pace the others always get," said Warden Daley. "He will be granted no special consideration by any of the prison attendants."

Stephenson faced his prison term with courage, Daley said, and went through the details of entering the institution with little comment.

He will not settle into a definite routine of prison life until the first of the week, when he will be assigned to his duties, Daley said.

The trip from the Hamilton county jail to the prison was made without unusual incident, Sheriff Ggodins, who was in charge of the prisoner, said.

Shipping away from Noblesville in the dusk of the early morning, Gooding sped northward with his prisoner at a speed of 45 to 50 miles an hour. Few persons witnessed the departure from Noblesville at 4 o'clock this morning.

Stephenson grasped the hands of his fellow prisoners in farewell and waved at members of the sheriff's family as he walked to the auto with his head held high.

At Kokomo the party stopped for breakfast at a lunch counter. Stephenson ordered ham and eggs and ate heartily. He laughed and talked with Sheriff Gooding during the meal and poked fun at newspaper men because their auto had difficulty in keeping up with the sheriff's car.

After breakfast the party hastened northward through Peru and Rochester to Plymouth, where it swung westward toward Michigan City.

Arrests Of Motorists By Officers Not In Uniform Is Condemned

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 21.—The practice of officers of the law not in uniform making arrests of motorists for violations or alleged violations of the motor vehicle law in Indiana was condemned by the directors of the Hoosier State Auto Association, in session at the Hotel English, Wednesday afternoon. Steps were taken, through the authorization of E. W. Steinhart, president to appoint a committee to devise a plan which will be practicable and in no way interfere with the rights of any citizen.

The committee report will be acted upon by the directors of the motor body at a later date with a view of bringing relief to the motorists of the state. The reports of experiences received by the state association have brought about a definite stand by the directors at this time.

"Our directors," said Mr. Steinhart, "have previously taken a similar stand but in their opinion the time has come in the State of Indiana when an arrest or any interference with the motorist should be only by an officer in uniform."

"This crystallization of opinion has been brought about by repeated experiences from year to year wherein officers have stopped or attempted to stop a motorist and the appearance of the officer was such that the motorist had no way of knowing if he was an officer."

"The situation, as it exists today, is a bad thing for both the officer and the motorist. It breaks down the respect of law and makes the enforcement of traffic regulations more difficult. It also leads to abuses of the law."

"The Hoosier State Auto Association is concerned particularly with the protection and the rights of the motorists. It is not our intention to direct an attack on any individual law enforcement agency but we believe that the fairminded citizens of our state realize the necessity for a correction of present practices, and if it is at all possible, we shall insist on the uniforming of all officers who make arrests of motorists on our public highways."

State Makes Profit Off Small Forest Area

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 21.—(Special)—Pointing to a profit made off timber cut from a small forest area owned by the state and known as the Clark County Forest, under conditions presenting handicaps because about the same expense was incurred that could equally have, cared for timber on a much larger reserve. Charles C. Deam, state forester under the conservation department, raises the question, "why not more state forests in order to assure Indiana a perpetual source of income?"

Mr. Deam explains that the larger timber from this area of 3,500 acres was removed in 1907 and 1908, and that small cuttings are being made each year from second growth. About 100 acres were cut over this season, and black and scarlet oaks fashioned into cross ties. Cuttings yielded 15 to 18 ties per acre and were marketed at a net profit to the state of about fifty cents per tie.

In the opinion of Mr. Deam and other conservationists, the state should own several thousand acres of forest land and produce timber the same as an individual operates a farm and produces crops. It is unreasonable to contend that the individual will be satisfied with raising timber on land suited to agriculture, because the timber crop is too slow. But foresters declare that the state can make a splendid investment by buying at small cost, the idle and unproductive lands unsuited to agriculture, and producing thereon large quantities of the much needed timber for which the whole nation stands in crying need.

Deam points out that the state forest is situated in a country where only smaller agriculture projects are under way. The land actually devoted to forest production is extremely scarious and never could be farmed profitably. There is a vast acreage all along the Ohio River Valley similar in topography, that now lies idle. If the state owned this land, and it can be obtained at small cost, it should be planted to forests and in the course of a few years a steady income would be derived, for much of this land already contains some timber that soon will be sufficient size for marketing. Again, if the state owned large timber tracts from which a considerable annual cut was possible, then small power mills could be operated in the woods, and the actual cost of getting timber to the markets in large quantities would in the end be a saving over removing it by present methods from a small area.

PIERCETON—The squash crop in northern Indiana is the largest in history and Mrs. J. D. Greer is boasting of the largest squash. The big squash is of the Hubbard type and measures 44 inches in circumference.

Dormitory At State Normal Is Big Help

The new Women's Dormitory is one of the leading subjects of interest around the State Normal at the present time. While this is a new department for the Normal School, it is being found to be a great help in solving one of the greatest problems—the school officials have had to face—that of providing suitable rooming quarters for the large number of girls that attend the school. Another dormitory and a new gymnasium are the next proposals in State Normal's building program.

THE DEMAND FOR LAND

Reports of activity in farm trade and demand for farms to rent come in from many points. It is an encouraging sign, and a development that naturally follows improved farm conditions. By any method of measurement, farm products are now selling on quite a satisfactory basis. The opportunity to make money on the farm has become again apparent, and a good many people, hesitating between farming and something else, are leaning farmward because they are doubtful regarding the something else—as well they may be.

Another thing that is helping the land owner these days is the increasing attractiveness of farm loans. There was a day not far back when money shied at a farm loan. It is different now. Any deserving borrower is readily accommodated, and at a reasonable rate of interest on farm mortgages. Nothing in the nature of a boom is expected, or desired, but a healthy condition in farm trade is developing, and it will step right along while crop and live stock prices remain relatively as good as they are now and have been some months.

When To Buy A Farm

We find a good many people have the idea that this is the time to negotiate the purchase of a farm. There is a good deal of land that in one way or another is involved in indebtedness. Some of it may be had on most advantageous terms. Certainly it will never be lower if farm prices of farm products improve further, or even are maintained at somewhere near their present level. The outlook for some years is favorable. Just about everybody agrees in regard to that.

Land is a bargain when it can be bought at the low point and just before a rise in prices sets in. If conditions develop as they promise to, this is the time for the young man or the renter to set sail for land ownership.

We are equipped to assist in closing land deals where additional funds are needed, on good mortgage security, at a very low rate of interest and on a partial payment plan that is drawn in favor of the borrower.
