

SULPHUR HEALS SKIN ERUPTIONS

MR. FREDRICK VISITS DECATUR THIS MORNING

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE)

none.

Discusses Farm Problem

"In all parts of Indiana, we find the farmer struggling to make a living with his produce selling in competition with the low paid labor of Europe while all that he buys is purchased in a protective market where labor is four times as well paid as in Europe.

"The purchasing power of the farmer has been cut practically in half and because the farmer can purchase only half as much as he formerly purchased those who sell to him can make only one-half the goods they formerly made. The result is that manufacturers are either employing fewer men or working their plants shorter hours, that merchants are either throwing up their businesses or doing only half the volume they should be doing. Business is proceeding in a halting manner and there is a general grouping for the remedy.

"In my opinion the time has come for drastic measures for the relief of the farmer and I believe that the only relief that can be satisfactorily applied to his condition is governmental aid in marketing his products.

I favor an export corporation through which the government can maintain a fair price in the domestic market and help the farmer dispose of his exportable surplus.

Presents View on Tariff

"Some Democrats advocate an immediate and ruthless reduction of the tariff on the theory that the price which the farmer pays for the commodities he purchases should be brought back to the level that prevailed before the world's war, which is about the level that the farmer finds when he tries to sell his products.

"But these advocates forget that the wages of our working men have been established at such a high level that today eighty-five percent of all we pay for our commodity represents labor costs. Prices cannot be reduced to the former level without reducing wages and it is never a desirable or sound economic program that involves taking away from any one those things which he has.

"If the Democratic party will simply advocate those things which are so sound and logical that it will be impossible for the republican party to convince the business man and the working man that Democratic success places his chances in jeopardy, it will get the support of the voters of this state who are plainly dissatisfied with the Republican leadership and the Republican policy of protecting the few and neglecting the many.

"I find, in my visits to the various cities of the state that faith in the democratic principle of tariff for revenue only has never been stronger than it is today. But, I also find that democrats, everywhere, are realizing that they will never have the opportunity of applying the party's principle to the tariff until they have convinced the voters that they intend to apply it in such a sane and careful manner that they will not thereby disrupt business and produce unemployment and poverty among the working men.

"We have no right to do anything that will disturb the right of our business men to prosper or of our working men to obtain the highest wage it is possible to obtain. For that reason, I am advocating that we proceed at once to relieve the distress of the farmer by governmental assistance, and then, on a parity, that we attack protective tariff with a view to eliminating prohibitive tariff and moving gradually toward that tariff which will produce no more revenue than is necessary to the maintenance of government."

THREE TICKETS NOMINATED FOR BOYS' ELECTION

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE)

Eiting and Otis Baker; clerk, Donald Klepper; treasurer, Carl Hurst.

The election booths will be placed in the library assembly room. The polls will be opened from 11:30 a. m. until 12:30 o'clock at noon and from 3:30 until 4:00 o'clock Thursday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock.

All the boys in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades are invited to participate in the election.

Plans for boys' week are being completed and the program will open with a big loyalty parade on Saturday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock.

WAR VETERANS TO MEET

The Spanish-American War veterans will hold a meeting Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, with the American Legion in the Legion hall.

Whitehall Pharmaceutical Company, 588 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y.
Dept. N 532 A
Mail me a Free Sample of Menth-Sulphur.

Trial
Free

FRANKLIN ROAD HAS FEDERAL AID

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE)

Highway has nine, and they are very dangerous and caused a great deal of trouble in the World War, and, from a Military standpoint, broke down.

"I expect to call the National Executive Committee together within the next couple of weeks to map out a financial campaign. I was very anxious to have Ohio raise a bunch of money ahead of any other state, as a nucleus for organization, but they seem to think that we should have a

"I think the Indiana situation needs National budget first.

a little better state organization and I am in hopes that there will be a meeting held there soon, that I can attend.

