Tri Kappa Benefit Bridge and Five Hundred Party—Elk's Home, 8 p. m.

A very clever Halloween party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Nesswald and daughters to a few of their friends at the Nesswald home. As each guest arrived, at the home they were met at the door by a policeman, Miss Tene Schurzer, who tied a bandage over their eyes and then a ghost, Miss Celia Nesswald, who ushered them through the door over the falls, which were bed springs cleverly concealed. The guests were then grasped by an old witch, Miss Amelia Nesswald, who conducted each one to a dark room, lighted only by a small Jack-O-Lantern, standing in the corner, and decorated with cats and Halloween trimmings. After each one discovered who the next one was, games were played and both prizes were won by Miss Goldie Linsenstoll. Those present were: Miss Lena and Emma Guth, Ureile Zoser, Helen Rarer, Mrs. Elmer Smith, Agnes Gase, Mrs. Herb Butler, Mrs. W. L. Stanley, Celia Malley, Irene and Margaret Holthouse, Mrs. Arthur Closs, Laura Stanley, Mrs. Frank Liechty, June Smith, Tene Schurzer, Goldie and Frances Linsenstoll, Mr. and Mrs. Nesswald and daughters. A delicious lunch was served in cafeteria style.

Mrs. Albert Miller will entertain the Young Matron's club, Tuesday evening.

The Phoebe Bible class of the Reformed church will meet with Mrs. Fred Fruchte, Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Shakespeare Club will meet Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. D. Suttles instead of Mrs. John Heller, as previously announced. Mrs. Morrison will have the paper. All members are urged to attend.

A cafeteria supper will be served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church, from five to seven o'clock Saturday afternoon, November 14. The liberal patronage of the public is solicited.

Mrs. Ayon Burk entertained the members of the Bridge Club last evening at their first meeting of the winter season. Besides the club members she had two tables of guests. They were Mesdames D. M. Hensley, C. V. Connell, Van Grant, J. R. Horton, R. C. Kohn, John Tyndall, Miss Emilie Crist, of this city, and Mrs. Phares Hiatt, of Jacksonville, Fla. Mrs. Hiatt won high score and was awarded a lovely prize. At the conclusion of the games the hostess served dainty refreshments.

Mrs. Charles Lose will entertain the Luncheon Bridge Club Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Will O'Brien. All members are urged to attend.

DEFENSE DEALS BLOW TO DEATH-BED STATEMENT

Although attorneys were prepared for a Saturday session, Judge Sparks adjourned court until Monday.

Noblesville, Ind., Nov. 7.—(United Press)—"Startling revelations" promised by the defense in the murder trial of D. C. Stephenson, former klan dragon, and Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry, for the death of Madge Oberholtzer unfolded rapidly today.

Dr. Valley Allstock of Columbus, Ind., a former klan organizer, was recalled for cross examination by the state on his story of an encounter with Stephenson and Miss Oberholtzer in Columbus last January. The witness said he met the girl and Stephenson in the latter's auto in Columbus.

Dr. Allstock was introduced to Miss Oberholtzer and she asked him where they could get a drink, according to the evidence.

"I told her I wasn't that kind of a doctor," the witness said.

Dr. Allstock is a dentist.

"Well can we get some alcohol?" Miss Oberholtzer asked, he said.

"Maybe I could get some, but who wants to drink alcohol?" the doctor said he replied.

"I can make a good drink with alcohol," Miss Oberholtzer answered, according to Dr. Allstock's story.

"Stephenson spoke up and said they had already had all that was well for them to drink," the witness said.

Every point made by Dr. Allstock was bitterly contested by the state but Judge Sparks admitted the evidence.

Previously the defense had failed to get character evidence on Miss Oberholtzer into the records through the testimony of Mrs. Cora Householder, a neighbor of the Oberholtzer family.

Mrs. Householder attempted to tell of alleged relations of her estranged husband, Charles Householder, with Miss Oberholtzer. The testimony was ruled out.

