The Daily Democrat is crowded today in efforts to take care of our advertisers and without printing extra pages because of a help shortage due to illness of some of the force. We hope to be up and coming again in a day or two.

Governor Cox of Ohio will be the headliner at the editorial meeting at Indianapolis the night of February 5th. He is one of the greatest governors in the entire country, a big man, and his address will be worth hearing and reading.

And the senate continues to "fiddle." We have about come to the conclusion that is all they could do if they tried. Yet the press of the country, or at least a large part of it, has the nerve to defend such a congress, excuse the members and predict their continued support. It's hard to understand.

The Industrial association will meet tonight for the purpose of effecting a permanent organization. This is not a social club, not a meeting for the purpose of speech making or entertainment, but a business session, pure and simple. If we are to handle the many problems that are sure to arise during the next few months, we need an organization of thinking, working, earnest citizens who will each do his part when called upon and will volunteer his suggestions and his help. Attend the meeting tonight.

It is entirely up to the people of the city, this question of securing better lighting. The ornamental posts will add a thousand per cent to the appearance of the city and while there is a small initial cost it adds so much to your property and to the general appearance that we should think you would gladly sign the petitions. They will be circulated this week. If you are progressive you will sign and help get the others in your block to do likewise. We are sure that once started this system will spread all over the city and that soon we will have a well lighted and attractive looking city.

Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Schafer were among the visitors in Fort Wayne Sunday.
