church are urged to attend. The public also is cordially invited to attend these meetings.

Methodist Church
"How the touch of Christ, or how little will do," was the subject of the sermon given by the Rev. Somerville Rev. Light. "He went with this thought in mind, 'I must in some way impress upon the minds of the people that I am the divine Son of God and the Saviour and the only Saviour of men.' It was salvation that Jesus was holding up before the people. You note that whenever efforts were made to induce his miracle working power—merely for effect or a show of the fact that he was possessed of that power, he declined to do it. He wanted men to know that God sent him into the world to save sinners.

ing the clothes of Jesus, found in the 8th chapter of Luke and the 5th chapter of Mark.
"Everywhere that Jesus went, he was the miracle worker," declared Rev. Light. "He went with this thought in mind, 'I must in some way impress upon the minds of the people that I am the divine Son of God and the Saviour and the only Saviour of men.' It was salvation that Jesus was holding up before the people. You note that whenever efforts were made to induce his miracle working power—merely for effect or a show of the fact that he was possessed of that power, he declined to do it. He wanted men to know that God sent him into the world to save sinners.

"This story presents Jesus in a little different relation. We look at him from a little different angle, we are looking at the soul saving Jesus. He is trying to show how he is a Saviour and how he is able to save instantaneously. He is trying to show that he has the power to save men from sin and save them instantaneously. Christ would have us understand that everyone of us may touch him and there is life in the touch.

"It is not the matter or question as to how long we hunt for Christ, how much time we put in trying to figure this out and how long we halt. We have scores and hundreds of people who have been years trying everything else but Jesus. This woman tried everything else, but she had not heard of Jesus, she didn't turn away from Jesus to try somebody else. The shame of people today is that they turn away from Jesus to try something else. She never doubted the power of Christ, the very best opportunity that presented itself, she said to herself, 'If I could but touch his clothes I believe I could be cured.' People have been turning away from the one that could save them and the one who asks the least of them. It one who asks the least of them. It is not how much you do that saves you, it is the faith that you put in yourself that saves you. This woman had a growing faith and whenever there comes into your heart that peculiar influence that makes you feel that this is what you ought to do, make way to Jesus with a growing faith and say to yourself, 'If I could just touch his clothes I can be cured.'

"The trouble with the people today is that they are too stubborn, they want to wait. A man must go directly to Jesus Christ like a man, when he does that Jesus will meet him and he will meet him half way. Jesus could have given this woman a name, but he wanted this woman to stand up before that company of people and accept his Lordship and his Saviourship."

Tonight will be official family night and all of the officers of the different departments of the church are urged to be present. There will be a roll call of the officers.

Sunday is to be the big day of the church. It will be called Jubilee day. An opportunity will be given for decisions in the Sunday School and there will be a reception into the church of the members of the class of 1926.

United Brethren Church
"I have sinned against the Lord," was the text used by the Rev. Cecil R. Smith, at the revival services at the United Brethren church last night. The same was taken from 2 Samuel 12:13.

The pastor dwelt on the incident of the text and then directed his thoughts around the following three divisions, and said, "David sinned against his light and knowledge, just as many are sinning today. They know better, they know the right but do the wrong." He clinched this first division with the Bible text, "Him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is a sin."

"David sinned against his position. He was a king, a leader, one who was watched, and patterned after. Today we are all in a like position, if not king of a nation, king of ourselves, and our homes and many are watching us. No greater position can God give man than to be a co-worker together with Him. The Father, the Mother, son, the daughter, the husband, the neighbor, all have great positions for doing good here. Many are using their positions for the world and folks who could wield a power for
