TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss And Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wisp, gray faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and lustrous.

Bloomington — Without water, Bloomington laundries are sending their "washings" to Indianapolis by truck.

MARKETS-STOCKS

Daily Report Of Local And Foreign Markets

Opening Grain Review

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Grain futures started sharply higher on the board of trade today.

Buying in wheat was attributed to a sharply higher opening at Liverpool, that market fully responding to our upturn of Saturday. Shorts were among the principal buyers.

Original bulls supported corn. They see no change in the situation and are confident prices are going higher.

Oats lacked features but shared in the strength of other grains.

Higher hogs and cables sent the provisions list higher.

Republicans At Bluffton Elect A City Chairman

Thomas E. Miller was elected, republican city chairman of Bluffton at the meeting of city precinct committeemen held Saturday. J. R. Spivey was elected treasurer and D. C. Kilty was elected secretary. The Decatur republicans did not hold an election of a city chairman last Saturday, County Chairman L. A. Graham and other active republicans being of the opinion that it was too early to elect a chairman at this time. As far as known, no man is a candidate for the place. State Chairman Clyde Walb sent out a call last week asking that city chairmen be elected and in Indianapolis two city chairmen were elected by the opposing factions, the Coffin and Shank wings of the party. Arno Spiegel, of Fort Wayne, was elected chairman of the Fort Wayne republican organization. The democrats will elect city chairmen sometime before the primary election next May.

ALL OVER INDIANA

Altanta—An elm, six feet across at the base, and the largest tree in Tipson county, has been felled on the farm of Mrs. Emma Bozell, near here.

Washington — Tragedy visited a house here twice in a year. A year ago William Horney was killed in a coal mine accident and, recently, Lester Emmerling, railroad brakeman, who moved into Horney's house later, was killed in a railroad accident.

Kokomo—Seven Kokomo banks in annual reports announced a total of $9,437,148 in deposits.

Fort Wayne—The civil city of Fort Wayne will collect $63,834.38 more in taxes this year than last, it has been announced. Including taxes to be collected by the county treasurer this year is a sum of $203,487 in delinquent taxes.

Tipton—This city is to have a new industry. The General Piston Ring company of Indianapolis is to establish a branch factory here.

Lafayette—Orville Geiger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Greiger, of Rich Grove township, Pulaski county has been awarded the post-catching championship. He caught 93 rates, 153 mice, and 776 sparrows.

Terre Haute—The city government here is homeless. The old city hall is being razed to make way for a new $750,000 structure.

Connersville—Henry Sunman fell through the board floor in the basement of his lunch room into a sub-cellar. Turning on a light on an extension cord which he carried with him on the fall he saw he had landed just no the edge of a deep well.

Gary—Pete Felzel had a hectic time with a little bottle in a taxi. He told the driver he craved scenery and wanted to be hauled to the harbor. When the harbor was reached Felzel was asleep, penniless. While being hauled back to authorities Felzel was thrown out at a sharp corner and completed his ride in an ambulance.

Ridgeville.—Abi Gantz, farmer near here, got the thrill of his life when he fired at a speck in the sky with a 22 short rifle and an eagle nearly seven feet from wing tip to wing tip, fell at his feet.

Atlanta.—Miss Fanny Leach, clerk in a general store here thought she could slice meat and found out she could do it too well when she nearly cut off her thumb.

Friend in Need and in Deed

By DUFORD JENNE

(Copyright.)

"FRANKLY, I positively dislike you!"

Wells looked at her with admiration even as she plainly told him how she regarded him. He did not wonder that his close friend, Elmer Hayes, was finding her beauty almost mesmerizing—her dark hair, thick and lustrous, made even more unusual and appealing the odd golden tint of her eyes.

"I understand your feeling," he said calmly, "but I also know that you have stepped in between the girl to whom he is engaged and with whom he would be happy."

She laughed her metallic laugh that was far from the velvety affair she used with Elmer. "How do you know that?"

"You know very well, yourself. You are simply playing with Elmer—just as I am aware you have with others. You are shallow, treacherous, and you'll come pretty close to wrecking a fine chap and a fine girl's happiness."

"Pooh, Wells. It is unfortunate that you and I happened to grow up together. As for Elmer, I like him."

"The point is—would you marry him?"

"That is my business, my friend. Now you better go."

When Wells reached the apartment he shared with Elmer, he found the latter busy with a small package which he was undoing.

"Look at this, old man; isn't that a beauty?" Elmer asked, his fine sensitive face lighting.

He held up a necklace, exquisitely wrought, just the kind to adorn a round, white, beautiful throat.

Wells gasped. "It's a beauty, Ed. For Ruth, I suppose."

Elmer's face changed. "Er—no. I got it for Verna."

"But—"

"Now, Mert, I know how you feel, but that's who gets it."

"All right, then, but are you sure you want to give up Ruth?"

Elmer leaned back, his eyes darkened. "I know. I ought to call things off with her—or decide. I can't bear to think of giving her up—and yet Verna—well, hang it, Verna gets it, that's certain."

"Then, why not play fair; release Ruth—there are a number who would be glad to win her."

