$8,000,000 INVESTED IN FOX FARMING IN UNITED STATES

More fur farmers are engaged in raising foxes than any other fur-bearing animal, according to reports to the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. Observations made in the field by representatives of the Survey indicate that at least 500 ranchers are raising silver foxes and that there are between 1,000 and 15,000 foxes in captivity. It is estimated that about $8,000,000 is invested in this industry. The industry of breeding fur-bearing animals has grown because of the rapid development of the modern fur trade in the last 25 years. The United States is the largest fur market and fur-consuming country in the world. Many inquiries concerning fox farming are sent to the Biological Survey. The problems met by fox and other fur farmers require, as in the case of other live stock, a knowledge of species, temperament, sanitation, diseases, and parasites. In addition, fur farmers are handling wild animals in captivity, and not domestic stock. A knowledge of pelts, particularly of values and market requirements, is essential to success from the business standpoint, and this ordinarily means to visit personally warehouses manufacturing furriers, or sales of furs. As breeders can not always do this, representatives of the Biological Survey are constantly bringing before them all possible information relating to the fur industry in all its phases.

J. H. Heller and Col. Fred Reppert were business visitors in Huntington this afternoon.

John Joseph was a Fort Wayne business visitor today.

MAIL CARRIERS SAY BAD ROADS CAUSED THEM TO LOSE MONEY

Warsaw, May 4.—Bad roads, combined with snow, rain, mud and recent flood conditions have worked hardships on mail carriers in northern Indiana. Some mail carriers assert that they have lost money because of the repair bills to their automobiles resulting from almost unpassable roads.

Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Druggists Guarantee First Pint Bottle of Allenru to Show the Way to Complete Recovery

Mr. James H. Allen, of Congress Avenue, Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, are dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called ALLENRU, to others, who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers and instructed druggists to guarantee a full pint bottle as above stated. The Holthouse Drug Co., can supply you.

STATE MEETING

SET FOR JULY 3

Auctioneers' Association of Indiana Have Big Meeting Planned

The Auctioneers' Association of Indiana will hold a state meeting in Indianapolis on July 3. The auctioneers are planning to make this one of the largest meetings of any association in America.

This week has been a booster week throughout the state in connection with a membership drive. A meeting was held in the Anthony hotel in Fort Wayne last night, which was attended by a large number of auctioneers of northern Indiana. Mr. R. C. Foland, state secretary of the organization, presided at the meeting. Col. Fred Perdue, of Noblesville, made an excellent address.

Every auctioneer who attended the meeting last night not only joined the station Association but pledged himself to secure two new members, by the time of the state meeting in Indianapolis on July 3. A meeting was held in Crawfordsville on last Monday night, and one in Muncie on Tuesday night. Tonight a similar meeting will be held in Logansport in addition to boosting the membership in the organization, these meetings tend to for a better acquaintanceship among the auctioneers and to elevate the profession.

The International Auctioneer, the auctioneers' journal which is published in this city, has been adopted by the Indiana Association as the official organ of the association, the same as the other state associations and the national association. It is mainly through this publication that the state associations are being organized.
