Entered at the postoffice at Decatur, Indiana, as second class matter.

Before the Yeomen campaign is finished every man and woman in this community should be working. That will be a real organization and one that will overwhelm our visitors.

The strikes proceed, growing a little in violence as the men become hungry and the operators continue obstinate. In the meantime what has become of the congressional investigating committee appointed weeks ago? Perhaps Mr. Vestal who is here today can tell us.

According to the first vote on the soldier's bonus now being taken by the Literary Digest, sentiment is about evenly divided. Of the first 100,000 votes 46,609 favored the bonus while 47,469 opposed it. It is explained however that this vote was taken largely from the east and the sentiment there is known to be against the bonus.

Chairmen of the committees for Yeomen day started this morning and the big campaign is on in earnest. From now on until August 22nd there is to be no let up. Of course this means hard work but the cause is worth it. We have cut all bridges behind us and we will make a real effort to bring the home to Indiana. To that end we will enlist the assistance of every citizen of the Hoosier state. Anyway we are going to have one big Yeomen day, unexcelled in all history of that lodge and it is safe to predict that the community which lands the home will have to overcome this city.

An Indianapolis dispatch says the state tax rate will be increased. You bet it will not only next year but the next and the next and on and on, time without end, so long as the present tax law exists. They are preparing you for it but the average citizen who thinks doesn't need to be prepared or reminded for he knows it. So long as control of taxes is in the hands of a few men in the capitol your taxes will grow until you finally tell them just to take the property and operate it. The state commission effects local taxes also for the limit of indebtedness is unchanged though the valuations have been tripped Tax rate increase? Of course it will and if you don't vote for a change of the state administration this year you are approving the present system of taxation in Indiana with all its confiscatory powers.

The Literary Digest, perhaps the greatest weekly of its kind in the world, is now taking a test vote to ascertain the real sentiment of the people with regards to the present prohibition laws. To ascertain the real desires of the people they are taking the vote in a systematic way from ten million adults and to the surprise of many the results of the first 100,000 votes shows a distinct majority in favor of dampness. 32,445 voted to continue the strict enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act while 39,665 favor a modification and 22,547 favor a repeal. Of course those who favor a repeal would likewise favor modification if that was all they could get and so you have a vote of two to one in favor of a change. The next one hundred thousand may show the reverse sentiment and as the total of ten million ballots will be taken, it is early to voice an opinion. The vote will be watched with interest however and no doubt there will be more or less ward heeling done, of course in a very proper way. On the first report however the showing is distinctly damp.

PROMINENT MEN NAMED IN RAID ON BOOZE RING

three weeks to present all of the evidence to the grand jury.

"This evidence will cover the collection of $500,000 most of which was 'cleared' through the offices of Mitchell," Earnshaw stated.

"Specialized and efficient business procedure, rivaling even the most highly organized modern establishment, was followed by the ring," Earnshaw stated. "The money collected was distributed freely among federal officials to gain immunity."

"A wealthy foundry owner was in charge of the drugstores whose licenses had been revoked. Within a few months, we will show he collected $20,000 from druggists conclusively. This man's work was confined exclusively to drugstore violators of the law and he was strictly prohibited from approaching any others."

"There is evidence to show that all brewers were forced to pay this ring $5 on each barrel of real beer shipped from the Illinois district."

A wealthy brewer, who has been granted immunity, will be one of the main witnesses for the prosecution.

The prosecution has followed an investigation covering a period of eighteen months, ordered by federal authorities when saloons started operating wide open in Chicago.

Besides federal officials, a number of city employees, including police officers, are involved in the evidence.

Depleting Gasoline Reserves

"It is a matter of common knowledge that this year will see a revival of (gasoline) consumption which will tax the physical reserves of the oil industry to the utmost," says Petroleum Age in its issue of April 15, 1922.

Present conditions indicate that the prediction of April 15 will be fulfilled. The estimated increase of automobile registrations in the states served by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) for 1922 will approximate 500,000, making a total probable registration of 3,850,000 cars.

Reports show that during the spring of 1922 large stocks of gasoline were accumulated, due to two principal factors, both transitory; first, the sensational production of the Mexia and Haynesville fields, a production which, however, has already fallen below half its peak and is diminishing rapidly; and second, the heavy and prolonged rains which made touring almost impossible.

These reserves of gasoline have served to keep the market steady. Nevertheless, the vast increase in the number of automotive vehicles and the extraordinary average mileage per car are depleting the reserve stocks rapidly.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana), following its established practice of anticipating the needs of the people in the territory it serves, has increased its facilities to an extent which enables it to guarantee that it will be in position to supply its patrons wherever they may be located.

The entire organization, realizing that it is dealing in a commodity essential to the happiness and well-being of all the people is bending every effort to keep the supply ahead of demand, that the obligation of the Company to the consuming public may be discharged completely.
