Daily Report Of Local And Foreign Markets

Opening Grain Review

Chicago, Nov. 10—The board of trade here today opened weak with prices a shade lower.

An unusually small amount of interest was displayed in wheat. Lack of developments on which to base action kept influential traders on the sidelines. There were a few sellers in the pit at the opening gong.

Corn acted tight. Today the government report is to be issued. Pending that, both sides were disposed to use caution.

Oats trailed other grains as usual.

Provisions dropped slightly.

HOLD TURKEY DINNER

D. M. Niblick Attends Meeting Of Tri-State Merchants Association At Fort Wayne.

The annual turkey dinner of the Tri-State Merchants' Association was held in the new Shrine temple at Fort Wayne at noon today. Dan M. Niblick, of the Niblick & Company store, attended the dinner and the business sessions of the organization. The regular business session was held in the Shrine temple this morning. Following the dinner, the visiting merchants were to be entertained by the Lincoln Life Insurance Company. The entertainment included a trip through the company's home office building. During the day, the merchants also contracted for certain lines of merchandise for their spring trade.

Roosevelt Expedition Reaches Srinagar, India

Chicago, Nov. 10—At least four rams, true specimens of the rare ovis poli, are in the possession of the James Simpson-Roosevelt expedition. The field museum declared today when informed by the United Press of the arrival of Theodore and Kermit Roosevelt and other members of the party at Srinagar, India.

Whether the party reached "the roof of the world," the Pamir Plateau the museum does not know. The Pamir mountain, home of the ovis poli, known also as the Marco Polo sheep and often times referred to as the ancestors of all sheep, range to a height of 25,000 feet above sea level.

Theodore Roosevelt, in a cable some time ago, declared that the expedition had secured four rams and other specimens. The cable was garbled and did not state how high up the Pamirs the expedition penetrated to secure the rams.

The ovis poli is the largest sheep known. It is bigger than the big horn sheep of the Rocky mountains, and his huge spiral horns ranging from 56 to 75 inches from tip to base are very strong.

Radio Must Regulate Itself Or Abide By Government Rules

By S. P. Hollingsworth, (U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 10. — (United Press.) — Secretary of Commerce Hoover prepared to put the question of regulation squarely before the representatives of the radio industry and the public as they gathered here today for the Fourth Annual Radio conference.

Either the industry must regulate itself or it will be regulated by legislative enactment, is the alternative proposal Hoover is expected to make.

Hoover is believed to have arrived at a solution for one of the most troublesome problems encompassing the radio art in a concrete plan to limit broadcasting stations by allocation and voluntary agreements.

Under present laws, it was pointed out, there can be no restriction exercised by the secretary of commerce in the granting of permits to broadcast and this more than any other question has been the cause of the greatest friction in the industry.

Between 300 and 400 representatives of every element concerned with the development of radio are here for the conference.

For the first time the public will sit down at the table with the industry and discuss such vital problems as "Character of programs," "Who will bear the cost?" "Super-power," "Interference," "Static" and "Fading."

These are the problems closest to the public interest, it is held, and to reach the great body of listeners representative of the American radio audience, the commerce department decided to include among the conference this year the editors of radio magazines, newspapers and representatives of press associations to carry the argument for the public. Numerous organizations, to represent groups of listeners have been invited but there was found to be no body that could include all of the listening public.

The conference is expected to swing away from the purely technical consideration of the radio and launch into concrete proposals which Hoover will present to arrive at a definite understanding as to regulation in the future. Legislation to control the lusty, growing radio industry has long been regarded as inevitable. But Hoover has decided to give the industry one more chance to solve its own problems, set up its own rules and abide by them before appealing to congress for laws empowering him with the needed authority to "make the industry safe for the public."

Scientific investigation along the lines of radio development to perfect the art and eliminate many of its inconveniences and limitation is going forward and little can be accomplished at the conference to aid this program, it was said. The results of experiments, however, may be submitted to one of the committees made up of technical men to check over the data which has been collected.

A special committee, likewise, may be called upon to establish a set of rules to be followed where some important national event is to be broadcast so that the best results may be obtained for the public.

Secretary Hoover has set the ideal of public service before the industry. Where the action of any part of the industry, whether in manufacture, assembling and distribution or in broadcasting, falls short of this high standard, remedies should be provided by regulation. Radio, he feels, is an exceptional industry, in every way.

The conference is expected to form into committees for the full consideration of every problem however complex or in any way related to radio. Reports and discussions will then be had before the full conference.

Cousin Of Ed Green Is Elected Judge In East

In one of the bitterest and closest campaigns in many years, R. L. Hildebrand, a cousin of Ed Green, of Decatur, was elected judge of Lawrence county, Pennsylvania, the county seat of which is New Castle.

Mr. Hildebrand is a democrat, and the county is strongly republican. His opponent was Judge S. P. Emery who was seeking re-election. Mr. Hildebrand's margin of victory was 258 votes, while the rest of the republican ticket was elected by large majorities. Mr. Hildebrand is district attorney at present. Judge Emery carried the city of New Castle by a margin of 497 votes and Elwood City by 509 votes, while Hildebrand led in nearly all the country districts.

Cal Peterson is a visitor at Fort Wayne today.
