Gasoline Selling For 15 Cents In Portland

Portland, Sept. 30.—Gasoline is selling at 15 cents per gallon in this city, as the result of a price cutting war which struck the city yesterday. The price dropped from 21 1/2 cents to 15 cents in one day. James Loy, who operates a garage and filling station four miles south of here, has been selling gasoline at 15 cents per gallon for several weeks, hauling the gasoline to his place from Winchester, where the price has been 15 cents for some time. Mr. Loy has been doing a rushing business, it is said, while the sales of gasoline in Portland fell off greatly.

Daily Report Of Local And Foreign Markets

OPENING GRAIN REVIEW

Chicago, Sept. 30.—(United Press)—Grain futures advanced to higher levels in initial operations on the Chicago board of trade today.

Continuation of short buying boosted wheat. The turnabout from a gradually sinking market, that had its inception yesterday, was regarded as a natural course and not reaction of bears. The large short interest created in the two weeks of drops is now covering.

The situation in corn remained unchanged. Opening advances were mainly in sympathy with the leading cereal.

Oats followed dother grains.

Provisions held steady with hogs.

LA FOLLETTE IS ELECTED SENATOR BY LARGE MARGIN

back for re-election.

There is every indication that Governor John J. Blaine will be the progressive candidate for United States senator against Lenroot. He will have the backing of the LaFollette organization, and places further hope for success upon dissatisfaction in republican conservative ranks.

The dissatisfaction within the regular republican ranks was caused by the abandonment of Roy P. Wilcox, convention candidate, who was defeated by LaFollette in the primaries. Wilcox, who fled as an independent for the election, withdrew with the charge that party leaders had deserted him for Dithmar.

schools will be held at various times during the day. Some of the programs will be given in the morning and others will be held Friday afternoon. Everybody is invited to attend the exercises at any of the schools, where they have pupils or in which they are especially interested.

The next day of interest to schools and pupils is October 7, which has been set aside as Riley day in Indiana. All Adams county schools will conduct special Riley programs and the day will be given over in general to the great Hoosier poet, whose works live among the greatest ever written.

DIVERS CERTAIN THAT SUBMARINE CREW PERISHED

Captain Ernest J. King, chief of the submarine station, declared he still had not abandoned all hope, but added:

"Every day's delay decreases the small chance of anybody being found alive aboard ship."

By Carl D. Groat

(United Press Staff Correspondent)—U. S. Submarine Base, New London, Conn., Sept. 30.—Tragic lack still trailed the navy's work of trying to rescue possible living men within the hull of the wrecked submarine S-61 today.

The two bulky, top-heavy derricks, Century and Monarch, which two days in succession have been driven by rough weather to seek shelter, were forced again early today to put back into a safe berth at Newport.

Admiral Christy had hoped to have them operating at the scene of the wreck by dawn today. Accordingly, he ordered them to proceed from Newport to the wreck area.

Cranes Return To Harbor
At Breton Reef lightship, however, the wind was found freshening and the sea kicking up, so the two cranes were compelled to lumber back into the harbor.

Later in the morning weather improved and it was hoped that they might be sent to the wreck area during the day.

Today is virtually last day of hope of getting any living men out, and naval men here admit that this hope is as good as nil.

The "zero" hour is past. If no hoist succeeds now, then, it will be a slow tedious progress to get the submarine to the surface.

No More Bodies Found

A late night message from Admiral Christy said that on the sixth descent of the divers yesterday he had given special orders to search for bodies though the primary object was to "plug up" the ship so it could be lightened and made more buoyant for the lifting apparatus. The last diver to enter the crushed vessel was unable, however, to find more corpses. Wreckage piled high and badly twisted had hampered the entire diving operations yesterday.

The upshot of the day's work was the finding of the bodies of William C. Teschemacher and John L. Gibson and the tragic negative report that the men did not know whether doors aft were sealed so as to perhaps hide living men beyond them.

Exploration was to continue today.

The extreme confusion within the hull indicated to Captain B. J. King, chief of the submarine base and others who have been out to the scene, that it may be impossible to check up definitely on whether the ship is other than a death cell.

COLT SHOW IS DRAWING CARD

The colts were all born last spring and summer. The great interest shown in the show by the farmers indicates that the horse industry is receiving much attention in Adams county and that the farmers appreciate the shortage of good colts.

OIL MEN FIGHT

Ridgeville Man Seriously Injured In Combat With Harvey Tullis, Of Bryant In Jay County.

Portland, Sept. 30.—Willis Garringer, 24, Ridgeville oil gauger, is a patient in the Jay county hospital, suffering from serious injuries inflicted by Harvey Tullis, of Bryant, a pumper, during a controversy between the two men on the Reitenour lease in the South Jay oil field Tuesday morning.

Garringer is suffering from a broken nose, cuts about his mouth, teeth knocked out and possible internal injuries. A charge of assault and battery with intent to commit murder was filed against Tullis in the Jay circuit court yesterday afternoon.

The controversy between the two men is said to have arisen over the alleged theft of oil from the tanks on the Reitenour lease. Garringer alleges that oil was stolen from tanks owned by G. R. Kerlin several days ago by men employed by N. E. Masters.

He said he was sitting on top of a twelve-foot oil tank on the Reitenour lease Tuesday morning, whittling, when William Bauer, field superintendent for Masters, and Tullis and Dick Gross, the latter of Bluff Point, approached him. The oil theft matter was brought up and Garringer said they first accused him of having stolen the oil. Tullis later calling him a d—d liar, when Garringer charged that he (Tullis) had taken the oil. Garringer said he then told Tullis that such an accusation meant fight to him and subsequently came to the top of the tank and struck Garringer in the face, knocking him backwards into the tank, his feet, which became wedged in some pipes along the side of the tank, preventing him from falling. He said that Tullis then jumped upon him and kicked and beat him while he was in this helpless position. He said at the hospital that he didn't know whether Tullis hit him with his fists or with some blunt instrument.

Conservation Worker Lecturing In Schools
Indianapolis, Sept. 30.—(Special)—Alden H. Hardley, a field worker on birds and conservation, has resumed his work in the public schools where he addresses student bodies and is interesting them in conservation and audubon study.

Mr. Hardley is working jointly for the conservation department and the National Association of Audubon Societies. His lectures on birds and conservation subjects are illustrated with colored slides. These lectures are free and schools and sportsmen's clubs may secure Mr. Hardley's services by writing the Fish and Game Division, of the conservation department.

In a report which George H. Mann, field, fish and game division superintendent, has made to Richard Lieber, department director, he points out that during August wardens made 139 arrests and secured 126 convictions for violations of fish and game laws. Fines and costs collected that month, the greater portion of which goes to the public school fund, amounted to $2,324.85. The largest single offense of the month was hunting without a license, for which 67 persons were arrested.