BIRTH

Margaret Ann, is the name of the 8½ pound baby girl born to Mr. and Mrs. Russell Funk, of Mishawaka, Ind., last evening. A telephone call to the proud grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Lewton, of Root township, last night, said that the mother and babe were doing as well as could be expected. Mrs. Funk before her marriage was Florence Lewton. This is the first child in the family.

COMING TO DECATUR

Murray Hotel, April 29

FOR ONE DAY ONLY

Hours 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

International Doctors Specialist

Brings the knowledge of a Great Medical Organization and Their Experience in the Successful Treatment of COMPLICATED CHRONIC CONDITIONS

Expert Services Free of Charge:-

The International Doctors is an organization of experienced, registered physicians, for the treatment of stubborn, chronic diseases.

The International Doctors, experienced Specialists, treat, without SURGICAL OPERATIONS, OR HYPODERMIC INJECTIONS, diseases of the Blood, Skin, and the internal Organs. Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lung Trouble, Old Ulcers, Tape-worm, Eczema, Asthma, Chronic Constipation, Epilepsy, High Blood Pressure, Bed Wetting and other morbid affections of the body.

Thirty-five years' experience and the complete records of thousands of cases successfully treated prove that the methods of the International Doctors are very dependable.

The Physicians of the International Doctors have at their command the knowledge and resources of the whole organization.

Many people keep on suffering from ailments that might be greatly improved, because they cannot afford to go to high-priced Specialists away from home.

Many communities have not a sufficient number of patients suffering from diseases mentioned to support local hospitals for needed special treatments in complicated cases.

The International Doctors have solved this problem, and their highly trained Specialists travel from town to town to meet the sick. They instruct patients, recommend a course of treatment, and teach ailing men and women how to take care of themselves at home.

To those having Ailments of long standing, whatever the trouble may be, and notwithstanding the poor results of former treatments, come and talk it over; it's FREE OF CHARGE.

Ladies are requested to come escorted.

(Laboratories Milwaukee, Wisconsin)

By JACKSON GREGORY

COPYRIGHT BY CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

Synopsis

CHAPTER I—Bud Lee, horse for man of the Blue Lake ranch, convinced Bayne Trevors, manager, to liberally wrecking the property owned by Judith Sanford, a young woman, his cousin. To kick him out, and Timothy Gray decided to throw up his job. Judith arrives and announces she has bought Gray's share in the ranch and will run it. She discharges Trevors.

CHAPTER II—The men on the ranch dislike taking orders from a girl, but by subduing a vicious horse and proving her thorough knowledge of ranch life, Judith wins the best of them over. Lee decides to stay.

"Thanks," she said. Clicking off, she put in a call for "Doc" Tripp in Rocky Bend. "Get him for me as quickly as you can, will you, please?" she asked of the operator in town.

For five minutes she munched at a sandwich and pored over the papers before her. When at last her telephone-bell rang she found that it was Tripp.

"Hello, Doc," she said cordially. "I haven't seen you for so long I almost have forgotten how you comb your hair!" Tripp laughed with her at that; across the miles she could picture him running his big hand through his hair.

"Slaked lime? Or sulphur fumgs?" she said quickly. "And you insisted on chloroform?"

"You've hit it!" he exclaimed wonderingly. "How'd you know?"

"I haven't been loafing on the job the last six months," she laughed. "I've been at the school at Davis and hobnobbing with some of the university men at Berkeley. They're doing some great work there, Doc, I'll want to talk to you about it. You're going down there, expenses paid, to brush up with a course or two this year. Now, how soon can you get back here?"—Trevors? Oh, Trevors is fired. I'm running the ranch myself. And

"Case of lung-worms," he told her. "Some of the calves, I don't know just how many yet. He insisted on my treating them the old way."

"Slaked lime? Or sulphur fumgs?" she said quickly. "And you insisted on chloroform?"

"It's a big, big thing!" she whispered, and her eyes were very bright with it all, her cheeks flushed. "Big!"

