PADDOCK FOR ECONOMY.

Democratic Candidate Continues Vigorous Campaign in Madison County.

Lapel, Ind., Aug. 28.—Laying down the same broad principles of economy in government that he followed in the eight years he was mayor of Portland and by the application of which, he paid off the entire city debt of over $90,000 and turned the office over to his successor with a substantial surplus in the treasury, Dr. Chas. A. Paddock, democratic candidate for congress from the 8th district held the close attention of his audience when he said, "I am old-fashioned enough to believe that a public office is a public trust. When a man is elected to any office he should give to that position every ounce of his ability. He should apply the same rigid principles of good business and economy to his public work as he would to his private enterprise. Quite often men in public life are too prone to handle other peoples money loosely and dole out the public funds with a lavish hand. I believe it is the duty of a congressman to attend every session even when that body is in recess, for then it is his duty to give his every attention to the public needs and inform himself as to the needs of the country, in order that he may vote intelligently upon such questions as arise. Economy in government is no different from economy in our private matters, it is simply this, do not spend money when it is unnecessary, do not be stingy but just use good judgment and in a short time you will find that any unit of government to which this principle is applied will be free from debt, with money in the treasury, the people satisfied and taxes lowered."

Those who heard Dr. Paddock here last night were all of the opinion that this address was the best discussion of political economy that has ever been heard in Lapel.

McAdoo Says Cox Will Be Choice

lummies back of the big contribution."

"I believe," McAdoo declared, "the country will choose a dynamic—not a static statement—and his name is James M. Cox."

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 28.—(Special to Daily Democrat)—Governor Cox was abroad early today to prepare for his descent on New York, where he was to deliver two speeches today. He appeared to be in fine physical shape following five addresses in Connecticut in which he again outlined his league of nations viewpoint and paid further attention to republican campaign funds.

Cox in his speech here declared the armistice following the great war was based on 14 points, one of which was self-determination of free people. He declared the league of nations "does not abridge the right of any racial entity to determine its own destiny," and that the league will not discourage "emotions like those that stirred the colonists to achieve independence in 1776." The statement was loudly cheered by many who apparently regarded it as having reference to the Irish situation.

Cox renewed his charges with regard to the republican campaign fund and criticised republican Treasurer Fred Upham for his denial of Cox's charges.
