Out of every 100 bushels of wheat the Indiana farmer raises, he must sell 30 bushels in Europe. He must sell in Europe 15 of every 100 hogs he markets. With that market practically closed by the new republican tariff bill, it means a glut in the domestic market and lower prices for farm products. Vote for Tyndall.

According to Lorado Taft, the Chicago sculptor, the only objects of beauty possessed by the average small town in America are its trees and its girls. However that may be, it remains to be said that even the girls in multitudes of cases mar their beauty by painting their cheeks and powdering their noses.—Goshen Democrat.

Two weeks from today is election in this county the campaign is on and the candidates are seeking your support. The democrats present a splendid ticket of excellent men, each qualified for the position he seeks. They were selected in the primary by a majority of the voters and they deserve your support election day. Opposition to them is made to disrupt the party and for no other reason. Think it over.

Senator Jim Watson seems to be about the only politician defending the tariff law. Any way his services are in great demand. After saving (?) Indiana he was shot over to Ohio, then on to Rhode Island, New York and other eastern states where the people seem to be disputing his claims that this law which increases living costs from ten to twenty-five per cent and makes a foreign market impossible, is the best ever written. The gentleman may be surprised when he reads the election returns.

The Adams County Witness would compare John Tyndall's record in the state senate with that of Albert Vestal in congress. Fine. You will find a record of votes cast by Tyndall every one for the people he represented and no effort to secure cent more than his salary for the service. Search not too hard for Albert's record as to amounts of cash drawn from the government or you will find several items embarrassing to explain. Also Vestal's vote has been for the tariff and for other measures which are intended to make the middle classes pay the freight.

Secretary Wallace is out telling the farmers how congress has helped them, but the trouble is his explanation don't put any money in their pockets with which to pay their November installment of taxes which have doubled in recent years, or since Goodrich got his new reform tax law into operation. The farmers don't accept Mr. Wallace's explanation of the alleged helpful laws. They know that under that emergency tariff bill, with a tariff of 35 cents a bushel on wheat the price dropped down below a dollar a bushel, and the tariff on eggs and butter and other products had no more effect than water on a duck's back.—Columbia City Post.

Henry Ford is a close friend to President Harding which fact makes the following paragraph from his paper, the Dearborn Independent of more than passing interest:

"If the President will take a private oath to keep before himself the hundred millions of toiling folk who stretch away north, west and south from Washington, if he will look to them for the verdict on his work, he can yet recover his administration and perform a service for his country which will enroll his name high up among the list of those who were presidents indeed. There is time, there is opportunity. The question is, is there courage? Dare the President shake off from him the human and political causes of his failure? Dare he face the enmity of the machine? Why should he fear?—there is nothing more for him to lose. With the machine, there is nothing that he can gain. His only possible salvation is in an alliance with the people who placed him where he is, and, who mutely wonder why a President so soon loses touch with them."

Hurts the Farmer

Two years ago this month the Democratic Underwood tariff law had been in effect for six years.

In May, 1921, an Emergency tariff bill was passed by a Republican congress and signed by a Republican President. Note how it affects prices of farm products.

The figures are furnished by the Department of Agriculture. The first column shows the Democratic prices of October, 1920. The second column shows the prices of the same articles in September, 1922, after the Emergency Agriculture tariff of May, 1921 had been in effect more than a year. The third column shows the rate of duty under the Emergency tariff. Note how prices of all "protected" articles fell under the high tariff:

	Oct. 1920	Sept. 1922	Tariff
Hogs	$ 14.71	$ 8.77
Beef Cattle	7.72	6.45	30%
Veal Calves	13.31	8.71	30%
Sheep	5.50	4.19	$2 head
Milch Cows	76.00	48.00	30%
Horses	112.00	82.00
Wool	.28	.31	15 cts.
Wheat	2.14	.88	15 cts.
Corn	1.21	.63	35 cts.
Oats	.61	.32
Barley	.91	.46
Rye	1.62	.63
Potatoes	1.35	.88
Clover Hay	22.00	11.00
Alfalfa Hay	24.00	12.00
Timothy Hay	22.00	11.00
Eggs	.56	.28

NOTE—In October, 1921, five months after the Emergency Tariff law was passed, wool was only 16 cents a pound, according to the U. S. reports.

MARKETS FOR FARMERS

Out of every 100 bushels of wheat raised in the United States, 30 bushels must be sold in Europe. Out of every 100 bushels of corn raised, 15 bushels must be sold in Europe (usually in form of pork.)

A high tariff kills foreign trade and destroys foreign markets. With no foreign markets for our surplus products, the home market is glutted and prices fall, and farmers suffer.

The Democratic party made markets for the farmer and made him prosperous. When the farmer is prosperous everybody is prosperous.
