

DECATUR DAILY DEMOCRAT

Published Every Evening Except Sunday by THE DECATUR DEMOCRAT CO.

J. H. Heller, Pres. and Gen. Mgr. E. W. Kampe, Vice-Pres. & Adv. Mgr. A. R. Holthouse, Sec'y. & Bus. Mgr.

Entered at the Postoffice at Decatur, Indiana, as second class matter.

Subscription Rates:
Single copies 2 cents
One week, by carrier 10 cents
One Year, by carrier $5.00
One month, by mail 25 cents
Three Months, by mail $1.00
Six Months, by mail $1.75
One Year, by mail $3.00
One Year, at office $3.00
(Prices quoted are within first and second zones. Additional postage added outside those zones.)

Advertising Rates
Made Known by Application.

Foreign Representative
Carpenter & Company,
123 Michigan Avenue, Chicago.

Experiments are to be made in building highways out of rubber and while it will be considerably more expensive it may have advantages. We may have to adopt the old "town ball rule" that first bounce is out.

Don't be frightened Saturday morning about eight o'clock when twilight comes. It's an eclipse of the sun caused by the moon getting in between the solar disc and the earth and in some parts of the world will be total. Here it will lack one-twentieth, it is figured out but will be near enough total to make you wonder unless you know what is going on and why.

You do a mighty fine thing when you subscribe to the fund to purchase radio sets for the unfortunate blind. Think of the hours of wonderful entertainment for these folks. You can well afford to sacrifice a little to bring that much joy into the lives of those for whom all is darkness. The response is more than satisfactory and we commend you for it.

Taxes are two hundred per cent higher on the average over the United States than ten years ago and it therefore becomes a question of whether or not what we have is worth that much more. It is safe to predict that we wouldn't want to back up on schools or roads, even at that price, and that where most of the money goes, excepting that part which pays for the war.

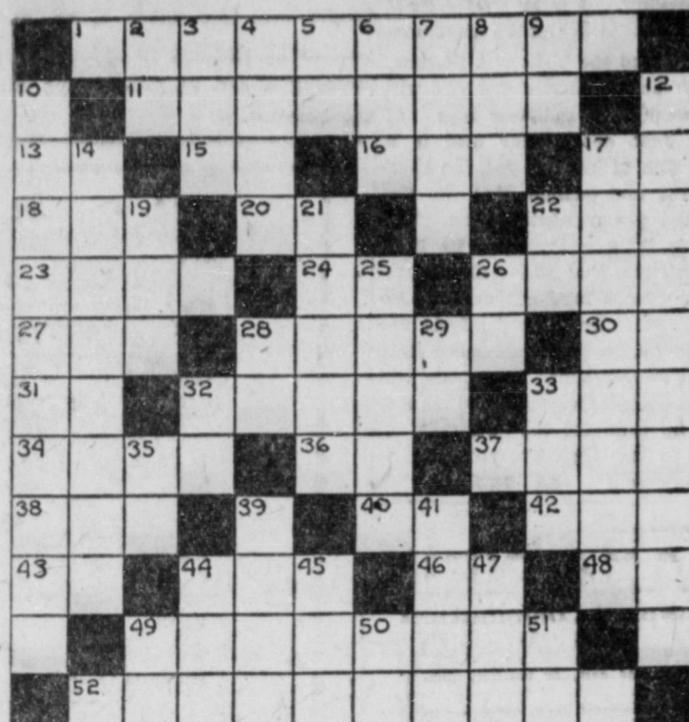

Albert J. Beveridge may not be nominated in a primary against Jim Watson but it's the surest kind of a "clinch" that he won't be nominated by a convention, so he can't lose in fighting the repeal of the primary and that part of the reason they are soft pedaling on it. In other words the entire state must stand the expense and nuisance, one way or the other, to satisfy the political ambitions of a couple of politicians.

