said: "I told the president that the Shantung amendment put on in the foreign relations committee, would be defeated by a decisive vote in the senate. I told him that at least 12 Republican senators would vote against the amendment."

"The president seemed pleased with the situation in the senate and the country. I told him we helped move the treaty forward today by getting rid of the Fall amendments. I suggested to the committee that it might as well vote on all as one of them."

"My position is that it is best to get the treaty in the senate, regardless of what is done to it in the committee, where the opponents are in the majority."

"The country cannot be settled until this treaty is disposed of in the proper way. Nothing will be settled as long as it is pending."

"That is the basis of all our troubles now," said Bernard Baruch, who was listening to the statement of Mr. Hitchcock. Mr. Hitchcock responded: "Yes, and we will not get rid of them until we act. The country is rapidly coming to that conclusion. The people want action."

"My prediction is," Mr. Hitchcock added, "that each amendment put on by the foreign relations committee will be voted down when it comes up. We have at least 40 Democrats and 20 Republicans who will stand together against some amendments. The vote will not be so large on others but large enough to kill them."

"About forty Democrats are working with the 20 Republicans to get the treaty out of the committee."

Mr. Hitchcock predicted that the treaty would be ratified by the last of September.

"I have been a little dubious about the proposed trip of the president," said Senator Hitchcock, "but, his success with the Republican senators who called on him by invitation has convinced me that he could do great good before the people. The attitude of the opponents of the League of Nations improved after the visits to the White House. Contact with the members of the senate has helped. I told the president he should see other senators, and I hope he will."

Burial Place is Exclusive.

One of the most remarkable burial places in the world is situated at Hartsdale in Westchester county, New York, a short ride from the largest city in America. It is the last resting place of the dogs and other pets of the wealthy. Dogs are not "thrown into the ground" at Hartsdale nor are they left with merely a stick of wood to indicate where they lie. Many Hartsdale tombstones cost as much and are quite as imposing as the average stone over the average person in the common run of cemeteries.

Turned Out Badly.

"Does Mrs. Dubwaite, in the course of a little disagreement, ever remind you of the men she might have married?"

"No," answered Mr. Dubwaite, "in an argument like that I would have a decided advantage."

"Why so?"
"One of Mrs. Dubwaite's former suitors is now doing time in the penitentiary for embezzlement and two others are prominent bolsheviks."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

FOLKS MUST DYE

Style Dictates That Especially Laces Appear in Many Styles

DELICATESSEN TINTS

Exploited to Appeal to Fashion's Appetite—Wearing Fringes

If you are dying to be chic Here's what you'll have to do Just get some lace to make a frock And then let it dye too.

(By Margaret Rohe, Written for the United Press)

New York, Sept. 2.—That immortal phrase of Barnaby Rudge's raven "Never say die," would make little hit nowadays in the fashionable world. This season everyone's ravin' instead "You simply must dye" at least when it is a question of lace.

Not only the lovely lace net and shadow lace gowns and frocks are popular in black but the all lace gown in pastel shades and even vivid tints are the last gasp of a dying season and a dyeing fashion.

Even the real laces of hand made lineage have not escaped the dyers' dire pot and flet, cluny and torchon intets on frocks of linen, taffeta and crepe de chine are all dyed up to match exactly their accompanying materials.

Indeed the combining of linen lace with a silken fabric such as crepe de chine or taffeta is one of the latest Paris fads and when the lace does not exactly match the gown shade in hue it is done in a most striking contrasting tone.

For example a favorite combination of color is a Nattier blue taffeta trimmed in bands of heavy jonquil yellow lace.

An all grey taffeta with grey flet is a charming cloud effect that needs no silver lining but relies wholly on a flesh toned satin one instead.

In the all over lace and lace and net frocks of fluffy three tiered ruffled skirts and flowing elbow sleeves or else above the elbow wee ones, sort of 2.75 per cent. sleeves, the grey dye shades the shadow lace to a veritable shadow hue. A lovely orchid dye, makes old lace and lavender one and the same and is one of the most exquisitely lovely colorings for these dyed lace gowns.

Oyster white, cafe au lait, biscuit, apricot, peach, citron and salmon are all delicatessen tints that appeal to Fashion's jaded sartorial appetite as delectable hues for lacy frocks. These neutral tones and pastel shades are usually relieved with a vivid streak of contrasting color in the form of a narrow picot edged ribbon knotted with flowing ends about the waist.

These dangling ends of narrow ribbons are by no means the end of such ends however for we are to have no end of ends again in a return of fringe even more virulent than our first attack of it. We are to be simply all fringed about with fringe. Entire gowns made of narrow ribbon fringe over satin slips have the ends held in leash only at the neck line, belt and arm holes while the floating ends sway free and unrestrained to form the skirt and sleeves.

These fringe dresses formed of knotted silk fringe are stunning but a bit startling of black fringe over a white satin slip or vice versa.

They are sketchy to say the least and seem to call loudly for a ukulele or pol.

As a close cousin to fringe is the frayed finish to taffeta frocks. Bands of the taffeta raveled on both edges and gathered through the middle like ruching makes a trimming not un-
