LOB DITCH TO BE RE-DREDGED

is waiting for the sugar beet crop at the sugar refinery at Decatur.

The land owners have been notified by publication that the assessments on their lands are now due and payable to the treasurers of Adams and Jay counties, along with the regular fall collection of taxes. The assessments can be paid at any time between now and December 26, at which time bonds must be issued for all unpaid assessments.

Homer Teeters, superintendent of construction, is very anxious for as many land owners to pay their Lob ditch assessments as possible, as this will enable him to proceed with the work of dredging and will save each land owner the extra costs in case bonds are issued against their lands.

Mrs. Fred Fullenkamp visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tim Corbett and family at Fort Wayne yesterday.

Adams Co. Residents Called To Service Of Their Community

Testing Associations, etc. Consequently fairs of today have a niche of their own in community life.
The Northern Indiana fair should be a strictly business institution and a big event for every farmer in Adams county.

The main purpose of the successful fair is to help the farmer and breeder of our county and make it possible for them to have a place where they can show and market their products and exchange ideas for the benefit of all. This county cannot hope to keep pace with its neighbors unless we receive the educational benefit which comes from such an institution. It will give us better farming methods, better live stock, better homes, and better schools. There can be no greater educational factor effecting the rural territory especially, than a well planned county fair with a definite educational program. We will gain the good will of our entire trade area and develop a better understanding among our citizenship. We will have furnished a show window for the products of the entire county to be shown, advertised, and even marketed. We will have established what is fast being recognized as one of the greatest educational institutions effecting the rural people and benefit both farmer and business man. We will have made possible an equal "Get Together" of rural and city dwellers that will bring about a better understanding between them and a feeling of cooperation that will mean much for the good of us all. We will have spent one week of the year selling our county and community instead of merchandise only. We know that if Decatur and Adams county should fail to realize the importance of this campaign that they will pass-up the greatest opportunity that has ever come to them to make this community potentially greater. We know that this is Adams county's one great opportunity to show to the entire surrounding territory that this community is really the farmers' friend and willing to help him build this great "Once a year educational school."

As a builder of community spirit, a fair has no equal. The renewing annually of friendships between the various sections of the county; the strengthening of the spirit of cooperation; the get to gether spirit—all these things go far in creating a broader minded and more progressive community. Any community without a true spirit of pride for its citizenship and resources is in a stagnation stage. Such a state of results. An investment in the Great-nin invariably produces disastrous results. Northern Indiana Fair project, while not made for pecuniary profit will return a handsome dividend through the building of a better community in which to live. A city or county is what its residents make it. No community will ever become great through excuses or alibis. The ownership of Belmont Park by the people of Adams county not only means a greater county fair but the fact it being located on the new William Penn highway makes it most desirable where other amusements can be added thus making a park useful the entire summer season.

rip was inspired by "purely political motives" and said her statements had been substantiated by the record of the inquiry thus far.

Cites Husband's Letter

Mrs. Lansdowne cited a letter written by her husband August 4, 1925, protesting against the long westward voyage and suggesting that a trial trip be taken to Detroit to test any possible deficiencies in the ship.

She also mentioned the reply of the navy bureau of navigation refusing her husband's request on the ground that the department could see no reason for such a trial trip.

Reading from a brief prepared statement, Mrs. Lansdowne also said that her husband sought to have the trip postponed because he knew violent storms were frequent in the Ohio region at that time of year.

"This protest was also overruled by the department," she said. "My husband believed that inasmuch as the Shenandoah was the only navy dirigible suitable for war use, it should confine its activities to war maneuvers entirely," Mrs. Lansdowne told the court.