We want every one of our thirty-five hundred subscribers to continue the Daily Democrat and we would like to add a few hundred. We will do every thing we can to make the paper more interesting and we can do it if you will help us, first by renewing, second by sending in local items, third by giving us your suggestions of policies, fourth by expressing yourselves on matters of public interest. Now is the time.

The grave of John Chapman in an old deserted cemetery near Fort Wayne is to be marked and made one of the "sights" for tourists who visit that section, it is announced. Chapman was known throughout Ohio and Indiana a hundred years ago as "Johnny Appleseed" because each year for a decade he travelled from Pittsburgh down the Ohio and then trailed off through the forests, planting appleseeds. As a result there grew throughout this territory hundreds of trees which bore luscious fruit and made thousands happy. They should mark the grave of this philanthropist who without means, gave more to the people than did most of the rich of his day.

The committee has reported to the governor, favoring the abolition of several boards and included a scheme for the consolidated buying of most

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE No. 44

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

Horizontal.
1—Tending to flock together
11—Issue from a source
13—Neuter pronoun
15—Skyward
16—Through
17—European river
18—Sink in the middle
19—Priming measure
20—Metal which
23—Pastries
24—For example (abbr.)
25—Uttered musically
27—Charity
28—Dir.
30—Initials of a President
31—Toward
32—Abolish
33—Part of verb "to be"
34—Apple
35—Point of compass
37—Ship
38—Fold of cloth
40—Weight (abbr.)
42—New Zealand parrot
43—Boy's name
44—Native metal
46—Note of musical scale
48—Roadway (abbr.)
49—Birds
52—Torn down

Vertical.
2—Note of musical scale
3—Australian bird
4—Yawn
5—Indefinite article
6—Knock
7—Prose paragraph
8—Across (poetic)
9—Yawn
10—Sent off
12—Gather
14—Made to measure
17—Food storerooms
19—Jewel
21—Methods
22—Father
25—Thin porridge
26—Quiet!
28—Note of musical scale
29—Symbol for thallium
32—Month of Hebrew calendar
33—Historic ship
35—Part of verb "to be"
39—Weight
41—Stain
43—Ancient Italian goddess of the harvest
45—Age
47—Shoemaker's tool
49—Note of musical scale
50—The king's navy (abbr.)
51—Point of compass

Solution will appear in next issue.

Solution of Puzzle No. 43.

SAMPLED
FROM LEAPED
YOU BEASTLY
PLY PANSY KEG
ALAS ATE F'RE
RELAG Y ORBN
ARTFUL PLAINT
G YET C ENNUI
ON R ERA CODA
NEW ALACK CIN
EARNEST ULT
DRENCH PREY
PATTERN

of the needs for the state institutions. It will be alright if its on the level and the graft can be kept out but its a long ways from being finished to that degree where any one can afford to celebrate on the idea that overhead of state government has actually been reduced. Through it all is the plan to work up something for the state police to do so they can argue that we must have such an organization. Then we fear it will be easy to add to that force from time to time without attracting much attention. Better watch 'em.

Now some one in the legislature proposes to "make" us be good Americans, own a flag, hang it up, pay due respect to it and give three cheers when the Dragon says so. To that doesn't seem American and we claim to be just as red blooded and patriotic as any one. Some how we don't like that "make" business and it seems to us that the average American sort "sets" himself when he learns of some organization to force things. We insist that we have too many laws now and that the smartest thing to do is to repeal and simplify them so we can follow orders without conflicting. Its got so we have to violate laws to obey others.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at all. The money spent by the state should of course come after recommendations from those in control of the various institutions which spend the money and this be passed on by competent men and then offered to the legislature.

There is little argument to be offered against the proposal of Governor Jackson that all expenditures come through the budget route. In every instance where the budget system has been honestly used it has proven wise. The state's business is no different than that of a corporation or a private concern. The businessman who does not estimate his expenditures and strive to stay in that limit is sure to come out of the little end of the horn at the close of the year if he can get out at