

AIRCRAFT BOARD LENDERS SUPPORT TO COL. MITCHELL

Report Of Committee Charges High Commands Retard Aviation

RECOMMEND SINGLE AVIATION DEPARTMENT

Washington, Nov. 30.—A charge that the high commands of the army and navy have retarded aviation development, concurrence in many of the criticisms voiced by Colonel William Mitchell, and recommendation for a single department of national defense are the salient features of the report of the house aircraft committee, as drafted, the United Press learned today.

The committee will forward its findings and recommendations to the clerk of the house within a week about the same time the Morrow board report is submitted to the president.

Besides obtaining approval of his proposal for a merger of the national defense organizations, Mitchell also will receive the committee's wholehearted support for his charge that the nation is without an adequate defense system. In recommending a combination of the defense departments, the committee will not go all the way with Mitchell, by urging establishment of a separate air service. The committee will recommend a unified service for procurement only and refrain from discussing the organization of the proposed department.

The committee will disagree with testimony by high ranking officers that the United States is in a parity with other nations in air strength and that lack of funds has caused inadequacies that may exist. In relative air standing the United States will be ranked not higher than third nor lower than fifth. Official figures will be cited to show that only ten per cent of expenditures during the last five years have gone toward new and remodeled planes.

The report will bristle with criticisms of the high commands for their lack of recognition of air power and charge that the army and navy have been backward in realizing the possibilities of aviation as a combatant arm.

Mitchell's charge of a "breakdown" in the national defense system will be concurred in by the committee with the declaration that the army and navy have failed to agree on a definite air policy. The committee will report that lack of an adequate air force leaves the United States without a secure and adequate national defense system.

SNOW FOLLOWS RAINY WEATHER

Four-hour Snowfall Sunday Is Followed By Freezing Temperatures

Winter weather overcame the rainy spell in Northern Indiana yesterday and snow fell for more than four hours late yesterday afternoon, followed by a drop in the thermometer and freezing weather. Pavements and roads were made hazardous by the snow and sleet and many automobiles skidded into ditches.

This morning, the thermometer registered about 28 degrees, but a distant sun and warmer atmosphere aided in a higher temperature and at 11 o'clock this morning the thermometer registered 32 degrees. An overcast sky gave predictions of more snow this afternoon and the temperature slipped slightly lower.

Many of the farmers were able to get their sugar beets out of the ground and into the factory last week. It is probable that only a few days of workable weather remain before winter weather sets in permanently.

Few beets remain in the ground to be damaged by cold weather. It was stated by several farmers today. Some beet-raisers, however, will lose considerably because of the last few weeks of wet and inclement weather. Others were able to get their beets out of the ground and into the factory before the rainy season began. Much corn is in the fields yet, however.

SETTLEMENT OF COAL STRIKE IS UP TO OPERATORS

Miners Accept Gov. Pin- chot's Plan, Putting Situ- ation Up To Operators

ACTION OF MINERS COMES AS SURPRISE

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 30.—The anthracite coal operators and Governor Pinchot held the stage today in the strike situation, following the acceptance Sunday by the miners of the governor's plan for peace in the hard coal fields.

Governor Pinchot has resumed his tour of state institutions in western Pennsylvania, interrupted several weeks ago by illness.

What move the operators will take on the miner's approval of the settlement plan was a source of great speculation. It was believed that John L. Lewis, miners' president, had placed the other camp in an embarrassing position by the miners' immediate action.

DECATUR AUTO IN AN ACCIDENT

Car Driven By Dick Heller Damaged In Crash With Six Other Cars

A Decatur car figured in a peculiar accident in which seven automobiles were damaged on the Kendallville road about nine miles north of Fort Wayne yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred at the interurban crossing just north of the Irene Byron sanitarium. Dick Heller and Bryce Thomas, of Decatur, were driving north on the Kendallville road and did not notice the railroad approach because of the heavy snow. A Nash sedan, driven by F. L. Rowland, of Fort Wayne, was coming from the opposite direction and slowed down for the crossing. Mr. Heller, thinking that an interurban was approaching, threw on the brakes of the car he was driving and the wet pavement caused the Heller car to smash head-on into the Rowland car.

