To Describe Dunes Park

In Radio Address March 3

Indiana Dune State Park, destined to become one of the nation's foremost playgrounds, will be described to radio fans on the evening of March 3 by Earl H. Reed, of Chicago, broadcasting through station W.L.S., and Indiana conservation department officials today asked owners of receiving sets to tune in.

Mr. Reed, celebrated etcher and writer of Chicago, formerly of Indiana, probably knows the Dunes better than any other as for more than a decade

he spent much time in the great sandy expanses along the southern shores of Lake Michigan, and he helped make them world famous through etchings and writings. He was asked to talk on the Dunes, a portion of which Indiana is now setting aside for a state park, by the Sears & Robuck station (W.L.S.) using a wave length of 344.6 and will be on the air at 7:50, according to a letter to Richard Lieber, conservation director.

It is recalled that Julius Rosenwald,

one of the owners of the big Chicago mercantile business recently gave

Governor Ed. Jackson a check for $50,000 to aid Indiana in establishing this park in the dune country.

Conservation officials point out that

Indiana state parks and splendid state roads are attracting favorable attention from various broadcasting stations, especially in Chicago, and

recently WBBM, the Stewart-Warner station, broadcasted talks on all of Indiana's three parks and state roads

pointing out the advantages to tourists of visiting this commonwealth.

America's "First People" In "Vanishing American" At Adams Theatre Sunday

The coming of the first man to American soil and the gradual development of the native race of the western hemisphere are depicted in "The Vanishing American." Paramount's screen version of Zane Grey's story of the disappearing red man, to be shown at the Adams Theatre three days starting Sunday.

The prehistoric episode of the production which briefly reviews the story of the early days of civilization and pre-civilization are among the most powerful in the production and are the result of months of tireless effort. It is the first attempt ever made to show on the screen the history of "the first people" of North America.

To make these and more modern scenes, including those which take place in the "today" story of the Indians, 10,000 copper hued men, women and children were used, almost a third of the population of the Navajo Indian reservation where a company of 500 Paramount players and technical workers spent four months. In all the picture took a half year to film.

Richard Dix, who plays the role of the Indian hero of Zane Grey's story; Lois Wilson, Noah Beery, Malcolm McGregor, the featured players, all lived the rough, outdoor life that was the lot of all the others.—Ad. It

Gen. Mitchell To Speak In Fort Wayne Saturday

General William Mitchell's campaign to put the United States on an equal footing with any nation in the world in aviation development will be brought directly to the citizens of Northern Indiana when the fighting colonel appears on the platform at Mizpah Shrine Temple, Saturday night March 6.

His resignation from the army has given him the complete freedom to present to the country at large his ideas on what he conceives to be the true and lamentable state of our defenses and he intends to take the fullest advantage of this freedom.

Many individuals and members of business clubs in the many towns around Fort Wayne are assured good seat reservations at the Shrine Temple box office where the advance sale o-tickets is being held.

Arrangements have been made for Free Automobile Parking for all out-of-town visitors to the Mitchell meeting in the large and spacious auto storage rooms of the Yellow Cab Company, one block from the Shrine Temple.

J. W. WORTHINGTON DIES IN PRISON

ords.

"He had the oiliest tongue of any crook I knew," a detective said at his trial, while scores confessed they had been "sucker" in Worthington's stock deals.

After years spent in dodging authorities, the "Wolf" turned his hand in a game which involved misuse of the mails. The government sent its officers after him and he was captured and convicted.

But a prison term was not yet for Worthington. There were ways of keeping out of Atlanta. He appealed his conviction, staying out of a cell to the very last. Then he became ill.

Whether or not "Lean John" was at that time as sick as his friends claimed will never be known, but stays of execution kept him for a considerable period on his supposed "death bed" out in Los Angeles.

Then, in May 1925, "The Wolf" disappeared from the hospital. He went at night across the Mexican border and openly scoffed at the authorities. Treaty reservations prevented his extradition.

Meanwhile his daughter, Alice Worthington, was supposed to have a fortune of more than $1,500,000 which her father had amassed during his exploits in the field of finance. Some put as high as $2,500,000 the estate left by the man who began life as a grocery clerk in a little southern town.

After four months in Mexico, "Lean John" came inexplicably back to Chicago and gave himself up and was taken to Atlanta.

Worthington was received at the prison hospital Oct. 10, at which time physicians predicted he would live to serve out his sentence of three years for using the mails to defraud. No change in his condition has been noted for the last week, it was said.
