

The Service Rendered by Efficiency in Gasoline Production

THE man who fills his tank at a Service Station, or feeds his tractor from a tank wagon, may not realize it but sheer efficiency on the part of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is to a large degree the reason why the gasoline is there when he wants it.

Oil News says: "During the winter 1921-1922 the majority of the refineries in the Mid-Continent field were idle. This was due largely to the fact that they could not refine and sell at a profit. They were in a way inefficient. Many could not operate. Others that might have operated could not get the crude. The large plants could and did finance themselves and sold some of their output as they made it at a profit."

Keen efficiency—in small, as well as in big things, has enabled the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to refine and sell petroleum products at a fair profit, under the most competitive of business conditions.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has 1600 competitors in the Middle West.

Standard Oil Company (Indiana) efficiency runs through every operation. It governs the appointment of executives. It selects oil men of long training and experience who know when and what type of crude to buy. It directs the style of machinery, the kind of stills to be used. It determines the various products to be refined from the crude so that there may be no waste of oil, effort, time or overhead.

This efficiency, and the confidence which the public places in it, enables the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to maintain its position as the leader in the industry. It enables the management to plan for the future with confidence, and to keep its refineries going during periods of low consumption that it may be in position to meet adequately the unusual demands during periods of greater consumption.

It is this efficiency which has spotted the country with bulk and service stations and caused more than 6000 motor tank wagons to traverse the streets and highways supplying the people everywhere with first quality petroleum products at prices which are fair.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) submits that such efficient management is the essential basis of the valuable service it renders.

U. S. Influence Strongest Factor Now in Argentine

By PEDRO LAGRAVA

United Press Staff Correspondent
Buenos Aires—(By Mail to United Press.)—North American penetration in the Argentine is now an indisputable fact. It is evident in every class economic penetration, cultural penetration, legal, industrial—in methods, in customs, in everything, even to the vices.

In the economic order of the republic many great banking institutions and many important American firms are definitely established. Five or six years ago there was not a single branch of an American bank here, and very few firms were all-American.

All the newspapers now carry large ads of products of the United States. The merchants talk of American commercial methods, and when they want to tell an employee to accelerate his activities, they advise him to be more "Yankee," to think rapidly and work quickly, to lose no time.

In court cases, when a lawyer has made a good case and can find no further precedent in Argentine law to support his argument, he cites laws or precedents of the United States. The judges themselves uphold their decisions by citing pronouncements of their American colleagues.

In cultural aspect also the Argentine people incline toward America, while European development is receiving less attention. The newspapers receive their news largely from American agencies, the United Press maintaining a leading position. Daily many columns are filled with news and comments of the United States.

The part of the population which understands and speaks English, that is, large, reads the American magazines, papers, etc. A few years ago much enthusiasm for boxing and football, as well as for tennis and even boxing interested nobody. Football was little known. Today there is as baseball, as in the Anglo-Saxon countries.

The smart dressers attempt to copy American styles of wearing apparel. The devotees of the movies ape the customs and habits of the stars of the silver sheet, where they see how people live north of the Rio Grande. Even in the cabarets, salons, and social functions, the tango is giving way to the foxtrot, the shimmy and the "Boston."

The clubs are adopting names such as "American Social Club," "Young Men's Dancing Club," etc., all American names.

East Versus West for Museum Championship

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—(United Press) The war of the arts is on—east against west.

The Widener collection of Pennsylvania and the Huntington collection of California are vying for the final championship, the world's title in art collections.

With the recent acquisition of Rembrandt's famous masterpiece "The Descent from the Cross," the Widener museum offset the prestige won by Huntington, by his purchase of Gainsborough's "The Blue Boy" for $800,000.

While the purchase price of the "Descent from the Cross" has not been made public it is said to run considerably over the amount Widener paid for his last Rembrandt, rumored to have been $500,000.

"The Descent from the Cross" is the flowering of the genius of the great Dutch master and marks the culmination of his efforts to interpret religious fervor. Like other "old masters" it has had a long and varied history and for many years its authenticity was doubted. At last restored and reinstated to its rightful place in the art world, it moved from owner to owner until it was sold at Christie's, London's famous auction room.

This is the thirteenth Rembrandt Widener has added to his great art collection at Elkins Park, his beautiful estate near here.

While Huntington has been building a magnificent museum out on his California estate, Widener has been quietly acquiring picture after picture.

The winner in the contest will be the public, for it is said that both collections will eventually be left the people. The city of Philadelphia has recently been enriched by the wonderful collection of English paintings, valued at more than $1,600,000, left it by the late John H. McFadden.

INTERESTING IF TRUE

London, Oct. 9.—The first legal recognition of the value of an atom was registered here when an insurance company paid 147 pounds in respect of the breaking of a radium tube at the London hospital, whereby an atom of radium was lost.

Fatty Arbuckle to Be Seen in Movies Again?

New York, Oct. 10.—(Special to Daily Democrat)—"Fatty" Arbuckle is soon to roll back into the movies with his bag full of slapstick tricks, it was reported in theatrical circles here today.

"Fatty," who was forced to pull a fadeout after he got mixed up in the scandal following the death of Virginia Rappe, screen actress, is warming up at Hollywood to toss custard pies and bathing girls through thousands of feet of celluloid, it was said.

Nothing but silence on the accuracy of the reports came from the office here of Will Hayes, czar of filmdom.

What is the difference between a Gruen and an ordinary watch?

The difference between a Gruen Watch and an ordinary watch is something more than a difference in material and construction. It is the difference one sees at a glance between an oriental rug and a rug woven in a western loom. It is the thing called Gruen distinction, and is formed of the same spirit of fine craftsmanship that exalted the masters of the ancient Guild of Watchmakers.

We have many beautiful new examples of this Gruen Guild craftsmanship. Whether or not you think of buying a watch now, you will be interested in seeing them, for they include many unusual specimens of the modern watchmaker's art. And you will be surprised at the moderate prices.

Renown "Underfeed" Range

is the only real improvement made in range construction in 25 years.

The coal is fed under the fire and the smoke, gas and soot are consumed.

Will positively save 25% or more on fuel bills.

The "Underfeed" principle is the only scientific way of burning soft coal. The fuel being fed under the fire, all products of combustion (gas and smoke) are forced to pass through the red hot coals, and they are converted into a blazing flame, producing a strong even heat at all times.
