G'WIN BE A GOOD LESSON

Some one used to tell a story about a colored man convicted of murder and about to pay the penalty. He had been led to the scaffold, the noose placed about his neck and the black cap over his eyes, when he was asked if he had anything to say, and promptly replied: "This am certainly g'win be a good lesson for me." We are reminded of the story by the statement of a man named Mayfield, recently arrested for complicity in the Panama, Ill., bank robbery, and who has published a statement in which he says:

"In conclusion I wish to add that from this time on I will vote the democratic ticket as nothing like this ever happened to me while they were in power. As everybody had money there was no use of sticking up banks, therefore no innocent man would have to suffer for it. Hence, getting at the bottom of this, the republican party is to blame."

Kellogg's Corn Flakes
snap up fussy appetites something wonderful!

No coaxing needed to tempt family folks and visitors to eat a plenty—not when there's a big pitcher of milk or cream and lots of Kellogg's Corn Flakes—and, maybe some fruit—ready to tickle fickle palates!

Kellogg's are unlike any corn flakes you ever ate! They're the original kind—they ought to be best! No other corn flakes are so deliciously flavored; no other corn flakes retain such wonder-crispness till eaten! And Kellogg's are never leathery or tough or hard to eat!

Kellogg's are always a delight to serve—and a treat to eat at any meal! In fact, you'll never know how good corn flakes can be until you know KELLOGG'S!

Do more than ask for corn flakes—say KELLOGG'S CORN FLAKES! The kind in the RED and GREEN package!

TWO FEAST DAYS

Prior to the death of the Holy Pontiff, special prayers were said at the St. Mary's church, and each day following his death prayers have been said for the repose of his soul.

Feast of St. Blase

Friday is the feast day of St. Blase and the blessing of the throats will take place after the 6 o'clock mass, the seven-thirty mass, and at two-thirty in the afternoon. Neither the feast of the Purification or the feast of St. Blase are holy days of obligation, though both are observed generally by the Catholic churches throughout the country.

MAY HARNESS TIPPECANOE

(United Press Service). Monticello, Ind., Feb. 1—(Special to Daily Democrat)—Visions of the largest hydro-electric plant in Indiana and one of the largest in the middle west were entertained here today. Headwaters of the Tippecanoe river will be used by the Indiana Hydro Electric corporation to make the vision a reality. The river will be harnessed to a dam thirty feet high and a quarter of a mile long. Over it will flow enough water to furnish 2,400,000 kilowatt hours of electrical energy a year—enough electricity to light 30,000 homes if it were used for that purpose. The electricity generated with power from the dam will be used for lighting homes and operating industrial enterprises in northwestern Indiana—in Attica, Frankfort, Logansport, Lafayette and other cities. Backers of the project claim it will furnish the cheapest motive power in the state. A boom has already been started here for the erection of factories to take advantage of this cheap-rate. According to Harry Reid, president of the Interstate Public Service company, and vice president and general manager of the Indiana Hydro-electric company, charges for the electricity will cover the return on investments, interests and bonds and operating expenses and taxes.

THE FIVE POWER TREATY IS APPROVED

world yearning after peace. Round it out was another treaty banning submarines as attackers of commerce and the use of poison gas in wars.

Hughes laid the treaty before the fifth plenary session of the conference shortly after the opening at 11 o'clock.

Under the treaty, the three great naval powers—the United States, Great Britain and Japan—will scrap 64 great capital ships of a total tonnage of 1,861,643. The smaller number of old ships to be junked by France and Italy contribute to make these figures even higher.

These ships include the capital ship building program of the great naval powers, the realization of the dreams of navy men, seeking to make their country dominant in the ever faster race of naval competition.

The treaty starts a ten year naval holiday—with a few exceptions—in capital ship building, dating from November 12, 1921, when the conference was opened.

The completed treaty announced today is mainly the same as the original American proposals. It was a victory for the United States, heartily shared in by the other nations and much of the weariness that has slowly crept over Hughes during the long months of negotiations seemed to leave him as he presented the treaty.

The treaty provides for a 5-5-3.1-75-1.75 ratio in capital ship tonnage between the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy, respectively. The replacement tonnage basis for these respective powers is 255,000; 525,000; 315,000; 175,000, and 175,000 tons.

Ironclad, technical rules and regulations are embodied in the pact to see that the ships to be scrapped are actually sent to the junk heap. Detailed charts are also included in accordance with which old capital ships can be replaced after the ten year holiday.

The powers agree in the treaty that if during its duration the national security of one of the nations is threatened there will be a conference of the signatory powers, at the request of the affected nation, to consider changes in the pact to meet the situation.

It is also provided in the treaty—a fact not fully known before—that the United States, in consultation with the other powers, shall call another conference of the signatory nations as soon as possible after eight years from the coming into force of the treaty to consider any needed changes in the pact, "in view of possible technical and scientific developments."

Whenever any signatory power becomes engaged in war affecting the naval defense of its national security, the treaty specifies, such power may suspend for the period of hostilities, upon notice to the other contracting nations, the major part of its obligations under the treaty. After the war, the contracting powers will meet in conference to determine any necessary modifications in the treaty.

The treaty lasts for 15 years, the date of its expiration being Dec. 31, 1936. Its automatic continuance, however, is provided for. If none of the contracting powers gives notice to the United States of its intention to terminate the treaty, the pact shall continue in force until the expiration of two years from the date on which notice of termination shall be given by one of the contracting powers, whereupon the treaty shall terminate as regards all the contracting powers.

The treaty includes an agreement between the United States, Great Britain and Japan to maintain the status in fortifications and naval bases on their Pacific islands, while other clauses place restrictions on the size of capital ships and auxiliary fighting craft and their armament.

There was also announced at the session today an important separate treaty between the five powers prohibiting the use of submarines against merchant shipping and pledging the powers against the use of poison gas in war.

Chapter II, part two, covers scrapping rules: I. E. vessels must be rendered unfit for combatant service either by sinking, breaking up, or target use. Italy and France are allowed to each retain two ships for gunnery or torpedo school practice. In cases of scrapping of a vessel subsequently, this scrapping must be undertaken not later than the date of the completion of its successor, must be made impotent within six months and completely scrapped within 18 months.

Chapter II, part three, gives rules for replacement based upon substitution of new craft when the existing ships become twenty years of age. A subsection says "In case of loss or accidental destruction of capital ships or aircraft carriers, they may be immediately replaced."

Chapter II, part four, contains definitions.

Chapter III, containing miscellaneous provisions, continues with article XXI, XXII through to the end—XXIV.

Article XXI and XXII deal with action in event of war allowing for cancellation of suspension of treaty.

Under article XXIII, it is provided that the treaty shall run to Dec. 31, 1936. Provisions for cancellation are made.

Under article XXIV, it is noted that ratifications shall be made according to usual customs and copies of the ratifications shall be sent here as soon as possible.

WOMAN BLAMED BY HER FAMILY

Restless, irritable, nervous, excitable and exacting is the charge against her by those nearest and dearest. How little they realize the struggle the overworked wife and mother is making to keep about and perform the hundred and one duties that devolve upon her! Every hour her headaches, hiccoughs and pains drag her down until she can stand it no longer. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored more women in this condition to health and happiness than any other medicine. The grateful letters we are continually publishing in this paper from women who have found health by its use prove it.

ACID IN STOMACH
SOURS THE FOOD

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion

A well known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion are nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states than an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash, or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescent, and furthermore to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juice.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.
