Washington authorities are notifying municipal plants to put in a supply of coal to protect themselves against a possible strike among the miners.

There is such a thing as being too technical in refereeing a basket ball game and taking all the sport out of it. While rough playing should not be tolerated the floor "boss" can blow his whistle so continuously as to prevent any real plays being made and when he does that the crowd loses interest as well as the players.

Those who have been hoping for some real winter weather are getting a taste of it now. Ten to twelve below last night and the night before ought to be enough to finish the bugs, make the ground mellow and do all the other things credited to freezing. The mantle of snow is protecting the wheat and it's just about ideal weather, though a little hard on the now rapidly decreasing coal pile.

Twelve ships loaded to the brim with food and grain from America have sailed for Russia and eighteen more are being loaded, the sum of twelve million dollars having been spent besides a million or two donated in goods and cash. It's a fine spirit to thus assist the starving populace of northern Europe but we can't help feel also that it would be fine for some one from some of these countries we are continually helping to say a kind word about the United States.

Candidates are becoming numerous and the big campaign will soon be on in this county and all the others of Indiana. The selection of men capable of holding the office is an important factor. The list published yesterday was not complete or official, just the names of those being mentioned. Official announcement by the various candidates will be made in a few weeks and it is likely there will be several not mentioned in the article printed. The field is open to those who wish to enter, that being the purpose of a primary election.

Another conference is being held in Washington, this time to discuss the serious condition of the American farmer to which every one agrees but fine words and big talk will not correct it. The average farmer doesn't want sympathy or charity. He wants a market for his product and so far such a thing as trying to establish ways and means for disposing of the surplus of domestic grains, which is after all the only method of extending real aid doesn't seem to have taken root in the brighter minds. The president says truthfully "If we fail the farmer, we will precipitate a disaster that will affect every industry." Fewer conferences and more actual going out after a market is the only way to solve the problem it would seem.

Governor McCray's announcement, some time ago, that more attention would be paid to gravel roads and less to hard surfaced highways should make the experience of Hanover, Mass., interesting to students of the highway problems. Harrison L. House, a civil engineer, tells, in the American City, how Hanover met traffic conditions with gravel roads. In 1915, 650 feet of road that had a clay bottom and water standing in the gutters at all seasons, was excavated to a depth of about six inches. A drain about one and a half feet wide and about three feet deep was dug on either side and filled with stones four to six inches in diameter. The whole width of the roadway was subgraded and covered with eight inches of field stone, six inches or less in diameter and five inches of gravel, and the stone foundation and gravel top rolled. Road oil was applied at the rate of three-fourths gallon a square yard, and sanded and a tar binder added. This road has stood all tests. The following year eight and one-half miles of similar road was built. When the soil was spongy the stone foundation ranged from six to eight inches. Since then the town has built 16.1 miles of gravel roads, twenty four feet from gutters, with eighteen feet of tar binder except at curves, where it is twenty-one feet. This binder is applied in three coats, the last coat being treated with sharp sand. The stone foundation is fifteen feet in the center with blind drains every twenty or thirty feet, opening alternately on either side. After completion weak spots are mended with pea stone and cold patch material. From 1915 to March, 1921, the cost for construction and maintenance has been $4,154 a mile. "Practically all of the road is now in first class condition," House writes, "and sustaining a heavy and increasing traffic."

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE TO HOLD LAW ENFORCEMENT MEETING

The Indiana Anti-Saloon league is calling for a State Law Enforcement Convention to be held in the Roberts Park Methodist church in Indianapolis, Wednesday, February 8, 1922.

The purpose of this convention, as explained by E. S. Shumaker, Superintendent of the State League, is to strengthen the sentiment over Indiana for a vigorous and thorough enforcement of both state and national prohibition laws, and also to devise ways and means by which the friends of prohibition may co-operate with officials—local, state and federal—in securing such enforcement. It is urged that this convention will supplement in a very effective manner conferences of judges and prosecuting attorneys held in Indianapolis a short time since.

