

RURAL SCHOOLS TO BE DISCUSSED

County School Superintendents To Meet At Indianapolis, January 12

Indianapolis, Dec. 28.—(United Press)—The problems now facing rural educators in Indiana will be discussed at length at a called conference of the county superintendents of the state here January 12, Dr. H. N. Sherwood, state superintendent of public instruction, announced today.

Some of the leading educators of the country, including Dr. George Albert Coe, of Columbia University are scheduled to address the meetings, Dr. Sherwood said.

All sessions of the conference will be held at the Lincoln Hotel and plans are being made for a luncheon and banquet.

The educational problems of the state have reached a critical state during the last few years, it was pointed out and some plans must be evolved to meet present day needs.

At the annual convention of the township trustees' association held here recently, a committee was named to confer with Dr. Sherwood, members of the county superintendent's organization and the state farm bureau in an effort to work out some plan of action.

It is probable that the superintendents will follow a similar course of action at their meeting here.

Wolves, Not Dogs Were Killing Sheep

Huntington, Dec. 28.—Dog owners of Huntington county were vindicated in their contention that wolves and not dogs are killing sheep, chickens and pigs in this vicinity and in Allen county, when a timber wolf was killed Friday east of here.

The wolf was captured by a Christmas day hunting party which set out after Floyd Cormany had reported he saw a wolf killing two sheep last Tuesday, but had been unable to trail the marauder past a thicket in which it hid.

The wolf was sighted by a posse in what is known as the Maynes thicket and Marion Beaver, a youth not out of his teens, finally brought the animal down.
