A lot of people will be moving "down by the vinegar works" if they make good on the announcement that alcohol can be made from vinegar for fifty cents a gallon.

If you missed your guess on the winter weather, you now have another chance. What's your idea of the next three months which include spring? The signs indicate unsettled conditions.

And now the all absorbing question for a lot of folks seems to be "was that real campaign or ginger ale in which the nude actress bathed at a New York party the other evening?" That doesn't seem to us as important as what kind of swine drank the stuff if the facts as dispatched are true and just where is this nation drifting?

John Frederick, Kokomo manufacturer and a leading business man of Indiana is among the candidates for the long term nomination for United States senator on the democratic ticket. Mr. Frederick is an able campaigner, a splendid business man, has a wide acquaintance and is big enough for the job.

It has been suggested that a spring revue be given here and while the details are not at hand, what we have heard of the proposed campaign for a fund with which to better conditions here, we believe it would be patronized and would produce a week of genuine pleasure and many benefits.

The council last evening started action to secure the old cemetery in the south part of the city and if successful will convert it into a Memorial park. We believe the county commissioners will gladly comply with the request to take over this ground and that the improvement can and will be made during the next year. That will be real progress.

Arthur Gilliom, attorney general of Indiana has written Rev. E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the anti-saloon league, denying implications made by Mr. Shumaker in his annual report that there had been any manipulation in liquor cases by the attorney general or in the supreme court and sends word that any repetition will be followed by real action. It looks like a hot battle between two real warriors.

The primary election will be held two months from tomorrow, on May 4th. Already a number of candidates have announced informally and several have quietly started their campaigns. It is important that good men, qualified and willing to assist in the campaign work, be named as the nominees. The selection of a strong ticket is good politics as is also the election of men who are qualified to conduct the offices to which they aspire.

The board of directors of the Decatur Industrial Association met last evening to discuss plans for the year. They will give their best to make this a banner period for this community, will support the boys and girls clubs, will co-operate with the city officials in the plans already made for the benefit of Decatur, will go after new industries, aid in the clean-up campaign, support those things which are for the best interests of all. France Center in charge and a board of live men, they should and will make progress if given the assistance they deserve from every citizen.

At the meeting of the Decatur Industrial Association soon, one of the matters which will be discussed will be whether or not we are to have an Old Home Week celebration this year. Those in the past, the first in 1912 and the next about five years ago in connection with the fair, were delightfully successful and we are sure that with proper organization, the 1926 Home Coming, in connection with the 150th anniversary of American Independence and the ninetieth anniversary of the founding of this city, could be made a real event, worth while in every way. It will be earnestly discussed at the meeting of the club and you are not only invited but urged to attend and express your views. It takes months of real effort to put over an event of this kind and its not a bit too soon to begin thinking about it and planning for it if we decide to give it.

Petitions for two roads, one west from Geneva and one east from Berne, to be built under the county unit road law were filed yesterday and the petitions urged by delegations from those sections interested in these highways. A similar petition was prepared some months ago for a road from this city southeast through Pleasant Mills to the state line. The petitioners ask for hard surface highways and there is no doubt as to the need for the improvements as soon as the finances of the county will permit, but this is a matter to be considered seriously and a new departure which should have the most careful consideration. We believe the time is near when the greatest amount of money spent on road improvements should be for those constructed of materials which will eliminate to some degree at least the maintenance cost but it must also be remembered that these are the things which increase taxes. If such a movement is to be started it should be done by the board only on a program covering a stated number of years and after consideration of all the facts connected with a proposition of this size. We are sure that the county commissioners will consider all the arguments pro and con and will act wisely and to the best interests of every tax payer in the county, considered as a whole, that every one will be given the squarest deal possible under all conditions. That's all that should be asked of them.