The convention is to open at 9 o'clock in the morning for the first session. Sessions will also be held beginning at 1:45 p. m. and 7:30 p. m., respectively. Governor Warren T. McCray is to deliver the address of welcome, and the response to this address is to be made by Timothy Nicholson, of Richmond, who has been president of the Anti-Saloon League in Indiana for twenty-three years.

Members of the anti-saloon league in this city will probably attend the convention.

BAND BOY'S NOTICE.
Every member of the band please be present tonight at 7:30 sharp. As business of vital importance will come before the meeting.—Correspondent.

SAN FRANCISCO'S CHINATOWN

Eighty thousand dollars were expended by Universal for one set alone, used by Director Tod Browning in Priscilla Dean's latest photoplay, "Outside the Law," which is to be shown at the Crystal theater tonight and tomorrow. The set represents San Francisco's Chinatown, and four complete blocks of this famous section were reproduced in detail. Three hundred Orientals and many other characteristic types were used while the Chinatown scenes were being filmed.

VOICE OF THE PUBLIC

The Daily Democrat:—

I have just read the article by Mr. J. G. Hoffman in Saturday's Daily Democrat. He certainly told the truth and I agree with every word of it. I just noticed that in an adjoining county ninety farms are offered for delinquent taxes in one township and eighty in another. And the worst is still to come it seems. Is it not time to put the axe to the ever growing evils of excessive taxation?

We are over governed, the parental hand is upon everybody and everybody's business, there is a duplication of authority and wasted money and effort at every turn. There are boards and bureaus nad commissions, world without end. Land values are tending downward very rapidly and yet owners are burdened more and more with increasing rates to meet the apparently inexhaustible demand or public expenditure.

Everything else is being deflated, why not public expenses? We are paying dearly for the swarms of office holders. If a horde of useless "tax-layers" could be fired it would give some relief.

PRESIDENT OF P.T. ASSN.
DIED LAST SATURDAY

Indianapolis, Jan. 23.—Mrs. Lillian C. Orme, age forty-seven, prominent in civic and political affairs, died suddenly Friday night about 11 o'clock in her room at the Hotel Severin. She was the wife of Hance Orme of Glenns Valley, near Southport. Death was caused by acute indigestion, it was said.

Funeral arrangements have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be Monday or Tuesday. The body will lie at the country home, Less Ormes at Glenns Valley, where friends may call and Monday.

Mrs. Orme was president of the Indiana State Parent-Teacher Association, chairman of the woman's division organized in Indiana for the re-election of Harry S. New to the United States senate and a member of the executive board of the Indiana Indorsers of Photoplays. Mrs. Ormes was well known here among the teachers and school authorities.

FOLEY'S HAS NEVER FAILED

January is a bad month for influenza, la grippe and bronchial trouble. It is unwise to neglect the slightest cough or cold. Foley's Honey and Tar gives prompt relief, gets right at the trouble, covers raw inflamed surfaces with a healing coating, clears the air passages, eases stuffy breathing, permits sound, refreshing, health-building sleep. Mrs. F. A. Gibson, 1547 College Ave., Racine, Wis., writes: "Foley's has never failed in giving immediate relief and I am never without it."

Laughing in His Sleeve

"I was told nothing but an operation would help my stomach trouble, and was getting ready for the operation when a friend advised me to try May's Wonderful Remedy. The first dose helped me. I am now as well as ever in my life and I am laughing up my sleeve at the doctors." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

TOMORROW

A LONG WAY OFF—

TO SOME IT NEVER COMES

Yet they keep putting off saving their money until tomorrow.

Soon, much sooner than we can realize, something happens. Our earning power is reduced. Oftentimes cut off forever; then the inevitable dependency on relatives or friends or public charity.

Study this. It has happened since time immemorial and will continue until we prepare for it by laying aside some money at regular stated intervals.