Four deputies of the Marion county sheriff's office presented for an alibi for Klenck, who at the time of the alleged abduction of Miss Oberholtzer was employed in the sheriff's office, according to the testimony.

A girl resembling Madge Oberholtzer held Stephenson in her arms and attempted to soothe him when he was ill with nervous trouble in an apartment on north Meridian street last February, Dr. John Smiley testified.

He did not mention Miss Oberholtzer's name but gave a description of the girl in the apartment resembling that of the dead girl.

471 Farm Institutes Scheduled In Indiana

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 7.—Four hundred and seventy-one farmers' institute meetings are scheduled in Indiana from Nov. 17 until Feb. 27, according to a recent announcement of the agricultural extension department of Purdue University. Five meetings are to be held the opening day Nov. 17, including Crawford county, at Union chapel; Washington county at Pekin, Martin county, at Mt. Springs; Greene county at Solberry, and Switzerland county, at Brushy Fork.

Chairman and speakers have been selected for the entire group of meetings, and the 1925-26 farmers' institute program has every indication of proving a great success. In the 67 counties holding institutes last year, the paid up membership totaled 29,037.

First attendance records were kept in 1894 and from 100 to 275 persons attended the sessions then, and only a few institutes were held each year. Last year, a total of 180,896 attended the 460 institutes held over Indiana, making an average attendance of 32 persons per institute. This was the largest number ever recorded for one year.

"The institutes for nearly 50 years have been the leading agency for extension work in Indiana and the hundreds of meetings held annually have provided, through speakers and demonstrations, information and inspiration for thousands of Indiana farm men and women," said Director G. I. Christie, of the Purdue extension service, in commenting on the institutes. "The institute has been a real force for better agriculture in Indiana."

February 27 will see the close of the institute program, with meetings scheduled in Morgan, Tipton and Clark counties. W. Q. Fitch of the agricultural extension department of Purdue University, is state leader of farmers' institutes.

Warns Truck Drivers About Old Bridges

Indianapolis, Nov. 7. — The state highway commission today broadcast warning to truck operators to use care in crossing old bridges which are scattered throughout the state.

Drivers of trucks are urged to drive slowly on these structures many of which are in very bad condition.

"There are a large number of these old structures on state roads," William J. Titus, chief bridge engineer said. "Built in the days of horse drawn vehicles and were never meant to stand the strain of modern traffic. Now, many years old, and weakened by exposure to the elements they are inadequate to meet the needs of present traffic, especially if the trucks are heavily loaded and move swiftly."

It also was pointed out that while many of the bridges are too weak for the strain others are too narrow to permit other than one way traffic.

The bridges are examined at regular intervals by engineers of the commissions and repairs made so they can be kept in use under ordinary conditions, it said.

Six old steel bridges have collapsed in the last few months due to strain officials of the commission said.

Huffman — The Muncie district convention of the federation of music clubs has chosen Newcastle for the next meeting.

What Would Greeley Say Today?

Time was when geography determined a young man's chance, and Horace Greeley said, "Go west, young man, go west." Today there are rich mines of opportunity in every state.

The electrical industry is prospecting new fields of endeavor each day, and present achievements only herald the growth to come.

Electricity performs the heavy duties of our work; it speeds us by ship, by train and trolley; it makes possible our automobiles, our telephones and radios; it prints our newspapers; it lights our homes. The General Electric Company holds a prominent position in the electrical industry and the young men in its ranks today will have opportunities to play an important part in its future development and guidance.

What Would Greeley Say Today?

Time was when geography determined a young man's chance, and Horace Greeley said, "Go west, young man, go west." Today there are rich mines of opportunity in every state.

The electrical industry is prospecting new fields of endeavor each day, and present achievements only herald the growth to come.

Recent years have brought radio to the world, power and light to many farms, and aids to the housewives, but there seems no end to development. Electricity generated by central stations and the number of their customers have doubled in the last ten years. And what of motors—of new uses for power in factories and homes—of electrical discoveries to come?

So today, Greeley might well say, "Follow the electrical line, young man, and find opportunity."
