SPENDING THE

PEOPLE'S MONEY:

The present is a time of the replacement of property destroyed rather than of the elaborate expansion of existing organization. Because of war's destruction the world is short of goods—using goods in the larger sense that includes the results of human industry—and until this lack is supplied, a period of high taxes and great economy must be faced. Enlarged programs of public administration mean higher taxes which would be imposed at a time when unusually heavy burdens must be borne to repair the wreck of recent years. However desirable would be the effect of the plans of ambitious public administrators in a normal time, it must be remembered by the authorities who make appropriations that this is not a normal time, and that the greater the expenditure for anything that is not necessary to the carefully considered welfare of the people, the longer will be the interval that must elapse before normality can return.

A realization that extravagant expenditure could not continue indefinitely has come to the people generally, or has been forced on them by the failure of income to cover outgo—hence, what has been called the buyers' strike; but a similar realization in regard to public funds—which are, after all, only private funds transferred to the public treasury—does not seem to have come to most public administrators. They present programs for increased and enlarged activities in their special spheres, that are already heavy, as the country were at the height of a prosperity of guaranteed indefinite continuance. This is not justified. It may as well be admitted that one or more lean years must be faced. The economists and the financiers have seen it, and the people have realized it somehow whether they understand it or not. It now remains to make the situation clear to the public administrators. The more comprehensive their administrations are, the greater, of course, the credit, or, at any rate, the prominence, that will be theirs, and perhaps the greater the benefit to the state — only perhaps, however, for this is not certain. But all this may be achieved at greater cost than the people can be justly asked to pay; thus any proposed expansion of public enterprises should receive the most careful scrutiny of those who are responsible for the distribution of the public funds.

It is unfortunate—and may be expensive for the taxpayers—that the public administrators have not looked at the future from a more practical point of view. When the honest and frugal citizen is short of funds he adjusts his ways to his means, and, as far as possible, avoids debts, which would hamper his prosperity after the time of stress is ended. He gets along with what he has and buys sparingly and carefully, taking care to get his money's worth; and he does not outline any program of extravagant expenditure with the money he hopes to get from somebody who can neither afford to give nor lend it to him. This policy of the honest and frugal citizen is commended to the consideration of public administrators who have such ambitious plans for spending no insignificant part of the honest and frugal citizen's hard-earned and not quite adequate income.—Indianapolis News.

The increased insurance rates on a number of business properties in this city, without notice and without apparent cause should be met by the united efforts of those effected. Inspectors acting under orders hunt up some trivial excuse and then without giving the owner or occupant of the building any opportunity to correct it, slap on an increased rate. In a few months another inspector comes along, finds another supposed defect and gives you an added overhead dig. No good business man will refuse to correct a real defect for he of all concerned, does not want a fire but the recent increases were certainly made in a most peculiar manner and the local people of course get the worst of it.

The city of Anderson is planning to adopt a commission form of government. A committee which visited Dayton reports that it all depends on the commission and the manager selected, much as it does under the present form. After all it's up to the citizens of the community for the men who serve under a commission or form that body are just human and may stub a toe.

SAYS IT FIRST AND SAYS IT LAST

Carrie G. Harrel, 319 Nicholson St., Norfolk, Va., writes: "I'll tell anybody that Foley's Honey and Tar is all right. It did me all the good. I said it first and I'll say it last." Thousands of bottles of this reliable remedy were bought last week by careful mothers so as to be prepared to check coughs, colds and croup at the beginning. It acts almost instantly, cuts phlegm, soothes raw, irritated membranes, stops tickling in throat.—Sold everywhere.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must keep your body free from poisonous wastes. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets (a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil) act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effect.

Take one nightly and note results. They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually.

Working Together for Good

At a county fair years ago, a flamboyant sign advertised: "The Strangest Sight in the World!" Those who paid to see the marvel found ten farmers pulling TOGETHER on a rope! . . . It's different today. Now thousands of farmers everywhere are pulling together. We're working together for good—our own good, to be sure, but the consumer's as well; for fair prices for both producer and consumer and for better marketing facilities.

In a series of advertisements in this newspaper we shall tell you of methods by which farmers' cooperative associations everywhere are profiting by better marketing facilities. For this space and publicity, credit is due to THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, whose staff of experts are studying and in its columns reporting cooperative accomplishments all over America. And right at the start let us say that you ought to be reading that publication regularly. In understanding of and practical helpfulness to real farmers it ranks in importance with our great farmer organizations. If you're not already a subscriber, now is a good time to place your order for a year's subscription—52 issues—for only $1.00. With THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN we are pulling together, because it is a strong national advocate of cooperative methods for progress on the farm.