Both cars were plunged toward a deep embankment, but the cable along the side of the road held the cars from falling over. The two wrecked cars were pushed back on the road and other cars coming through the snow storm were unable to stop in time and piled up against the wreckage. One woman was thrown through the windshield of the car in which she was riding and her face was badly lacerated. A young girl riding in another car was thrown through the rear glass and her arm and shoulder were cut.

Five of the seven cars were badly damaged. The Rowland car had two fenders torn off, head-lights broken, a wheel broken and a twisted frame. The Heller car had a wheel torn off, broken headlights, torn fenders, radiator damaged and the frame twisted. Four of the cars were towed into Fort Wayne, and the others were taken to Huntstown for repairs.

GOV. FERGUSON AFTER A SCALP

Demands Resignation Of Director Of Texas Tech- nological College

Bulletin
By George W. McVey
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)
Austin, Tex., Nov. 30.—(United Press)—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson today requested the resignation of Emon C. Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth, Tex., Record-Telegram as a member of the board of directors of the West Texas Technological college.

The request in the form of a letter in which the woman executive arraigned Carter because of an entertainment she alleged he gave at his home for the Oilmen's association, charged the publisher with serving stimulating drinks to guests.

Carter was escorted from a football field Thanksgiving day as he stood behind Governor Ferguson's box and cheered for the "Texas Aggies" and Dan Moody.

Moody is attorney general of the state, who has been pressing an investigation of alleged irregularities in granting state road contracts.

In her letter Governor Ferguson said she understood Carter "fitted up a building in the old-fashioned bar room way, providing a bar with a footrail and the sawdust on the floor and behind the bar you had a man dressed in the old fashioned bartender white apron style."

"I am informed you invited some two or three hundred guests and to those who came, you dispensed drinks, that were, to say the least, stimulating." The letter also charged Carter with giving away souvenir canes, "in which there was a hidden vial, some 30 inches long that contained approximately one pint of beverage."

MUMMA DRAWS SENTENCE OF 1 TO 8 YEARS

Former Decatur Man Sen- tenced For Burning Resi- dence In This City

ENTERS PLEA OF GUILTY THIS MORNING

George Mumma, 42, a well driller, formerly of this city, entered a plea of guilty to second degree arson in the Adams circuit court this morning and was sentenced to from one to eight years in the state prison. Mr. Mumma was charged with arson, having previously confessed to having set fire to his home on Fourteenth street, in Decatur, on the morning of August 21.

Immediately after the fire had been extinguished by local firemen last August, evidence was found that led local authorities to believe that the fire was of incendiary origin. The fire was reported to the state fire marshal's office and W. T. Fowler, assistant marshal, came to this city and investigated the fire.

Mr. Mumma was taken to Indianapolis several days after the fire and a confession was obtained from him regarding the burning of his home. A charge of first and second degree arson was filed in the circuit court here. This morning a new affidavit charging second degree arson was filed and the old affidavit was dismissed. Since Mr. Mumma made no effort to collect the insurance, he could not be charged with first degree arson.

Mr. Fowler appeared in court for the state this morning. He highly commended local police officers and members of the fire department in Decatur for their close cooperation in the case. "I have never had better cooperation in any case," Mr. Fowler said. He left at noon today after the final report of the local case had been filed.

BUSINESS GOOD, SAYS HENRY FORD

Auto Manufacturer Thinks Business As Sound Today As Any Time Recently

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 30.—General business conditions in America, Henry Ford believes, are "probably as sound today as any time in recent years."

"They should continue so," he said in an interview with the United Press, "if people will buckle down to honest work on every job so that full value in labor and full value in service to the public may continue possible."

This has much to do with continued good times," he added. "Ford stressed the importance of 'clean, healthful, working conditions,' saying: 'They have a very real bearing on a man's ability to do his best work and to contribute his full share to the general advancement of society.'"

What the coming year holds in store for business Ford declined to predict, explaining with a genial smile: "That would be prophecy; and I am not a prophet."

It was apparent, however, that he expects no serious economic fluctuation of shares on the New York stock exchange.

"That had nothing whatever to do with industry," he declared. "Stocks affect neither production nor value."