Two More Answers To Tank Problem Received

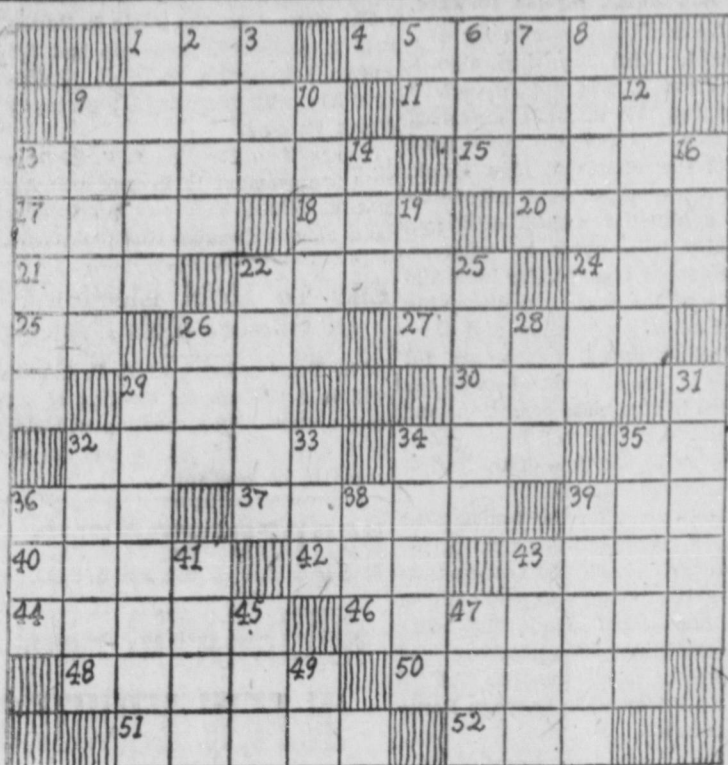

Earl Chase has figured that the tank a mile square and a mile high, filled with water, would empty at the rate of a barrel of water per second, in 1,108.44 years. He figures that the tank contains 1,101,117,147,428.57 gallons and that 86,400 barrels would be drawn off each day and his answer is figured on the basis of 365 days in a year.

Homer Ruhl, of the traction company, figures it 1,108.45, about the same basis as Mr. Chase and these answers are believed, practically correct. Many replies have been received and the problem has created much interest.

MARION—No longer will the pool balls click merrily over the green tables at the Y. M. C. A. here. The board of directors recently decided that pool was not the proper kind of game for young men.

SMALL

I am so small at times, so crammed The finer things I've worked so hard with pride, Lie crushed and broken underneath my feet.
I have no room for any thought, it seems, My better nature has no room to turn.
Except my own concerns. I toss out side, My crowded spirit stifles with the heat.
Upon the rubbish all my precious dreams.
I have no room for kindness then, or space, Lord, teach me how to make a fairer place.
Where courage or good manners may remain; Of this poor house of clay which now I know;
Even the smile of friendship quits my face, Teach me to mark it with a touch of grace, While I some small advantage seek to gain. With room for dreams and room in which to grow.

live. We have the light of conscience to warn us when our feet are tending towards evil. And we have the grace of God to assist us in the task, which would otherwise be impossible, of keeping the commandments. Yet, in spite of all this, men go astray and fall into sin. Because they do not keep their wills subjected to the Will of God, because they are too proud to obey. But there is no loss of human dignity in obeying God, nor is there any loss of independence in subjecting ourselves to Him, for His service is perfect freedom. The service of self, the service of the world, the flesh, and the devil, these are slavery of the most degrading sort. Only in the service of God can we find true liberty.

"Our Lord, in the Garden of Gethsemane, shows us the way back to the God whom we have offended by our disobedience. We must conform our wills to His, and this can not be done without a struggle. Also it is sure to cost us something just as it cost Christ the Cross, which He might have avoided had He not been willing to undergo its pain and its shame. To break off evil habits, to be humble instead of proud, to give up certain associates because they are occasions to sin, to be faithful and regular in religious duties, all this is a hard task from which we naturally shrink. But if we set ourselves to do the Will of God we cannot doubt that God will help us, for surely He would not ask of us what is impossible, nor would He withhold from us the necessary graces to enable us to serve Him more and more perfectly.

"We all of us want to be saved, but some of us would rather be saved in our own way rather than in God's way! We must make the complete surrender of our wills to God, we must accept whatever He sends us, of joy or of sorrow, knowing that if we are good, obedient children of our heavenly Father, all will work for the good of our souls."