"You're right. She telephoned that she wanted you and me to come out tonight to dinner with the family; and I'll—I'll tell her tonight." He stared at the necklace in his hand, and Wells knew it was not the necklace he was seeing but the future.

"And, remember, old pal, it's not a matter of brown hair staying brown but growing silver with the years," Wells added quietly. "Now, if I'm going with you, I must run down and get a shave."

Elmer roused himself. "All right, and, say, mail these letters and send that package by messenger. Save me the trouble."

An hour later the two friends started for the suburb where Ruth had her home. On the way little was said, for their friendship was old, and mere companionship sufficed, nor was the matter that worried both of them referred to except in a comment by Elmer:

"I suppose if I step out with Ruth you will step in."

"You can bet I will try. But the gray's in my hair pretty thick. She ought to have a mate of her age. She'd be a great pal, a fine mother to his kids, and she'd be true to the end—a one-man woman."

"Mebbe," Elmer answered aimlessly.

When they found themselves, later, greeting her, all that Wells had said came back forcibly to his mind. Her dark eyes had the frank, winsome look of one whose life runs like a crystal stream, deep and peaceful, without treacherous depths of thought and mood.

Wells saw during the dinner that Elmer's eyes were often upon her, and she did look like a white rose and all the white rose signifies. "I bet he's wondering about that necklace," Wells thought. "And wishing he had it back."

When the maid called her from the table on some errand Wells looked at his chum, and the latter looked at him in dumb misery that told plainly the regret that Wells had surmised.

When she came in again her cheeks were tinted deep, her dark eyes full of a happiness that made Wells' heart ache even as his own began to pound. She stopped before them, her eyes shining on them and on Elmer.

"Don't you see, you blind ones! Mother, a gift from Elmer! Oh, you dear!" she said softly.

Around the slim, full throat was Verna's necklace. Evidently the messenger had just arrived with it.

Amid the exclamation of pleasure, Wells glanced at his chum and saw him leap to his feet, gather her in his arms and kiss the white throat where the necklace lay. Her father's face was white with emotion restrained, her mother's frankly misty at the quick happiness that had come before them.

Wells took a long drink of water. On the way to the smoking room after dinner Elmer whispered in his ear: "You sent that to her instead of Verna?"

Wells nodded. Elmer pressed his hand, and said simply:

"Thank God! You're a friend in need and deed!"

EVERYBODY COME!

Eclipse Of The Sun To Be Seen January 24

The unusual spectacle of the moon crossing in front of the sun and dimming it from 85 to 90 per cent, will be seen by people in Decatur and Adams County on the morning of January 24, between 10 and 10:30 o'clock, it was stated today by the meteorologist at the Fort Wayne weather bureau. In a number of states to the north the sun will be totally eclipsed, presenting a phenomenon seldom seen. Those who will see the total eclipse will note the sun completely covered and its light entirely dimmed with the exception of a corona or halo which will surround it and rise the radiation of a greenish light over the earth. In total eclipses of the past ignorance of the phenomenon has always caused great fear among the superstitious.

Insurance Conference Opens At Indianapolis

Indianapolis, Jan. 19.—Observance of Insurance day, plans of insurance organizations for the coming year, and review of past accomplishments will constitute the chief affairs of the three-day annual state insurance conference which opened here today.

The meeting opened at noon today with a luncheon. The principal speaker was J. A. Giberson, of Altoona, chairman of the finance committee of the National Association of Insurance Agents.

Claris Adams, of Indianapolis, will be the principal speaker before a sectional meeting of the conference held by the Indiana Casualty Adjusters' Association tonight.

The program Tuesday will include a luncheon at which Dr. Charles J. Rockwell, director of the School of Life Insurance Salesmanship, University of Pittsburgh.

K. D. Vail, assistant manager of the Hartford Insurance company, of ## Chicago, was to be the principal speaker this morning of the Indiana Insurance Society. This is to be followed by a business meeting to complete the organization of the eight Indiana insurance associations which are represented at the conference.

The principal speakers Wednesday in the observance of Insurance day will be Thomas S. McMurray, Jr., state insurance commissioner; Newman T. Miller, state fire marshal; J. C. Doyle, of Chicago; G. Edgar Turner, Chicago, and D. M. Hobart, of Philadelphia.

Youth Confesses To Writing Worthless Checks

Fort Wayne, Jan. 19.—Paul Starke, 17, of Tecumseh street, who was returned from Chicago yesterday by Detective Sergeant Walter Immel, answer a charge of stealing an automobile, confessed to the detective on the train that he had issued bad checks in Fort Wayne to the amount of $38, according to Immel.

Starke was given a reward of $50 for finding the body of Judge Moran of Decatur, in the St. Marys river about a year ago. He put the money in a savings bank and continued writing checks after the amount had been all drawn out, he told Immel.

He confessed to issuing bad checks as follows: D. & N. drug store, $5; Lakeside drug store, $5; Haak barber shop, West Main street, $5; Miss Emanuel's drug store, $3, and another for $8, the police officer said.

The youth was arrested in Chicago for Fort Wayne officers on a charge of stealing an automobile belonging to Charles Alexander, 1115 College street. The machine was recovered at South Bend shortly after the theft.
