SAYS CHILDISH DREAMS MADE LEOPOLD BAD

Leopold craved friends and friendship, but due to his peculiar nature he was unable to make intimates, the doctor said.

Leopold sought to live an unemotional life, seeking instead to live one of "sheer intellect." His philosophy was one of sheer selfishness and he felt himself above the laws governing the average man." Dr. Hubert said.

Touching on Leopold's criminalistic life, Dr. Hubert said that the youthful slayer started off with stealing stamps and cigar bands from members of the family, stealing fruit, sending in fire alarms, stealing automobiles and robbing a fraternity house at Ann Arbor, Mich. Leopold gained no pleasure or thrill from his depredations, committing them only because his associate, Loeb, suggested them, the doctor said.

The announcement came as a complete surprise. It had previously been rumored that Miss Ayres was engaged to a prominent screen actor.

The film star was introduced to Reachi at a dinner party last October. He has been connected with the diplomatic service for the last seven years and is credited with uncovering and breaking up a plot to overthrow the present government of Mexico.

AGNES AYRES
Los Angeles, Cal.—Agnes Ayres, screen celebrity, who started her career in Chicago, has formally announced her engagement to S. Manuel Reachi, diplomat and attaché to the Mexican consulate at San Francisco. It was estimated that the marriage would take place within the next month.

your faces, my friends and neighbors, I know that I did not come in vain."

Heedless of their safety, men, women and children, the well dressed business man, the chic girls and the shabby mountaineers crowded in the way of Davis' automobile shouting greetings and trying to grip his hand as he drove to his quarters.

Bands blared, rockets boomed, flags were waved from windows of the buildings festooned with gay bunting. Every familiar device known to Main street was brought into play to tell the democratic candidate that Clarksburg was glad to see his wife, however.

The democratic candidate talked of the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks—all of them agreeing with Loeb's story—he showed no emotion whatever. He was struggling desperately to be accurate—that seemed to be his chief interest.

"The end of the life is the end of all" he told me and said further that he had no fear whatever of death. He said he thought his father should disown him and let him be hanged," Dr. Hubert said.

Leopold's motive in participating in the crime was wholly due to a desire of Leopold to commit the "perfect crime," the doctor said. Leopold wanted to postpone the kidnapping project, but Loeb insisted on going ahead with it, the doctor said.

Dr. Hubert further stated that Leopold had contemplated a trip aboard to get away from his associate of morbid suggestions."

Discussing his psychiatric examination of young Leopold, said he found the patient had the intellect of a man of about thirty but he emotion was extremely weak. This disparity between intellect and emotions he considered very important, the witness said.

Davis was formally welcomed by Harris G. Otis, city manager, who summed up the greeting of his native Clarksburg by saying:

"No honor can come to you like the whole hearted love from friends who call you—John."

The non-partisan spirit of the occasion was voiced by Samuel R. Bentley, president of the chamber of commerce and a republican leader.

"We are proud of you, Mr. Davis, but if you win the presidency, we will be prouder still. And when you leave our gates, our hearts and hopes go with you—God bless you, John."

Indianapolis, Aug. 9.—A race between three world's champion harness race horses will be held at the Indiana State Fair here, September 1 to 6 on Tuesday, it was announced today by members of the state board of agriculture.

Resentful of the references to their beloved Clarksville in the metropolitan press as the "sleepy little village" the commercial clubs had festooned Main street with flags and banners and made arrangements that befit a thriving manufacturing city welcoming a favorite son.

Davis was greeted by a reception committee of 101 headed by J. Horner Davis, former postmaster, democratic county chairman. Conspicuous on this committee was Virgil L. Highland, republican national committeeman.

While Davis's proceeded down Main street, with Mrs. Davis sitting proudly at his side, the committee followed afoot.

Sam Benton, president of the chamber of commerce, delivered a formal address of welcome, to which Davis responded in his happiest vein. A reception followed.

"I have come back home for strength, for sympathy, encouragement and support," said Davis. "By there will be space in the cattle barn at the Fair grounds for 2,000 cattle. In addition there will be room for 1,000 sheep. The new cattle barn which will be completed and has the largest display space of week before the Fair begins is one of the largest buildings in the state and has the largest display space of any building in the middle west. It cost approximately $275,000. The barn will be used for conventions and exhibitions for other enterprises.

The sheep barn will be finished about the same time at a cost of $81,486. It will cover a space 150 by 336 feet square.

Robber Bear Hurled To Death In Deep Canyon

(By Lawrence Martin)

Yellowstone Park, Wyo., Aug. 9.—A robber bear was hurled to his death in the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone park here because of his persistence in crime.

The other morning a ranger at the Canyon ranger station was notified by an excited tourist that a black bear was in the rear of the tourists' automobile, stealing bacon concealed under the back seat. The bears said the tourist, refused to get out of the car.

The ranger went to the scene of the crime, and found the car parked not far from the rim of the canyon, with the bear in sole possession. He ran towards Bruin, waving his arms to frighten him off, but the bear would not frighten. Finally, after trying in vain to dislodge the thief the ranger threw a stone. It struck the bear in the head, and he toppled from the car, and staggered away apparently dazed. He was so nearly knocked out that he did not see where he was going, and walked directly over the rim of the canyon, and was killed in a sheer drop of several hundred feet.

So out of the fullness of our to the first projecting ledge, hearts, Mrs. Davis and I bow in gratitude."

"As he told me each little detail of the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks—all of them agreeing with Loeb's story—he showed no emotion whatever. He was struggling desperately to be accurate—that seemed to be his chief interest.

"But you cannot transplant a tree after it has attained a growth of 45 years in its native soil.

"So you can never transplant me. When I think of home, I think of this spot. So out of the fullness of our to the first projecting ledge,
