association, and Hon. C. J. Lutz appeared on the platform and started the ball rolling toward the securing of a chautauqua for next year. In less than fifteen minutes seven hundred season tickets were pledged for next year.

Today's program was a worthy one, the afternoon program starting with a lecture recital on bird life and bird music by Prof. W. B. Olds, of James Milliken university, Decatur, Ill. Prof.
Olds gives a very fascinating talk and lovers of birds, including the children and school teachers are especially urged to attend this part of the program.
Following Prof. Olds' talk, the Mendelsohn's Musical club gave a popular concert. This is a very fine orchestra, and every member an artist.
The flutist, Mr. Everts, was formerly flute soloist with Inne's Orchestral band.

The evening program will open with a popular concert by the Mendelssohn Musical club, followed by a great inspirational address by Col. W. G. Everson, whose subject will be "The Challenge of the Impossible." Col.
Everson, previous to the war, was a pastor of a Baptist church near Cleveland, Ohio. When the war broke out he enlisted in the services of his country and was the commanding officer of the American sector in Italy.
He is a fighting American and has a most wonderful address. You want to hear him.

Thursday Evening
Miss Fite last evening told of the religion of the Indian and of how he regarded the great mystery of life.
The Indian faced the Great Spirit alone in the primeval aisles of the forest and would have deemed it sacrilege to construct a church as the habitation of the all-wise power when he was to be found any place that the Indian was. The red man saw no need of having one day to worship his Lord when every day belonged to him and in the travels of the brave whenever he came upon a beautiful sight he stopped and stood in the attitude of worship and gave thanks to the maker of life. The duty of each Indian was to pray alone and in silence many times each day to the great Manitou and at sunrise and sunset he made oblation to him.
Miss Fite illustrated the sun ceremonial dance an other Indian cos-tums and rites.

She gave readings from "Hiawatha," featuring the death of Minnehaha, and the pathos of the tale was strengthened by the power of her voice and the master of the expression.

Miss Fite is a typical Indian in her talks, and is devoting her life to prove to the great white people that the Indian has a soul, and is in reality good.

The Welsh Concert
The second part of the evening's program was taken by the great Welsh choir which needs no description to those who heard it, for it would be impossible to tell in words of their message of song.

They sang "The Soldiers' Chorus" from Faust, and Mr. Edwards, a noted soloist, sang "Mother McCree," "The Laughing Chorus," which was sung in the afternoon, was liked so well that they were requested to repeat it, which they did in their masterly style.

They sang "The Jolly Roger," and "Who Sails With Drake?" both selections being rendered in the best form possible. Mr. Richards, the leader of the choir, certainly deserves praise for making it possible for the people of Decatur to listen to such a group of accomplished singers.

Thursday Afternoon
Miss Kathryn Fite, the Cherokee Indian princess, entertained the chautauqua for the first part of the program.

Miss Fite told of the history of her tribe. Their home was in Georgia, Carolina and Tennessee and when Oglethorpe settled Georgia he made treaties with the Cherokee, allowing him so much of the land, and he and the Indians had no trouble. But soon the white man wanted more territory and in 1833 the government of the United States forced the Indians to move westward across the Mississippi river. They settled at Tahlequah, Oklahoma, and set up a government of their own which prospered for several years. Miss Fite was born at this capital and is the grandniece of Sequoyah, the man who started the education of the Indians by inventing an alphabet. In 1909, the same year that Oklahoma became a state, the public property of the Cherokees was divided and a certain amount of money paid to each Indian, and they became citizens of the United States.

Miss Fite had with her several beautiful blankets, and with them she illustrated several of the Indian ceremonies. She sang the Indian songs and gave readings of the Indian life.

The Welsh Mountain Ash choir, the musical headliner of the week, took the second part of the afternoon. And And they sure did sing.

Mr. Richards, the leader of the choir, told of the history of his country and of his singers. The company is from the southern part of Wales, in the mining district. Mr. Richards stated that all of the singers had been miners who had worked in the bowels of the earth, and who were self-trained musicians. Singing is the national art of Wales, like base ball is the national sport of America.

The Welsh as a people have kept more of their own customs than the other parts of the British Isles. They still have their own picturesque language, which is simpler than English in that when you know the alphabet you know the language, for there are no silent letters and no change in pronunciation.

Mr. Richards stated that they had made several records for the Victor people, and have a week's contract with them before they return to their home.

The choir sang representative songs of the various nations, including America, Ireland, Scotland and Wales.
Members of the choir also entertained with solos full of pathos and humor. The singers were the best we have heard and their technique for self-trained singers will rival the best.

TELEGRAPHING PICTURES

The latest development in the art of communication is the telegraphing of pictures. The process is accomplished by changing the photograph into a photograph, which is the name for the picture revolved into code tele-
gram to the operator in the distant city.

The code used describes definitely fixed points and lines and the degrees of light and shade present in the picture. In reality it is the scientific analysis of the original picture.

The operator which receives the message and reconstructs the picture which is then made into a cut and given to the newspapers in which it appears clear and distinct.

This method has only been used since September and it is planned to extend the service to Europe in the near future.

Beethoven's music is the rage in London and France and German economic delegates, are busy re-establishing commercial relations.

Duroc Hog Sale

Monday, August 9th, 1920, at the Plain View Farm
Four Miles North-east of Decatur

We will offer for sale 60 head of Duroc Jersey Hogs of the best breeding, every hog eligible to register. Consisting of Junior yearlings and fall yearlings, bred for September farrow. A few open sows and gilts and a few males ready for service.

J. D. Nidlinger & Son, Decatur, Indiana.

NOTE—The Indiana Farmers Guide's field man, Arthur Hyser, says: "Nidlingers will sell one of the greatest offerings of Durocs that will be sold in the corn belt this fall. Their pedigrees trace back to the best known boars of the breed and individually they are as good as can be found. Proud Col. 7th, the boar that heads the Nidlinger herd, in my estimation, is one of the best senior yearling boars in Indiana and Fancy Orion 4th and Waltz Top Col. 10th, the other two herd boars that are used in this herd are good running mates for him. I can recommend their offerings to anyone who wishes to buy the best."
