THE BIBLE AND SHAKESPEARE

Are Greatest Books to Men and Women Who Are Prominent in Public

ANSWERS TO QUERY

"What Book Has Helped You Most?" by American Library Association

The question "What Book Has Helped You Most?", as addressed by the New York City Executive Committee of the "Books for Everybody" movement of the American Library Association to men and women prominent in public life, has brought forth replies which, aside from the anticipated general agreement on the Bible and Shakespeare, are stimulating in their range.

Clergymen declared for the Bible almost without exception, as did educators, such as Dr. John H. Finley, commissioner of education of New York State, who said that although his mother died when he was eleven years old, he had read the Bible through twice with her, and that he had read it from cover to cover at least three times in mature life. A large body of opinion among business men in favor of the Bible is represented by the declaration of Jacob H. Schiff, financier, who said that the Mosaic Bible has influenced his life more than any other book.

"The Bible and Shakespeare," said David Belasco, "contain the great poetry and the great truths." John Drew finds that out of the catholic experience of the theatre Shakespeare emerges as the most determining book. Arthur Brisbane, journalist, said that a six-pence edition of Shakespeare in smallest print and poorest paper, had been his only English book at a boyhood school in France, where none but he spoke a word of English. He read it over and over, picking out the fights and other incidents which appealed to him as a boy of fifteen.

On the expressed assumption that the Bible and Shakespeare were too obvious an influence on life and thought, a number of replies gave second choices. "Two books which exerted great influence over me in my youth," said Dr. Lyman Abbott, "are 'My Father's Young Christian', from which I derived much of my faith in the simplicity of Christianity and 'Foster's Essay on Decision of Character', which helped me to acquire the courage necessary to accept the responsibility for my own life." Next to the Bible, her mother's "Pilgrim's Progress" had the most profound effect on Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard, of New York City. Carlyle's "Heroes and Hero Worship" and a little book of selections from Browning went home very powerfully to Chancellor Elmer E. Brown of New York University, at an age when he was most open to impressions.

Women in general revealed more shades of opinion. The poems of Alfred Tennyson opened the door to romance and history and chivalry for Theodosia Garrison, who is Mrs. Lindley M. Garrison. A prominent woman lawyer of New York City still reads "Alice in Wonderland" to fortify herself for the prosecution of a case; she considers the courtroom scene of the trial of the Mad Hatter the finest piece of satire in literature. Mrs. Bernard E. Pollak, president of the National League of Girls' clubs, has returned again and again to Emerson's essays and to Omar Khayyam. Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, a director of the League of Women Voters of New York City, thinks that Herbert Spencer and Emerson "licked her mind into shape." A prominent social worker gives first place to George Eliot's "The Mill on the Floss."

Hamilton Holt, editor of the Independent, thinks that "Les Miserables" is "more kinds of a great book than any other he has ever read." Among several men of note who declared themselves unable to answer the query was Thomas A. Edison, who found his reading too largely technical and one-sided to permit a satisfactory answer.

The Hog Island shipyard has been purchased by the government at what the corporation paid for it.

HE'S FROM OHIO

Aaron Watkins, Prohibition Nominee for President Hails From Ohio

(United Press Service)
Lincoln, Neb., July 23.—(Special to Daily Democrat)—Prohibition party leaders today began laying plans for an aggressive campaign for the election of Aaron S. Watkins, German-towns, Ohio, as president.

Watkins, keynote speaker of the national prohibition convention was selected the presidential candidate last night. His nomination followed word from W. J. Bryan that he could not sever relations with the democratic party. The choice made the third Ohioan nominated as a presidential candidate.

D. Leigs Colvin of New York was selected as the vice presidential candidate.

Robert Patton, Springfield, Ills., attorney and Dan Piling, international president of the Christian Endeavor, were also placed in nomination for the presidency.

Bryan in declining the nomination declared he did not know he would vote in the coming elections but said "other reforms which make it impossible for me to focus my attention upon prohibition question alone," demanded that he not affiliate with the party.

Official Program for Decatur's Independent
CHAUTAUQUA

Held Under A Big Roomy Tent On Liberty Way, July 27 to 31

Already the seven hundred pledged tickets at $2.00 each have practically all been sold—If you were not fortunate enough to get one of these, do not fail to buy one of the $2.50 tickets for the five day program is worth more than the price of two season tickets. You cannot afford to miss it. It will be entertaining and educational. This is your chautauqua, why not enjoy the week with the rest of the progressive citizens of the community?

TUESDAY, JULY 27, OPENING DAY
Afternoon, Single Admission 50c Including War Tax
2:30—Popular Lecture—"The By-Products of Civilization"—Dr. Isaac T. Headland, one of the most entertaining inspirational lectures on the Chautauqua platform.
3:30—Great Musical Program—"Operatic Revue"—The Van Grove Opera Company, featuring "Sextette from Lucia," "Anvil Chorus" from "Il Trovatore," "Rigoletto Quartette" and other popular grand opera selections. Their program will also include a special arrangement of southern airs for solos and choruses, and piano solos by Mr. Van Grove.

Evening, Single Admission 50c, Including War Tax.
7:30—Prelude Entertainment—"Child Life in China"—Dr. Isaac T. Headland. An interesting portrayal of life among the children of China. Dr. Headland spent sixteen years in China and is familiar with all phases of life there.
8:15—Grand Opera—"Il Pagliacci"—The Van Grove Opera Company. "Il Pagliacci" is the most popular of all the grand operas. This great organization will give it complete and in English, suitably costumed. This is the most imposing grand opera program ever offered in Decatur.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 28
Afternoon, Single Admission 50c Including War Tax
2:30—Novelty Concert—"The Italian Quartette and Miss Sara Leibovitz, Russian soloist. This will be a very clever entertaining vocal and instrumental program. Miss Leibovitz is a fine coloratura soprano. Mr. Deluchi, the leader, was the soloist with the famous band for two Chautauqua seasons. The afternoon program will also feature splendid accordion selections.

3:30—Popular Lecture—"The Sacrifice Hit"—Paul "Sunshine" Dietrich. Plenty of wit, humor and philosophy. An "up to date, down to date" message.
Evening, Single Admission 50c, Including War Tax.
7:30—Popular Concert—"The Italian Quartette and Miss Sara Leibovitz. The entire company will dress in beautiful Italian costume. The vocal numbers will be given largely in English. This is a very entertaining organization.

8:15—Great Lecture Message—Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, America's foremost pulpit orator.

THURSDAY, JULY 29
Afternoon, Single Admission 50c Including War Tax
2:30—Prelude Entertainment—"Kathryn Fite, the Cherokee Indian Girl, dramatic reader, in Indian stories and legends. Miss Fite will appear in native Indian costume.
3:15—Grand Concert—"The Famous Mountain Ash Welsh Choir of fourteen Welshmen. "The finest male choir in the world." Mr. Glyndwr Richards.

A number of tickets have been placed on sale at the three banks, four drug stores and at this office.
