Stones Bear Message
Of Thanks From Moses
To Pharaoh's Daughter

Berlin, Oct. 22.—Twenty years after the discovery of massive stone tablets on the Sinai peninsula, a German Egyptologist, Professor Grimm, has come forward with a claim that the stones contain a message of thanks from Moses to the Pharaoh's daughter who found him in the bulrushes.

German scientists declare Professor Grimm's achievement in deciphering what proved to be ancient Hebrew on the tablets dispels doubt regarding the historic origin of the ten commandments and is one of the most important developments in many thousands of years of Bible research.

The tablets in question were found on what is believed to be the original Mount Sinai, by Flinders Petri, an English archaeologist, in 1905. They were too heavy to move so he photographed them, took impressions of the inscriptions and then buried them.

Professor Grimm is the first to solve their mystery.

Real Evolution Trial
Under Way In Little
New Hampshire Town

Franklin, N. H., Oct. 22.—(United Press) — The Tennessee evolution trial is having its aftermath in this little town in the New Hampshire Hills.

Billy and Dwina are playing the leading roles in a unique experiment which is a direct development of the one-horse town court case that interested the nation.

Billy and Dwina are playing the chimpanzees that are expected to answer the question: "How much does a monkey know?"

The Institute of Psychology at Yale University is conducting the experiment. Dr. Robert M. Yerkes, one of the leading psychologists of the United States and now professor of psychology at the institute, is directing the study of the chimpanzees.

Dr. Harold C. Bingham, research associate in psychology at the institute, is conducting a series of experiments in an effort to obtain more complete and accurate information on the working of a monkey's brain.

As a means of obtaining the necessary contrast between the functioning of a monkey brain and human brain, Dr. Bingham is subjecting his children to the same tests put to the chimpanzees.

"What we are studying particularly is the ideal conduct of the chimpanzees," declared Dr. Yerkes. "That is, we are trying to find out to how great an extent their brains are capable of entertaining and relating ideas, how much initiative they have and how they will approach problems with which they have never before been confronted.

"For example, Dr. Bingham fastens to the floor a long-necked bottle, lying on its side. In another part of the room he places a piece of wire with a hooked end. In the bottle he puts a piece of banana, a favorite food with the chimpanzees.

"The problem is to see whether they will figure out the connection between the wire and the bottle—whether they will discover that they can hook the banana out with the wire.

"In another test the banana is hung from the ceiling and the stick is put in another part of the room. Here there are three possibilities. They can either knock the banana down with the stick or set the stick upright on the floor, climb swiftly to the top of it and seize the fruit, or swing themselves out from another rope and reach the banana."

Professor Grimm is the first to solve their mystery.

NOTICE

Indianaapolis, Ind., Oct. 22.—Albert Hogston, state fire marshal, today stormed the offices of Lawrence Orr, state examiner and director of the state board of accounts, demanding an explanation why the budget committee reduced the salary of his inspectors from $180 per month to $135.

He also demanded to know why his salary was not placed at $500 as the head of the fire marshal's office, in unity with the salaries of other department chiefs. Hogston's salary is now $4,000 per year.

Hogston declared that all of his inspectors are skilled men of the highest type and even the old salary of $180 was confiscatory.
