Daily Report of Local and Foreign Markets

New York, Jan. 8.—Adoption of a resolution to recall American troops from Germany caused some jelling at the opening of the stock market on the theory that this action might indicate the foreign situation might be more serious than was generally known. But private advices from abroad suggested that steps were under consideration which might clear up the negotiations fangle in an unexpected fashion and offerings in the early dealings were well absorbed. Pressure was still concentrated on small groups of stocks which had taken the lead in the last advance and these issues showed good sized recessions on the initial transactions.