Passing one of the great barns, she heard the trumpet call of a stallion. From the instant her eyes filled to the massive beauty of him, she knew who he was: "Night Shade, sprung from the union of Mountain King and Black Empress; regal-blooded, ebony black from silken fetlocks to flowing mane; a splendid four-year-old destined to tread his proud way to a first prize at the coming state fair at Sacramento, a horse many stock fanciers had coveted.

At the store, where a ten-by-ten room was partitioned off to serve as office, she swung down from the saddle.

"I haven't been loafing on the job the last six months," she laughed. "I've been at the school at Davis and hobnobbing with some of the university men at Berkeley. They're doing some great work there, Doc, I'll want to talk to you about it. You're going down there, expenses paid, to brush up with a course or two this year. Now, how soon can you get back here?"—Trevors? Oh, Trevors is fired. I'm running the ranch myself. And

"Case of lung-worms," he told her. "Some of the calves, I don't know just how many yet. He insisted on my treating them the old way."

"Slaked lime? Or sulphur fumgs?" she said quickly. "And you insisted on chloroform?"

"It's a big, big thing!" she whispered, and her eyes were very bright with it all, her cheeks flushed. "Big!"

Passing one of the great barns, she heard the trumpet call of a stallion. From the instant her eyes filled to the massive beauty of him, she knew who he was: "Night Shade, sprung from the union of Mountain King and Black Empress; regal-blooded, ebony black from silken fetlocks to flowing mane; a splendid four-year-old destined to tread his proud way to a first prize at the coming state fair at Sacramento, a horse many stock fanciers had coveted.

At the store, where a ten-by-ten room was partitioned off to serve as office, she swung down from the saddle.

"I haven't been loafing on the job the last six months," she laughed. "I've been at the school at Davis and hobnobbing with some of the university men at Berkeley. They're doing some great work there, Doc, I'll want to talk to you about it. You're going down there, expenses paid, to brush up with a course or two this year. Now, how soon can you get back here?"—Trevors? Oh, Trevors is fired. I'm running the ranch myself. And

"Case of lung-worms," he told her. "Some of the calves, I don't know just how many yet. He insisted on my treating them the old way."

"Slaked lime? Or sulphur fumgs?" she said quickly. "And you insisted on chloroform?"

"It's a big, big thing!" she whispered, and her eyes were very bright with it all, her cheeks flushed. "Big!"

Passing one of the great barns, she heard the trumpet call of a stallion. From the instant her eyes filled to the massive beauty of him, she knew who he was: "Night Shade, sprung from the union of Mountain King and Black Empress; regal-blooded, ebony black from silken fetlocks to flowing mane; a splendid four-year-old destined to tread his proud way to a first prize at the coming state fair at Sacramento, a horse many stock fanciers had coveted.

At the store, where a ten-by-ten room was partitioned off to serve as office, she swung down from the saddle.

"I haven't been loafing on the job the last six months," she laughed. "I've been at the school at Davis and hobnobbing with some of the university men at Berkeley. They're doing some great work there, Doc, I'll want to talk to you about it. You're going down there, expenses paid, to brush up with a course or two this year. Now, how soon can you get back here?"—Trevors? Oh, Trevors is fired. I'm running the ranch myself. And

"Case of lung-worms," he told her. "Some of the calves, I don't know just how many yet. He insisted on my treating them the old way."

"Slaked lime? Or sulphur fumgs?" she said quickly. "And you insisted on chloroform?"

"It's a big, big thing!" she whispered, and her eyes were very bright with it all, her cheeks flushed. "Big!"

Passing one of the great barns, she heard the trumpet call of a stallion. From the instant her eyes filled to the massive beauty of him, she knew who he was: "Night Shade, sprung from the union of Mountain King and Black Empress; regal-blooded, ebony black from silken fetlocks to flowing mane; a splendid four-year-old destined to tread his proud way to a first prize at the coming state fair at Sacramento, a horse many stock fanciers had coveted.

