Some one wants to know if a bandit was hit by any thing but a "sawed off shotgun" if it wouldn't be just as effective. Perhaps we spend too much time hunting for the particular kind of a gun. Any will do and if one is not handy we might use the axe.

Obey the traffic rules, stop, look and listen, drive carefully, watch your speed, look out for the other fellow. You may be careless, don't take chances, remember that every week-end brings a big toll of death and injuries by way of automobile accidents and tomorrow is Sunday.

Indiana wins the Western College Conference baseball championship much to the delight of students and alumnae who have sought similar honors for a century. Rah, rah, congratulations, and hopes that this will be the starter for more victories in sports.

Old Sol tried to pull off another heat seige similar to that of a week or so ago but he seems to have slipped. After rushing the mercury up to ninety-two yesterday, he broke down and a cooler wave arrived during the night with some scattered showers which it is predicted will make it possible to get your breath for a day or two any way.

They are wearing felt hats in England it is said because they haven't any straws. The manufacturers of summer hats "busted" in the slump of 1920 in that country, it is claimed, and no one has had the nerve to resume the business. What we don't understand is why some American Jew or gentile has not discovered the shortage and opened a branch that will take care of the heads of the "Heughlish."

The fact that engineers are chaining off a new railroad route to this city indicates that the Nickle Plate has some idea of improvements in this section. Just what it will be or how it will effect this city has not been made public officially. In due time we will know all about it and be given the opportunity to help. We are sure that our progressive people will be glad to co-operate in any way possible for those things which will be of benefit to the railroad for in so doing they will help their community.

On June 14, 1777, the United States congress passed a resolution declaring that the flag of the thirteen united states of America be stripes, alternate red and white, that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field and that a new star be added for each new state admitted to the union. And so in commemoration of that event, tomorrow is Flag Day. You are asked to celebrate in by the display of the great flag which has become the emblem of freedom and unity. The first flag was made by Mrs. Betsey Ross, of Philadelphia, and it has lived all these years and will continue to be the most beautiful and attractive in all the world.

One thing this and every community can do that doesn't cost a penny and helps a lot is to be courteous to tourists. Each day from now until autumn will bring through your town many autoists. The occupants of these cars are strangers who wish information, perhaps some slight favor and being polite to them is only common decency. In many places information bureaus have been established. While it is perhaps not necessary to do that here it is easy to offer your services to give information or direction to the travelers and in the long run it pays for it leaves a good impression with them about your town.

Collier's tells of a popular young husband and father who "ran with a night crowd" that was two jumps ahead of him, while "the bill collectors were two jumps behind him." His crowd worried about him when he suddenly disappeared. They hunted him up, found him still working at the same job and living at the same home and rather disinclined to sociability, so they left him and proceeded to forget him. Then, six months afterward, some of his old night-hawk friends ran across him on one of the fishing streams he used to frequent with them in their stag excursions. Not another man in sight. While he was casting for trout, his wife and two children were upstream a little way, studying birds. "How come?" they asked him. "I went back inside my salary," he explained, "and paid or refunded every debt I owed. I learned that a brisk walk and good reading make a better evening than any I can buy. I'm getting my second wind as a husband and my first lessons as a father." So they left him, as a hopeless case.

Just Folks
by Edgar A. Guest

THE PROOF OF A GOLFER

The proof of the pudding's the eating, they say. Just watch a good golfer some day when you're out. And behold what he does as he plays. He never goes on leaving divots about. 'Till the grass is put back—there he stays! Observe him in traps as he stands for his shot. Then note, when the ball has been played. That he never unthinkingly turns from the spot. 'Till he's covered the footprints he made.

A golfer is more than a ball-driving brute. He is more than a mug-hunting czar. You may brag of your scores and may boast of your skill. To be known as a golfer you don't have to shoot. You may think you make in the traps you don't fill. The course of your home club in par. You don't love the game as you should. But you do have to love every blade of the grass. For your attitude unto the sport you enjoy. Every inch of the fairways and greens. Isn't proven by brilliance or force. And if you don't take care of the course as you pass. The proof of a golfer—now get this, my boy! Is the care which he takes of the course. You are not what "a good golfer" means.