At the store, where a ten-by-ten room was partitioned off to serve as office, she swung down from the saddle.

"I haven't been loafing on the job the last six months," she laughed. "I've been at the school at Davis and hobnobbing with some of the university men at Berkeley. They're doing some great work there, Doc, I'll want to talk to you about it. You're going down there, expenses paid, to brush up with a course or two this year. Now, how soon can you get back here?"—Trevors? Oh, Trevors is fired. I'm running the ranch myself. And

"Case of lung-worms," he told her. "Some of the calves, I don't know just how many yet. He insisted on my treating them the old way."

"Slaked lime? Or sulphur fumgs?" she said quickly. "And you insisted on chloroform?"

"It's a big, big thing!" she whispered, and her eyes were very bright with it all, her cheeks flushed. "Big!"

Passing one of the great barns, she heard the trumpet call of a stallion. From the instant her eyes filled to the massive beauty of him, she knew who he was: "Night Shade, sprung from the union of Mountain King and Black Empress; regal-blooded, ebony black from silken fetlocks to flowing mane; a splendid four-year-old destined to tread his proud way to a first prize at the coming state fair at Sacramento, a horse many stock fanciers had coveted.

At the store, where a ten-by-ten room was partitioned off to serve as office, she swung down from the saddle.

"I haven't been loafing on the job the last six months," she laughed. "I've been at the school at Davis and hobnobbing with some of the university men at Berkeley. They're doing some great work there, Doc, I'll want to talk to you about it. You're going down there, expenses paid, to brush up with a course or two this year. Now, how soon can you get back here?"—Trevors? Oh, Trevors is fired. I'm running the ranch myself. And

"Case of lung-worms," he told her. "Some of the calves, I don't know just how many yet. He insisted on my treating them the old way."

"Slaked lime? Or sulphur fumgs?" she said quickly. "And you insisted on chloroform?"

"It's a big, big thing!" she whispered, and her eyes were very bright with it all, her cheeks flushed. "Big!"

Passing one of the great barns, she heard the trumpet call of a stallion. From the instant her eyes filled to the massive beauty of him, she knew who he was: "Night Shade, sprung from the union of Mountain King and Black Empress; regal-blooded, ebony black from silken fetlocks to flowing mane; a splendid four-year-old destined to tread his proud way to a first prize at the coming state fair at Sacramento, a horse many stock fanciers had coveted.

At the store, where a ten-by-ten room was partitioned off to serve as office, she swung down from the saddle.

"I haven't been loafing on the job the last six months," she laughed. "I've been at the school at Davis and hobnobbing with some of the university men at Berkeley. They're doing some great work there, Doc, I'll want to talk to you about it. You're going down there, expenses paid, to brush up with a course or two this year. Now, how soon can you get back here?"—Trevors? Oh, Trevors is fired. I'm running the ranch myself. And

"Case of lung-worms," he told her. "Some of the calves, I don't know just how many yet. He insisted on my treating them the old way."

"Slaked lime? Or sulphur fumgs?" she said quickly. "And you insisted on chloroform?"

"It's a big, big thing!" she whispered, and her eyes were very bright with it all, her cheeks flushed. "Big!"

Passing one of the great barns, she heard the trumpet call of a stallion. From the instant her eyes filled to the massive beauty of him, she knew who he was: "Night Shade, sprung from the union of Mountain King and Black Empress; regal-blooded, ebony black from silken fetlocks to flowing mane; a splendid four-year-old destined to tread his proud way to a first prize at the coming state fair at Sacramento, a horse many stock fanciers had coveted.

At the store, where a ten-by-ten room was partitioned off to serve as office, she swung down from the saddle.

"I haven't been loafing on the job the last six months," she laughed. "I've been at the school at Davis and hobnobbing with some of the university men at Berkeley. They're doing some great work there, Doc, I'll want to talk to you about it. You're going down there, expenses paid, to brush up with a course